Since his association with the prosecutor's office in DeKalb County, he has successfully prosecuted every criminal homicide case, and there were 19 of them, brought before the court.

During his time in office, Mr. Winans has prosecuted thousands of traffic cases and hundreds of felony cases, resulting in only five "not guilty" verdicts and three "hung" juries in 19 years.

The incumbent candidate has worked closely with DeKalb County law enforcement officials, initiating the county's first training programs for police officers. He is the author of five special police training manuals.

Mr. Winans' expertise in the prosecutor's role in the criminal justice system is in demand throughout the state. He has lectured at Indiana University, Valparaiso University and Notre dame University law schools and at the Indiana Law Enforcement Academy which he helped create as a member of the governor's committee to improve training for police officers.

One of the original organizers of the Indiana Prosecuting Attorneys Association in 1958, he has served on that body's special committee to draft the new Indiana Criminal Code. He is serving his second four-year term on the association's board of directors. He also served five years on the governor's special committee to study narcotics and alcohol addiction.

Mr. Winans has been honored with special awards in law enforcement from the American Legion, Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions, Tri-State Law Enforcement and Van Wert (Ohio) law enforcement Fraternal Order of Police. He has received special citizenship awards from the Elks, American Legion, Who's Who In America, Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Indiana Retarded Children's Association.

Working with Rotary International and the Boy Scouts of America, Mr. Winans organized the first Boy Scout Troop for retarded boys in the United States at Garrett and the first Girl Scout Troop for retarded girls. His wife, Kathryn, served as the first Girl Scout leader for that troop.

Other Scout activities include serving on the Anthony Wayne Council board of directors five years and on special fund-raising committees for the council five times.

Mr. Winans was special legal council and a member of the first board of directors of the Indiana Retarded Childrens Association and on the board of directors for Wee Haven School in Garrett.

Other activities include organizing the DeKalb County Young Republicans in 1959 and serving as its chairman five times. Two years he was chairman of the Fourth District Young Republicans. He has attended two national conventions of his party and served on special election committees for President Eisenhower, Congressman Adair, Governor Bowen and attorneys general Ed Steers and Theodore Sendak. He has been elected a delegate to the state convention seven times and has been precinct committeeman five times.

At age 48, Mr. Winans indicates he is not planning to "rest on" his laurels. "If re-elected, I pledge to continue to provide aggressive and forceful prosecution of all criminal cases without fear or favor with a competent staff of experienced people. I will continue to provide law enforcement personnel with timely, educational seminars on a regular basis so that they can meet the challenge of their jobs as efficient, educated law enforcement officers. My staff and I have had an excellent relationship with the courts and we would like to continue serving the people of this county," said Mr. Winans.

Store Gets 'Heck' For Helping

That misunderstandings can occur in times of emergency is illustrated by the following note received from the Bita General Store.

"It has come to our attention that, after spending many long hours and making several rescue trips to Allen Dairy and Holsum Bakery during the recent blizzard, there are those who feel we took advantage of our customers.

"We would like to publicly reply. We have not raised our prices either before, during or after the storm except on products that came in at higher cost to us.

"We feel privileged that Allen Dairy milk, which cost almost as much wholesale as we sell Babcock milk at retail, was even made available to us, since we are not a customer of theirs."

The situation arose when the Bita store had to sell milk at $1.89 a gallon during the snow emergency and made special trips in order to have milk on hand when regular delivery trucks could not get through.

One More 'Big Snow Of '78' Picture

Bloodmobile Here March 1

The Bloodmobile will be at the Riverdale cafetorium Wednesday, March 1, from 1 to 6 p.m., according to Delores Hicov, chairman.

The need for donations of whole blood is constant. Last year Riverdale area residents responded with what has been described as an "amazing" total of 123 pints of blood. Those donors, plus any new residents willing to donate, are being urged to continue the good record established by the Riverdale community. That includes those from the Saint Joe, Spencerville and Newville communities, plus a few from farther away.

Mrs. Hicov indicated that surveys conducted at Red Cross Blood Centers and Bloodmobiles reveal most donors give blood because it gives them a feeling of satisfaction to be helping someone else. Some even feel it is a duty.

Nearly all people continue to donate blood because they know that there is a great need for it and because only people can give blood.

Most Bloodmobiles schedule appointments ahead of time so that there is a minimum of waiting for the donor. The entire process takes only about an hour. However, if a definite time cannot be given by the donor for some reason, "walk-ins" are always welcomed.

"If you're interested in helping to keep your community healthy," Mrs. Hicov said, please call 238-4891 or 238-4617 and make an appointment to donate at our Bloodmobile on Wednesday, March 1."

Red Cross Lists Snow Aid

The DeKalb County American Red Cross organization was active during the recent snow storm emergency, fulfilling the local chapter's obligation to provide aid in times of disaster.

Executive secretary Jessie Baxter noted this week that perhaps the most effective aid occurred after the storm, when the local chapter "picked up the tab" for feeding storm victims and volunteer workers.

Shelters were open in Ashley at the fire station, in Auburn at Bible Baptist Church and in Butler at the American Legion Post. Food was provided for victims and workers in Saint Joe, Ashley, Auburn, Butler, Garrett, Corunna and Waterloo.

"With remarkable spirit, each of our eight communities adjusted to the job to be done," Mrs. Baxter said. In each of the towns questioned about expense for feeding, the answer was the fire departments and auxiliaries, and Civil Defense in Garrett. Law agencies were a source of information and transportation. WIFF radio gave information and guidance. There were many accounts of individuals who carried in food and provided housing.

Community pride, as well as snow banks, followed as an aftermath of the storm. The chapter responded to a number of hardship families without money for food. The county Civil Defense was active with communication and health and welfare reports, and is covering the expense of fuel for transportation in each of the town emergency centers.

The chapter has issued checks to some 16 county merchants for the amount of $898.50. Since the storm has been declared a federal disaster, National Red Cross has asked for an accounting of expense, to be reimbursed to local chapters. This is not tax money.

The financial response of the DeKalb County Red Cross chapter is made possible by the support of the DeKalb United Fund and numerous generous donors.

Town Board

The town board of Saint Joe met Monday at the fire hall. A group of approximately 12 persons attended to witness the meeting and offer comments or ask questions.

Time for board meetings was again changed. Until further notice, meetings will be held at 6:30 p.m.

A controversy over appointment of a town attorney was settled by a 2-1 vote. Brad Thomas will continue as board attorney. Board president Butch Coburn and board member Fred Rayle voted to retain Mr. Thomas. Board member Loretta Loy opposed the appointment because she feels there is a conflict of interests involved.

A question about the propriety of having the president participate in voting was answered by Mr. Rayle who submitted a letter from Butler & Butler, town attorneys in the past several years, who a few years ago advised then board president John Heyman that with a three-man board, it would be difficult to transact business at times if the president could not make or second motions, or vote on motions.

Common accepted proper procedure is that the presiding officer votes only in case of a tie.

In a discussion about information appearing in the local paper about town and fire department matters, Mr. Rayle said he had met with the editor to get things straightened out. One of the townspeople attending made the comment that local town and fire department troubles started with the local newspaper.

An opposite view was expressed after the Monday meeting was held that friction and hostility among town officials were obvious at the meeting and "that's where the trouble is."

Thus far, after the meeting of the fire chief-board member and the local editor, and after Monday night's meeting, none of the information appearing in this paper about town-fire department matters has been shown to be false.

Concern For Education Relayed By 'News' Reader

The cost of education, the trend of education and the disregard for parent-public opinions by educators and others continue to be matters of concern.

Frank Sechler points out two significant articles in national publications which substantiate the fears of many Americans and of Hoosiers in particular.

One item is from the Wall Street Journal of January 17, 1978. It notes that the once largely untaught theory that a god created the world is now evident in courses at Michigan State, Iowa State and other schools. The Michigan Civil Liberties Union considered investigating the Michigan State professor who teaches courses presenting the creation theory. The CLU decided not to, theorizing that academic freedom was more important than arguing separation of church and state.

The final paragraph was underlined by Frank:

"But Professor Moore's textbook was stricken from Indiana's list of approved books for ninth grade biology students after a successful ACLU suit."

The second article is from Business Week of January 30, 1978. It is titled, "Costly Schools That Do not Educate."

The article was written by Theodore H. Martland, Deputy Superintendent of Schools of Waterbury, Connecticut. It reads as follows:

"Imagine, if you can, a corporation where the workers with the most demanding tasks are at the low end of the pay scale, where the supervisors have no control over personnel, operations, or funds, where the board of directors negotiates directly with the union to set pay scales and working conditions.

You have just described a typical American school system, and in doing so, you have identified some of the things that have produced a shocking increase in educational costs with no demonstrable improvement in the product. If any corporation tried to operate on the principles widely accepted in American schools, it would soon wind up in bankruptcy. If the educational system continues on the path it has been following, it will soon face taxpayer revolts.

$12 Billion Higher This Year

"There are about 49 million children enrolled this year in elementary and secondary schools. About 90% of these children are in public schools, where they are taught by 3.5 million men and women. Expenditures for education at all levels are expected to reach $144 billion for the 1977-78 school year, which is up $12 billion from last year. If school expenditures should continue rising at the rate they have set during the 1950s, 1960s and early 1970s, they would absorb the entire gross national product by the year 2000. This is absurd, of course, but the projection underlines the necessity for fundamental reform and reorganization of the schools.

Salaries Up 10 Times

"The greatest proportion of total cost in any school system is professional salaries. Since 1940, salary costs have increased tenfold—far in excess of the rate of inflation in the rest of the economy. Cost per teacher has risen at the same time that the average number of pupils per teacher has been reduced. Educators generally agree that the ideal class size is no more than 25 pupils, but no study has established that class size has a direct effect on student achievement and rates of learning. A 1972 study by Rand Corp. notes: 'Reduction in class size, a favorite high-priority reform in the eves of many school systems, seems not to be related to student outcome.'

"Teachers are paid on a salary schedule, with new teachers on the lowest steps and senior teachers at the top. Each year, all teachers move one step up the ladder. Additional increases in pay are based on the taking of advanced courses in education. Thus, in fact, the teachers who receive the highest pay are the oldest, with the greatest number of education courses. There is no correlation between pupil or teacher performance and the salary schedule. What research there is suggests that an individual teacher's best teaching is usually done between the fifth and tenth year of experience. There is no known evidence to support the idea that advanced courses allow one to teach better.

Fewer pupils—More Pay

"Another factor is the practice of making differential payments for various kinds of work. It is often a fact that the teacher working with the fewest number of children receives the biggest pay differential. A teacher in a self-contained elementary classroom has the most demanding teaching task in the system—and often is on the lowest pay step. Psychologists, social workers, guidance counselors, audio-visual specialists, and others, often receive additional pay for considerably lighter teaching loads. These positions are usually less supervised than classroom teaching.

"Contrary to what most educators say publicly, few teachers are observed, assessed, guided or managed. If anyone is observed at all, it is usually the elementary classroom teacher. Specialists and supervisors are not usually even accounted for, or asked to log where they have been and what they have done. Any effective reform, therefore, must start with an assessment of professional roles in education and reassessment of responsibilities in the light of solid data on pupil achievement. I believe that an analytical approach to the process of learning would drastically change the structure of public education, advance actual pupil learning, and at the same time save billions of dollars.

Weak Management

"It will be impossible to take such an approach as long as we tolerate the traditional weak management of public schools. Administrators in schools are just that—administrators. They are not managers. The principal is the key person in any school, but he has no control over personnel, operations, funds or program. Boards of education are the legal administrative units, so at best the school administrators become facilitators and coordinators between the boards and the powerful professional unions. At worst, they become clerks and errand boys. Until school administrators are assigned management prerogatives, responsibilities and authority, schools will continue to be mismanaged and unaccountable.

"One example that brings this issue into focus is the negotiation of a new contract between the school district and the teachers. Boards of education typically negotiate directly with union representatives. If principals or middle management are involved, it is either as a separate union, bargaining for its own interests, or as a part of the teachers' union. Middle management is never on the side of the board.

"Where in industry does the board of directors handle bargaining with employees? Where in industry are key managers exempted from any responsibility to support the management's position?

"It is time to rethink the whole education question and to demand that the educational establishment produce an effective system that truly focuses on the individual student and the needs of contemporary American society."

FARM BUREAU BOARD MEETS

—Mazie Myers, reporter

The board met January 23 at the Farm Bureau building.

Irene Nelson gave devotions, reading from Psalms. She also read a poem, "Canvas of Spring," and closed with the 23rd Psalm and pledge to the flag.

The 1978 general budget and list of committees were approved. It was voted to sponsor the WKJG FFA quiz program again this year.

On January 8-12, there were 550 Indiana people who attended the national convention in Houston, Texas, including our president, Francis Nelson, and his wife, Irene.

District fieldman David Hess described the machinery identification program. He reported that on March 23 at 6:30 p.m., there is a District II meeting at the 4-H center in Columbia City. This is a roast beef dinner.

Cricket's Corner.....

First impressions mean a lot. How many times have you heard that? We all know its truth and it applies to your home as well. For many of you, the first thing anyone sees when entering your home is the enclosed front porch. This can be turned into an attractive sunroom in summer with only a few additions. Colorful lawn furniture and lovely foliage house plants can transform your front porch into a decorative entry certain to impress your visitors.

It provides your plants with plenty of sun while protecting them from rain and over-exposure to the weather. If you are among the lucky ones who have time to read during the summer months, you can enjoy your greenery with a full view of the world outside your door.

Inexpensive shelves can be put together with red or white bricks and unfinished pressboard shelving acquired from a lumber yard. The larger plants may be displayed on the floor or raised on a single cement block.

This is a great opportunity to experiment with your own decorating talent if you are considering re-doing your home. Remember, first impressions do count and your front porch is no exception. People can learn much about you from the home you keep. Let that first impression be as good as possible.

146 pints of blood—that's the amazing record set by local residents at the Riverdale Bloodmobile Wednesday of this week.

Chairman Delores Hicov gave the happy report to The News along with the comment that the workers who man the Bloodmobile on a regular basis were somewhat amazed at the turnout "from a small community."

154 donors appeared at the Bloodmobile. Eight were not able to give for various medical reasons. 170 persons had indicated they would donate, meaning that 16 were "no-shows." However, this does not detract from the success of the local Bloodmobile this week. There was a momentary "hitch" in getting the total operation underway. But it was taken care of.

As an illustration of the loyalty of local donors, Mrs. Hicov said she received a telephone call from Jerry Baker at Auburn who said he couldn't make it to the Riverdale School. But he would give at Fort Wayne and Riverdale would be credited with his donation.

A complete report will be published, probably next week.

Fire Destroys Mobile Home

Local volunteer firemen were summoned Wednesday evening to the mobile home court at the east edge of town. MM John Ross and their five children, age 6 and under, were forced to flee from their rented mobile home when a fire of unknown origin began. The trailer was engulfed in flames when firemen arrived and was a total loss.

All the family's belongings were destroyed in the blaze and two puppies perished. However, the Ross family was unharmed.

No Injuries In 2-Car Accident

What would you do if you saw a car coming towards your car backwards on a state highway—and snow drifts were piled deep on the right-of-way?

That's the situation Leon Renfro, 17, of Auburn faced Wednesday on State Road 1 a mile south of Saint Joe.

Allen Patee, 26, of Leesburg was reportedly southbound on the highway, traveling at a high rate of speed at Rhoads' Corners. He lost control of the car and it spun around and rammed rear-first into the Renfro car. Apparently neither driver was injured but damage to both cars was estimated at $6,000. Patee was cited for driving left of center.

Cary Wade Earns 'Superior' Rating

Cary Wade, DeKalb Eastside High School band member, competed Saturday in the State Solo and Ensemble Contest at Arsenal Technical High School in Indianapolis. She received a "I" or "superior" rating.

Competing as a baritone saxophone soloist, Cary was the only student on that instrument to receive a superior rating. She played Johann Sebastian Bach's "If Thou Be Near," transcribed for baritone saxophone by Sigurd Rascher.

Cary started in the instrumental program when she was a fifth grader at Riverdale. She has been an active member of the band all through high school. She has participated in the marching band, concert band, pep band and dance band.

During the past summer, Cary was one of a group of Eastside students who attended a music camp at the University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kansas. She also attended the drum major school at Smith-Walbridge Camp at Syracuse, Indiana, and served as head drum major of the Eastside band during the marching season.

FARM BUREAU BOARD MEETS

—Mazie Myers, reporter

De Kalb County Farm Bureau board met February 27. Because of the energy crisis, the meeting was brief.

Mareta Mutzfeld gave devotions on Easter, "The Cross and the Lilies." She closed with prayer. All repeated the pledge to the flag.

Carl Deihl, membership chairman, reported that DeKalb County reached its quota.

The District II award meeting has been cancelled. It had been set for March 13.

The board voted to sponsor the WKJG FFA Quiz on Wayne Rothgeb's program again this year. The quiz will be on the air at 6:30 a.m. March 13, 14, 16, 17, 20 and 21 with the final on March 23. On March 29 at 6:30 a.m., the winners will compete with their fathers.

March 6 is a Farmers' Marketing Service meeting at the Hospitality Inn in Fort Wayne. There will be six meetings over the state.

Bruce Provines will give devotions in March.

Girl Scouts Selling Cookies

The program goes back many years. After baking their own cookies years ago, the commission of a large metropolitan council approached the president of a baking company about having cookies baked on a mass production basis. That was in the fall of 1933. An agreement was reached and vanilla cookies, in the shape of the Girl Scout insignia, went into production. The cookies were of the highest quality possible.

As years passed, the original vanilla cookie project developed into a project offering several different types of cookies. The cookie sale is still the main fund-raiser for Girl Scouts.

Today, the Limberlost Council is carrying on the tradition with a cookie sale March 3-12. Each troop in DeKalb, Adams, Allen, Huntington, Steuben and Wells counties receives 15 cents profit from every box they sell. Limberlost Council's profilt of 59 cents per box provides 40% of the annual budget.

The remaining 51 cents of the $1.25 box price is the baker's charge for preparing the cookies from baking to boxing.

Sectional Info

The postponed sectional basketball tourney for boys will be held at DeKalb Central High School Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, March 7, 8, 10 and 11 unless it is necessary to postpone again due to the coal strike.

Tournament season tickets only will be available in advance at a cost of $5. There are no reserved seats. Single session admission at the door will cost $1.75, if such tickets are available after season ticket sales.

Eastside has received an allotment of 445 season tickets, based on enrollment.

After parents of varsity players and varsity cheerleaders and varsity managers, athletic personnel, administration, school board, high school faculty and second team members and yell leaders have first chance for tickets Thursday of this week, and student season ticket holders and adult season ticket holders have Friday to buy sectional tickets, student and adult non-season ticket holders will have their chance Monday, March 6, until 4:30 p.m.

In case of further postponement, the tickets will be sold on the last three days school is in session prior to the first day of the tourney.

Garrett and Eastside meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday to open the sectional tourney.

Lisa 'Prep Of The Year'; Bob 'Coach Of The Year'

Lisa Johnson has been named "prep of the year" by the sports department of the Auburn Evening Star and Kendallvile News-Sun. The two newspapers make annual all-star selections in major sports in the area.

Also named to the area first team were Connie Oberlin and Amy Hampel of the Lady Blazers. Sunda Obendorf received a spot on the area second team.

Rounding out the first team (no pun intended) were Vickie Powell and Karen Lambright of Westview and Susie Thrapp of East Noble.

Other second team honors went to Val Hartman of DeKalb Central, Joyce Martin of Hamilton, Mary Linn of West Noble and Shag Sible of East Noble.

Lithe Lisa, standing at only 5'4", scored 400 points for an average of 23.5 points per game. She shot at 45% from the field and 58% at the free throw line. Of greater significance is the fact that she averaged nine rebounds per game, five assists and five steals.

Curvy Connie was the "workhorse" on the team, drawing the toughest assignments often in the defense department. She averaged 12 points a game, eight rebounds, three steals and two assists.

Adorable Amy averaged 12.9 points per game and six rebounds.

Did you know-

—that property tax exemptions can be filed in the auditor's office, as of March 1.

—that Indiana Senator Richard Lugar has called for Senate consideration of "reverse annuity mortgages," a way of providing older homeowners an additional source of retirement income. An older homeowner would receive either a lump sum or a series of payments from a lender, based on his equity in his home. No repayment is required until the homeowner dies or the home is sold. The Senator says the proposal differs from a second mortgage in that the latter may help the homeowner through a financial crisis but must be repaid within the lifetime of the homeowner out of his retirement income.. It would not be a government program but rather would be available from federally chartered savings and loan associations.

—that foster parents of DeKalb, LaGrange, Steuben, Noble, Wells and Whitley counties will meeet March 9 in the assembly room of the courthouse at Auburn to discuss "Sex and Sexuality." Time is 7:30 p.m.

—that Saint Joe will receive $6,573.94 from a $40 million appropriation passed by the Indiana House of Representatives for repair and maintenance of local streets.

—that the Indiana Agricultural Ethanol Steering Committee is prepared to review all applications for federally guaranteed loans for development of pilot grain alcohol projects, according to Lieutenant-Governor Robert D. Orr. The loan guarantees were authorized by Congress last summer in Section 1420 of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977.

—that Mose Yeiser is back home again after recent surgery.

—that Indiana Senator Richard Lugar has criticized the removal of David Marston, United States Attorney in Philadelphia, as a purely political move contrary to the public interest. Marston, a Republican, was ousted, to be replaced by a Democrat, after having successfully brought to the courts a number of politicians involved in corrupt practices. President Carter campaigned in 1976 on a promise of restoring the merit system within the U.S. judicial system. After gaining office, he has, however, brought about a mass removal of U.S. attorneys of Republican politics and replaced them with Democrats. A number of nationally syndicated columnsts have criticized the President's broken campaign pledge.

—that Private Eugene R. Browand of Auburn was recently assigned as a telecommunications specialist with the 13th Corps Support Command at Fort Hood, Texas.

—that the 5th Annual Rock and Gem Show of the Eastern Indiana Gem and Geological Society will be held April 21, 22 and 23 at the National Guard Armory in Richmond.

—that 15,000 questionnaires sent to Hoosier business last October by Senator Richard Lugar show that federal legislation is blamed for forcing many businesses to terminate pension plans for their employees and for discouraging others from initiating benefit plans. Spring is....
The snow is here,
So pretty and bright.
But it won't last
Much through the night.
Spring is just around the bend,
Garden seeds are now the trend.
The piles of snow
Will soon be gone (we hope)
Then comes the robin
With a bright new song.
So remember, spring will soon be here,
Our seeds are in—planting time is growing near.

Town Board

The town board of Saint Joe met Monday night at 6:30 p.m. Present were president Butch Coburn, members Loretta Loy and Fred Rayle, clerk-treasurer Emma Frank and visitors MM Jim Norris, Jim Miller and Ted Haberkorn.

Mrs. Loy again expressed her opposition to Brad Thomas as town attorney due to his "conflict of interests" in connection with the board and town affairs.

It was reported that efforts to open catch basins were futile due to ice and hard-packed snow. Such opening is sought in order to take care of the water when snow and ice melt.

Mrs. Loy said she spent five hours at a meeting which provided taxing units with the opportunity to apply for grants of federal funds to cover 75% of the cost of snow removal following the recent storm. Saint Joe will receive just under $1,800. The town had been billed for almost $2,400 for snow removal.

The board plans to do some grading at the fire hall in order to create a parking area covered with crushed limestone.

The traffic hazard on State Road 1 Wednesdays and Saturdays was discussed. Customers at the local damaged-foodstuffs outlet at Saint Joe must park on the highway right-of-way. The board is attempting to work out a solution in cooperation with the business owner.

It was decided to seek bids on park and cemetery mowing on a separate basis for the coming summer. Weed-killing came into the discussion also.

The board is going to investigate chemicals for mosquito control. It was noted that since banning of DDT, mosquito control has not been very effective.

The board expressed appreciation for Paul Freeburn's assistance in obtaining federal funds for snow-removal reimbursement. He is the Civil Defense Director. Appreciation was also expressed for the cooperation of Wally Graham, County Highway Superintendent.

The board is seeking someone to serve as dog warden. Larry Mason has resigned due to conflicts with his work schedule and his bookings for his exotic pets exhibition.

The position is not a "money-maker." It is one of community service. The dog warden receives $150 per year plus $7.50 a day for keeping strays a maximum of three days. If no one claims the stray or no one offers to take the stray as a pet, it is taken to an Auburn veterinarian for disposal.

Among the bills allowed Monday night was one for $12,240 for Clyde Williams & Associates for part of phase one of the local sewage disposal project. Phase one includes preparation of a preliminary report, plans, specifications and recommendations. Though the federal government has not yet approved a grant for the local project, it was explained that the $12,240 would be federal funds.

A lengthy discussion was held concerning the poor relations between the town board, the fire department and the local newspaper. The editor read a paragraph from an unsigned letter he received last week in which the wording appeared to place the blame for "controversy" on the newspaper because of its editorials. The editor stated that the controversy already existed; and what has appeared in the paper has been based on facts provided by various individuals. He noted that when he sought information recently about a fire meeting and its purpose, he was lied to.

Everyone at the meeting participated in the discussion about the matter. Mrs. Frank apologized for the wording of the letter, which had been approved by the town attorney, and said it was not intended to place the blame for town problems on the local newspaper. The editor addressed each town official by name and said, "I don't like the way things have been between us. It's just no good."

The open and frank discussion appeared to clear the air and provide an improved relationship between town officials and the fire department, and the local newspaper.

Numbering of houses in town was discussed, since street signs have now been installed. S ch numbering is said to be a help in emergency situations. The editor suggested that numbers may already be assigned to town lots, going back many years, and this should be investigated before someone is contacted about doing the job.

Other town bills allowed included: Brown Furniture & Hardware, materials 34.95; The Saint Joe Post Office, postage 13.00; Volunteer Firemen's Insurance Company, 463.00; DeKalb County Farm Bureau, fuel oil 45.94; I&M, street lights, 290.58; Merritt, Inc., trash collection 331.50.

Waterworks—Bill Mansfield, labor 45.90; I&M 121.13.

Every DeKalb County resident is encouraged to exercise their right to vote. Those who are not registered in their home precinct should taken advantage of next Tuesday's voter registration day.

The recent Bloodmobile at Riverdale Elementary School was a big success. 146 pints of blood were donated. Those who appeared at the Bloodmobile were first registered. Then, above, various tests were conducted to establish the donor's ability to give blood. Donors proceded from station to station. Another view is shown below only a half hour after the Bloodmobile opening. Already a steady stream of donors was evident.

Larry Myers Is Sheriff Candidate

LARRY MYERS, MATTHEW, JENNIFER and CHRISTIE

Larry, Myers, a deputy in the DeKalb County sheriff's department and a veteran of nearly eight years in the department, has announced his candidacy on the Republican ticket for the office of sheriff of DeKalb County.

Mr. Myers has been with the county police department since June 1, 1970, and has experience in all aspects of law enforcement with that department. In announcing his candidacy, he said, "I believe in professionalism in law enforcement, fairness coupled with the ability to get the job done, and a sound program of education for all law enforcement personnel. These things are essential to the type of sheriff's department the people of DeKalb County expect and deserve."

Mr. Myers is a graduate of the Indiana Law Enforcement Training Board Region II Academy and is certified by the same board as a VASCAR operator in the state of Indiana. He is also certified by the Indiana Department of Toxicology as a Chemical Test Operator and by the Indiana Department of Natural Resources as a Hunter Safety Instructor. He has attended the University of Louisville's Southern Police Institute and several in-service training seminars presented by the County Prosecuting Attorney's office.

Mr. Myers feels that law enforcement officers are an integral part of the community and should take an active part in its affairs. He is a member of St. Mark Lutheran Church of Auburn and has served as secretary of the church council the past three years. He is a member of the Auburn Lions Club, the Indiana Sheriffs' Association, the Auburn YMCA, the Northeastern Indiana Trout Association and is a past commissioner for the Boy Scouts of America.

The candidate was born May 17, 1949, and has lived his entire life in DeKalb County and the Auburn area. He is a graduate of Auburn High School, attended Hanover College and IU-PU of Fort Wayne majoring in business administration.

Mr. Myers is married. He and his wife, Christie, have two children who attend East Auburn Elementary School.

Cricket's Corner.....

One of my favorite flowering plants is the jasmine. These beautiful plants are native to the warmer climates of the world but can be grown successfully here in Indiana, if you see to it they have proper sunlight.

A jasmine is, according to the dictionary, any of several oleaceous shrubs or vines of the genus 'jasinum', having fragrant flowers. Their flowers are small, white clusters that will come in winter or spring, depending on the type.

To maintain a healthy plant, be sure it has at least four hours of direct sunlight. The temperatures suitable to your specific plant will vary according to its type. Keep the soil moist but be sure not to overwater. The feeding of your plant is very important. Be sure you feed it often. If you wish to plant it outside in the summer, prune it back and keep it no taller than three feet. It is not a good idea for you to try to propagate it at home since this is a tricky operation for an amateur.

The fruits of your labors will be one of the most enhancing fragrances you have ever experienced. A jasmine can fill your room with the scent of the orient.

Happiness Is...

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

BEING AFRAID

When we were children, my brother and I used to hang out of our second story windows in our home. Now this fancy circus trick was not known by our mother until one day we saw her sweeping the sidewalks as we hung from the heights.

Letting go with one hand and holding on by the other, we waved and called out, "Hey, Mom! Look at us!"

She calmly told us to get back inside. And we did. But by the time we had reached the interior of our room, Mother was coming up the steps. She came into our room and began to hit us with the broom handle, at the same time telling us, "Don't ever hang from those windows again. You might fall and get hurt."

When she left us, we used to talk about the fact that we were hurt more by Mom at that time than all the previous times we had hung from the window.

Up till that time, we were not afraid to hang from that window. After that encounter with Mom, we were afraid of being caught and getting hurt the hard way.

But Mom taught us something. There are times to be afraid when danger is near. But you have to know the danger. At that age, we didn't understand. Later we knew to avoid potential dangers. The lesson hurt us at the time, but I'm sure it taught us the right lesson.

Happiness is . . . being afraid.

Ladies Lit'y Club

—Violette Kline, reporter

Gentlemen's evening of the Ladies Literary Club was held with a dinner at Richard's Restaurant at 6:30 p.m. Mrs. Carl Perkins said grace. Mrs. Harold Hamman welcomed the guests.

Several musical selections were given by MM David Kurtz which everyone enjoyed. Mrs. Hamman introduced Mrs. Kurtz who works for the DeKalb County Preschool For the Handicapped at the Auburn United Methodist Church. She showed many slides and talked about her work.

Mrs. Roy Baker gave a talk on "Cupid."

The committee for the evening was Mrs. Hamman and Mrs. Baker.

For Bible evening, Mrs. Robert Musser gave a book review of "The Sins of Herod" by Frank Slaughter. She gave the history of Herod in the time of Christ and the resurrection.

County Council meeting is at Garrett United Methodist Church March 16 at 1 p.m.

Mrs. Baker gave critic's report. After adjournment the hostess served light refreshments.

Larry Thrush

Larry Thrush is a familiar face throughout DeKalb County. For 5½ years as first deputy and 4½ years before that, Mr. Thrush has spent countless hours patrolling the county highways, fulfilling his responsibility as a law enforcement officer.

Law enforcement does not always bring pleasant circumstances. "A job in law enforcement is no place to 'win friends and influence people'," he said in announcing his candidacy. "It sometimes brings you in conflict with your neighbors. Understanding that an officer has a job to do always helps. But one of the most rewarding aspects of the job, I guess, is that over the years, the ones with whom you have the strongest differences can develop into the closest friends."

The sheriff candidate grew up in Butler Township, attending classes in the Garrett school system. He completed two years at St. Francis College at Fort Wayne as a business education major. He is a charter member of the Indiana Law Enforcement Training Academy, attended the Southern Police Institute Drug Enforcement Course at the University of Louisville and is certified as a police training instructor which required completing a course directed by the FBI under the auspices of the Indiana Law Enforcement Training Board.

Mr. Thursh notes, "I've attended the seminars and in-training courses necessary to keep me abreast of the changes in law enforcement."

"My specialized training in drug enforcement," he said, "was applied to DeKalb County primarily in helping to organize the law enforcement agencies on city, county and state levels in order to approach the problem of drug trafficking and drug abuse."

As an instrument rated commercial pilot with flight instructor certification, the primary candidate used his experience in conducting surveillance and search flights on several occasions.

Mr. Thrush's political interests prompted him to run for Butler Township precinct committeeman, a post he has held for four years. His work in his precinct changed a close Democrat edge in 1974 to an overwhelming Republican vote in 1976.

"My political work never interferes with my job," Mr. Thrush adds. "We're all living in the same community and good law enforcement is for the county as a whole. I consider the people in the county to be my friends, and impartiality in my job is mandatory."

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Note to Anne (Kagey) Haglund, up there in Wisconsin:

Help! I have only one more "Cricket" to go.

—And now you know who has been writing "Cricket's Corner."

The voter registration day Tuesday kinda fizzled here. It looks like a lack of communications or a mixup of signals. Unfortunately, some prospective voters who showed up at the fire hall found the door locked and no one there to take their registration.

That's too bad. Here we get a response from the new, young residents in this area (and there are a lot of them)—and then a mixup occurs.

I tried to find out what the score was late Tuesday afternoon, but had little success.

It wasn't the fire department's fault; the firemen were not in charge of registration. A reference to the "cooperation" of fire departments in the county (appearing in last week's article about registration) meant only that firemen were helping to make fire hall facilities available. They were not doing the registering.

If you know of anyone who tried to register here Tuesday, urge them to go to the court house in Auburn and register at the clerk's office, second floor.

With their card of thanks appearing elsewhere in this issue, Anne Beebe had a little note:

"I sure have missed our paper this winter."

Delivery of the paper was so erratic last winter in Florida that Bill said "skip it" this year. (Now, George, don't get all upset; I'm only going by what folks tell me. And some others have told me they get their paper in Florida regular as clockwork. I guess it just depends on where you are.)

From Mel and Phyllis Grussing, former residents of this area.

"Nice to hear the announcement early on WOWO and then see and hear you on Channel 21."

I hear the women were "gaga" last week when Mac Berry and Tran Van Kha stopped in at the local restaurant after shooting pictures at the News Office for Channel 21's report on the paper's 95th anniversary and my 30th.

The way I get it, Missy Alday, who works at the Bita General Store, happened to be in the restaurant, as was Rose Gfeller. Missy coaxed Wanda Coburn into letting her take the men's order. Rose held out for the privilege of taking the order to the table.

Shirley Mack was there at the time also, but evidently she got outvoted or something. Then in comes Mary Beatty and she strikes up a conversation with Mac and Tran.

Incidentally, Tran is from Vietnam and has been in the states for only three years. He is cameraman for Mac's interview segments.

After hearing about the incident, and after attending the Girl Scout awards program Tuesday night, I am happy to report that, despite women's lib, the ERA and so on, basically girls are still girls.

I think they could nickname the troop the "Giggle Group."

The death of Bill Hudson had its sobering effect on more people than just his immediate family, according to our son, Mike. He and Butch Coburn reminisced at the restaurant about Bill's coaching days in Little League activities years ago. Such reminiscing shows the truth in that the sadness of death is matched, and hopefully overcome, by pleasant memories.

Michelle Freese Is Top Speller

Out of 30 finalists in the fifth and sixth grades at Riverdale Elementary School, the winner was Michelle Freese. The students were competing for the honor of representing Riverdale in the Journal-Gazette Spelling Contest.

The missed word she spelled correctly was "abundance" and the winning word was "aisle."

Michelle's spelling teacher is Rowena Moore.

Roxanne Ross was runnerup. She is the daughter of MM Ronald Ross of Saint Joe. Her spelling teacher also is Rowena Moore.

The DeKalb County Spelling Bee is scheduled for Tuesday, April 11, at the Butler Elementary School cafetorium. Charles Hampel is in charge.

Starting time is set for 7:30 p.m. but may be changed due to the coal strike.

March 20 Is National 'Ag Day'

The special day will be observed Monday, March 20, the fifth anniversary of "Ag Day." The observance is planned and coordinated by ag leaders and members of the Ag Day Foundation.

The purpose is to create interest in and understanding of agriculture and the part agriculture producers play in delivering food and fiber products to American consumers. The continuing progress of agriculture, in the facee of the problems and challenges it faces, is of great importance—if the American lifestyle is to be maintained.

Activities for March 20 are being coordinated throughout the country at the local level.

Bill Hudson

Funeral services were held Wednesday at the Spencerville United Methodist Church for William J. Hudson, 59, a lifelong resident of Spencerville. He died Sunday at Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne. Cause of death was not immediately determined.

Mr. Hudson was a foreman at Rieke Corporation at Auburn and a veteran of World War II. He had recently announced his candidacy for a seat on the DeKalb eastern school board.

He and Charlotte Tucker married December 27, 1947, in North Manchester.

The deceased was a member of the order of the Eastern Star, the Scottish Rite, the American Legion Post at Leo, Concord Lodge F&AM and the Spencerville United Methodist Church.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Michael of Arlington Heights, Illinois, and William Mark at home; four daughters, Patricia Houser of Columbia City, Peggy Kennedy of Indianapolis, Kathleen Baker of Kendallville and Anita at home; and three grandchildren.

Also surviving are a brother, Harold, of Spencerville, and a sister, Garnet Furnish, of Spencerville. Another brother, Hubert, died two years ago.

Rev. Terry Rhine officiated at the funeral and burial was in White City Cemetery.

PO Hours Changed

Hours at the local post office have been changed again, and probably will change again once the coal miners go back to work.

Starting Monday, the star route will go back to its previous delivery and pickup schedule.

Office hours will be:

Monday through Friday—lobby opens at 7 a.m., and closes at 4:30 p.m. Window service 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. except closed 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. for lunch hour.

Saturday—lobby open 7 a.m. to 10 a.m.; window service 8 a.m. to 10 a.m.

Mail to be dispatched during the week should be in before 4 p.m. Mail not brought to the post office Saturdays before closing time can be placed in the courtesy box, to be picked up at 4 p.m.

Lois Lichtsinn Heads Drive

Lois Lichtsinn of R1 Spencerville has been selected as chairman of the 1978 Bike-A-Thon for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital She has agreed to head a campaign locally to support the only research center dedicated exclusively to conquering childhood cancer and other deadly diseases of children.

The Bike-A-Thon is planned for April 15. In case of rain, it will be held April 22.

St. Jude's was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas. It is non-sectarian, non-discriminatory and provides treatment free of charge to patients admitted after referral by a doctor. Discoveries in leukemia and solid tumors of children have already brought it international acclaim by the medical profession.

School Board Meets Monday

The DeKalb eastern school board will meet in executive session Monday at 7 p.m., prior to its regular open session at 8 p.m.

The executive session is to review an application for the office of school superintendent. Present Superintendent Kenneth Cole has indicated in recent months his intent to retire when his current contract expires.

Another topic at the executive session will be an evaluation by elementary principal Charles Ray of the elementary faculty.

At the open public session, the agenda will include consideration of Mr. Ray's recommendations; discuss on whether or not to drop out of the ACAC and enter the NECC; consideration of recommendations from the classroom teachers association, through a letter from Nelson Cairl, of ways to make up for lost instruction time due to the recent heavy snow; need for a board directive to dismiss by letter all teachers who are on temporary contracts; polling of board members concerning attendance at the April 19 Region III ISBA-IAPSS spring meeting at Fort Wayne; and any other business that may come before the board.

TV Coverage Recognizes 30th-95th Anniversaries Of Editor And 'The News'

The month of March, 1978, marks the 30th year of the present editor in that position and the 95th year of existence of the Saint Joe News.

A feature article by Dave Kurtz of the Auburn Evening Star appeared in that paper and in the Kendallville News-Sun.

As a result of that article, two Fort Wayne TV stations, channels 21 and 33, presented special-feature segments on their regular news broadcasts. Channel 21's feature was seen last Friday evening while channel 33 aired its feature Tuesday night of this week.

"Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

"I read with a great deal of interest the article in the Kendallville News-Sun dated Mar. 6, 1978 'St. Joe News is 95 years old.' The paragraph 'The first publishers of the News were Mort and Will Olds, who started it as a free handout in 1883' caught my eye and memories started rolling. Mort and Will Olds were older brothers of my father, Arthur B. Olds, all sons of Samuel N. Olds and his wife Mary Caroline (who are buried in the St. Joe cemetery).

"I remember when the Aunts and Uncles gathered in our home, when I was a child, how the talk turned so many times to their early days in Spencerville and St. Joe. My Aunts were Mary Olds Dills, (Mrs. Jack); Lena Olds McClaren, (Mrs. Wm.); and Nellie Olds Bishop, (Mrs. John).

"I wonder if in the old files there might be one of the old sheets put out by Uncle Mort and Uncle Will—and if one might be able to make a 'ditto' copy of it. I have a copy of 'History of Spencerville' by Dr. Willis Carey, published in 1952, which says Mort Olds went to St. Joe in 1880 and started the St. Joe News in 1884.

"Thank you for the write up and the picture which bro't back these recollections.

Sincerely,
Esther Olds Ferst (daughter of Arthur B. Olds)
R3, LaGrange, Ind. 46761"

The local paper actually began publication in 1883 and was issued every two weeks, according to information in old issues. The News does not have a copy of the very first issue. However, it does have later issues of 1883. And using the issue number in papers on hand, the month of March has been assumed to be the first month of publication.

In 1887, the paper became a subscription publication and distribution was by mail, as is the case yet today.

The editor anticipated public interest in the old paper and is in the process of making arrangements to have exact reproductions made available to the public. Additional information will come later.

Coordinated Trustee-Board-Public Brings Spencer Township New $49,000 Fire Truck-Equipment

Careful planning by Spencer Township Trustee Harold Murphy has resulted in the purchase of a new fire truck for the township. Cost of the chassis and fire-fighting equipment thereon is around $49,000.

Last fall Mr. Murphy advertised for bids on the equipment. He also held a public meeting attended by about 50 people, at which questions and comments were sought in the matter. By that public participation the trustee and advisory board apparently received public support and participation to justify the large expenditure. The advisory board includes Gale Bowser, Lavon Hart and Carl Perkins.

Mr. Murphy recalls that "all but about two" at the public meeting favored the project.

The total cost will be paid for by a township tax levy during the next six years. For many years, the Spencerville Volunteer Fire Department, Inc., provided for its needs through a voluntary levy on township households of $5 per year. Additional money was raised from time to time through fund-raising projects.

With the great increase in prices in recent years, however, the annual "dues" system simply could not provide sufficient funds to upgrade the department with a new truck.

The new rig will have a tilt-cab Chevrolet chassis. The tank and other equipment will be installed by the FMC company of Tipton, Indiana. There will be low and high pressure pumps to vary water flow from a normal stream to a misty "fog."

Delivery is not expected until around the first of August. Then there will be a two-day training school for the firemen when the truck is finished.

To give an illustration of what has happened to prices, the town of Saint Joe purchased a new chassis and equipment just ten years ago, in 1968. The price: between $14,000 and $15,000.

4-H Council

The DeKalb County 4-H Council has reorganized for the coming year.

Chairman for the 27-member policy committee is Bill Lepper of R1 Hicksville. Harold Douglas of Hamilton is vice-chairman. Barbara Goldsmith serves as secretary, Connie Bry treasurer and Dave Martin a member of the board.

August 3 through 7 has been chosen as the 1978 summer exhibit date.

The council makes policy for the local 4-H program with representation from local sponsoring committees, extension homemakers.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to thank our friends and family for cards and flowers sent to us while we were shut in with the flu. Each remembrance helped to brighten our day. Thank you.

'Disaster' Funds Make Beggars

I know it's a losing battle to point some of these things out. But I feel duty-bound as an observer of local, state and national affairs to express a fear and a disappointment.

The fear is that MORE governmental control is coming our way despite what many average Americans say in their dislike of governmental intrusion into their daily lives.

The disappointment is in that a lot of "independence-willed" people in this country today are helping to bring greater governmental intrusion into private and community existence.

I am amazed at the helter-skelter patter brought on by the announcement that the federal government would pay 75% of the cost of snow removal after the recent big snow. Cities, towns, school corporations and states have been figuratively falling over one another in the rush to get that federal money.

The one big question is: how can the federal government, with an annual budget deficit of $60 billion a year now, hand out any money for "emergency" situations? If you read the newspapers regularly, you should be aware of the fact that virtually every storm of any consequence, every flood of any consequence, ANY adversity of any consequence, brings a declaration of a state of emergency from the appropriate official or officials. What happened to the "do-it-yourself" idea that is an indication of independence???

Last summer, when I was being taken to the doctor during my illness, I heard a news cast on which Indiana had been declared a disaster area due to heavy spring rains. I was dumbfounded. We were driving along State Road 8 and we were surrounded by rich green color in field after field. Yet, DeKalb County was included in the "disaster area."

Yes, there were places where seeding had been destroyed by standing water. However, the overwhelming majority of acreage was covered with rich green growing crops.

I was not the only one last summer who commented about the situation.

The frightening thing is that we have a generation of young people growing up in the current atmosphere of having every adversity taken care of by the government. —And that means using someone else's tax money in addition to your own. —And that breeds the cancerous outlook that "if we don't take it, somebody else will" in the area of governmental assistance.

If we examine our troubles of today—the coal strike, the other strikes which occur at contract negotiation time, the extremely large expense in the operation of government at the state and national levels, the financial weakness of the Social Security program, the opportunity to NOT work and yet receive a liveable income from unemployment compensation—if we examine all these areas, a common fault stands out. And that is that the unsound philosophy of "every adversity can and should be taken care of for me so I don't lose anything" has taken over the American mind.

People say they don't want government meddling in their private lives; then they turn right around and look for a handout of some sort when adversity arises.

Did you ever consider how this condition chews away at our Judeo-Christian foundation of America? Consider this: why should a church member or denomination provide a helping hand to anyone when there is a government program in existence which will provide for virtually every type of need? To a certain extent, our quest for "security through government" has taken away the only lasting security possible. And that is through our dependence upon one another made possible, strangely enough, through our individual INdependence.

Federal aid and state aid for disasters are, in many instances, disasters themselves, because they make beggars out of our citizens.

Lewis McCartney

Former Garrett police officer Lewis A. McCartney has filed for the position of DeKalb County Sheriff on the Democrat ticket. Mr. McCartney, a resident of R2 Avilla, served on the Garrett Police Department for five years, from 1962 to 1967.

Currently employed by B.F. Goodrich at Woodburn as a trucker and in the stock pool, McCartney also has received many training classes through the county police program while on the police force.

Mr. McCartney is married to the former Shirley McDaniel and they are the parents of seven children. There are also six grandchildren.

Mr. McCartney is a member of the DeKalb County Farm Bureau and attends the Cedar Creek Church. He is past mem-

Mr. McCartney is a veteran of World War II, serving in the tank corps.

Jeff Carper

Jeff Carper, an Auburn insurance agent, has announced that he is seeking the nomination for Representative in the Indiana House from the 13th District on the Democrat ticket.

The 13th District includes all of Steuben and DeKalb counties plus one township in LaGrange County and one township in Allen County.

Carper said, "I have grown up in this area, I have gone to school here, have been involved in civic groups in the area, and have worked for the last seven years as an insurance consultant in Auburn and the surrounding community. I feel that I understand this district and can be the kind of strong representative it needs and deserves."

Mr. Carper is an active member and a past president of the Auburn JCs. He is a graduate of DeKalb Central High School and attended Tri-State College at Angola. He was an active athlete, participating in football, baseball, track and gymnastics. He was captain of the gymnastic team.

At present he serves as deacon at the Auburn Presbyterian Church. He is married to Alaina Carper. They have two children, ages 2 and 5.

Cricket's Corner.....

Several years ago I was the proud owner of the most beautiful geranium in the world. Or at least I thought so. I had tenderly nursed it back to health after a long siege of neglect in my brother's bedroom in mother's house. I was so proud of that plant. Then . . . it was attacked by an army of indoor pests (not the neighbor's children). Oh, how the poor plant suffered. Perhaps you, too, from one time to another, are stricken with these little monsters. The cure is simple and can apply to a variety of tiny animals.

First, take your plant outside and wash it gently in slightly warm, soapy water. Rinse it, let it dry, then spray with malathion. When the spray dries, wash the plant again with clear water. This should rid you of the little beasts. Sorry to say, if this does not work, you will be forced to get rid of your plant so it will not infect the others in your indoor garden. But don't worry; this should do the trick.

P.S. My geranium lived.

Happiness Is...

GIVING

Perhaps you have seen that cryptic picture of Watts, the painter, which bears the title, "Sic Transit Gloria Mundi" (So passes away the glory of the world). It is a very strange picture. It represents simply a bier with a shroud thrown over the silent form lying on it in death. You cannot see the man's face except the outlines of it through the white shroud.

All around the picture are the little emblems that tell the story of his life. He was fond of art. He was a man of wealth. He had the best culture of his day. All that the world speaks of as riches had entered into this life and this is all there is of it at the last.

To tell his story, the painter has painted around the three sides of the picture these three inscriptions:

"What I spent, I had; what I kept, I lost; what I gave, I have."

Some day we shall realize that and know that all we put into this most unselfish enterprise of helping others is all that we shall have to count as our own in the day of judgment.

". . . Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me" (Matthew 25:-40).

Happiness is . . . giving.

Great Lakes Bible College Concert Choir To Appear

The Great Lakes Bible College Concert Choir, under the direction of Shockley Flick, will appear in concert at the Edgerton Church of Christ on March 24 at 7:30 p.m. The church is located at 224 Laubach Drive at Edgerton.

The concert choir, a group of 40 young people who are studying for some phase of the leadership ministry, will sing a variety of sacred music. This year their repertoire includes classics, hymn arrangements, spirituals and gospel songs. The program will feature the men as they sing gospel quartet arrangements by Ralph Carmichael and the women will sing inspiring and joyful numbers.

The message of the concert centers on the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ. This moving dramatization shows some of the suffering of Christ contrasted with the jubilant resurrection.

Great Lakes Bible College is located in Lansing, Michigan. It is supported by Christian Churches and Churches of Christ and prepares students in a four-year degree program for specialized work in church-related vocations. The school offers degree programs in Bible, Christian Ministries, Christian Education and Music.

The public is invited to share and participate in this spirit-lifting concert. There is no admission charge, but an offering will be taken for the college.

'ST. JOE! It's Past, Present And Future.' - As recorded in this paper in 1884

A review of old-time issues of The Saint Joe News brings inte.e.ting reading. Among the articles noted from past issues is one contained in the "big" eight-page issue of February 9, 1884, (and each page was 7 inches wide by 10½ inches deep).

Ed.tor Mort Olds brought his readers up-to-date with the headline (as quoted above) "ST. JOE! It's Past, Present and Future."

The article reads as follows:

" Many are the changes that have taken place in this vicinity within the last eight years. At that time there was no railroad, and the land whereon the beautiful little village of St. Joe now sets, was used for farming purposes. The only house near here at that time was the one now standing opposite the depot, and owned by the railroad company. To-day there are nearly one hundred and forty buildings, among them some as good dwellings and business rooms as there is in the county. Eight years ago only one family resided here, while to-day between three and four hundred people find homes and employment within the limits of the town. When the railroad was first built, and there was talk of starting a town here, some of the wise ones shook their heads, and said, its no use, it will never make any thing of a place. But, nothwithstanding all that, it has had a slow, but steady and permanent growth, until now it ranks among the cleanest, neatest and most enterprising young towns of the county. We have endeavored, in a crude way, to present to our readers this week, a plat of the town, showing some of the business houses, hotel, school house, mills &c. The location of the following places are designated on the diagram by the capital letters:

"A Leighty's Hotel,
B Leighty's & Bishop's Store.
O Church.
D Conrad's Tin & Hardware store.
E Testison's Grocery.
F Patterson's Drug Store.
H Case & Olds' Store.
K S. & F. Barney's Store.
L Wineland's Handle Factory,
N Filley & Lounsberry's Saw and Planing Mill.
P School House.
T St. Joe Brick Works.
U Grain Elevator.
V Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Depot.
W Fales Furniture Rooms.
Y A good place for a Grist Mill.

"In addition to the above there are two wagon shops, two good meat markets, two boot and shoe shops, one blacksmith shop, two livery and feed stables, one good barber shop, one millinery shop, one cooper shop, one saloon, two contractors, three painters, two masons and plasterers, two lumber dealers, two doctors &c. Leighty's Hall is a large room 24 x 70 feet in size, seated with chairs, and is well adapted for concerts lectures, suppers &C. The G.A.R's have an organization here, with a large membership. Good Sunday school and church facilities are afforded, and taking it upon the whole, St. Joe is a very desirable place to locate in."

Mr. Olds provided illustrations for his readers in those days by carving on a block of wood. He provides an illustration in this manner to show the location of the above designated businesses. Unfortunately, The News at the moment cannot present his hand-ma.e diagram but such reproduction may be presented in the future.

A Leighty's Hotel - now the residence of MM Estil Taylor on main street (Washington Street, State Road 1)

B Leighty's & Bishop's Store —the corner where the Nosey Nook Auction House is now located

O Church—corner where St. Mark Lutheran Church is located

D Conrad's Tin & Hardware Store—now the grassy yard portion of St. Mark church on the west side of the church property

E Testison's Grocery—now the east side of Brown Furniture & Hardware devoted to furniture showrooms (that portion of Brown's which was the News Office from 1900 until the spring of 1967)

F Patterson's Drug Store, H Case & Olds' Store, K S. & F. Barney's Store—the area now between MM Bob Chew's residence through Lonnie Keeler's residence, Jiggs Motor Service and Noel Auction Sales, on the north side of the main street between Second Street (Widney Avenue) and Third Street.

L Wineland's Handle Factory —what is now a vacant lot just west of Ila Coburn's North Side Doll Hospital on the north side of the railroad track.

P School house—where the Concord Township school buildings stood until about ten years ago, on the rise just east of the present lighted ball diamond.

T St. Joe Brick Works—about a half block west of the Freida Guilford residence on the north side of West Washington Street.

U Grain Elevator—whe e the St. Joe Elevator is now located.

V Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Depot—just west of the St. Joe Elevator (the depot was la er located about three blocks west of the original location).

W Fales Furniture Rooms—the present location of Doc and Jackie Wertman's residence on the north side of the main street at School Street.

Locating the old business places in terms of Saint Joe today is "approximate." Mr. Olds' map may or may not have been to scale. But at least today's local residents have an idea of Saint Joe business in 1884.

What is most significant is the growth in eight years from just one house (and no railroad) to 140 homes and businesses. Saint Joe is one of many towns and cities across the nation whose existence originates with the construction of a railroad.

Pinewood Derby Winners

The award for best decorated racer went to Troy Ruckman.

Participation in the derby is based on the Cubs' building a race card with the basic materials of a chunk of pine wood, four wheals, and axles.

The pack's annual spring paper drive will be held Saturday, April 8. For special pickup, call 238-4252, 337-5290 or 337-5173.

Tourney Split

Checks have been issued to the eight teams in the recently completed DeKalb boys sectional tourney in the amount of $13,286.09. Each school received money on a pro rata share and an enrollment basis. The following amounts were issued to each school: Angola, $1,867.20; DeKalb 2,345.77; Eastside, 1,644.14; Fremont 1,372.79; Garrett, 1,6-28.25; Hamilton, 1,264.59; Leo, 1,556.69; and Prairie Heights, 1,706.66.

Total attendance at the four-day tourney was 10,682 with the Friday night crowd being the largest. The 1978 attendance is the lowest since the tournament has been held at DeKalb High School.

Total income of $16,775.50 was received with expenses of $3,-489.41. The greatest expenses 9.41. The greatest expenses were referees, custodial help, inside supervision, and printing. The IHSAA's share was 212.75.

GS Troop 29

A Court of Awards was held March 14 at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe.

The program opened with a flag ceremony by the Born Free Patrol. Penny Graves recited a patriotic poem and Laurie Myers played a flute solo. The girls then sang "G For Generosity."

Joan Sechler played "Elevator" as a piano solo. A tap dance to the tune of Easter Parade was presented by Liat Osmun and Jennie and Julie Hollabaugh. A humorous "midget" skit was performed by Ellen Garman and Liat Osmun. Tammy VanDyke performed an interpretive dance to close the program.

Refreshments were served to those present.

School Board

Monday night the DeKalb eastern school board accepted one of four classroom teachers' suggestions to help make up for 14 days when school was cancelled due to heavy snow. The one acceptable suggestion was to make April 5 a full day of school instead of a half-day. The original calendar had the day designated as a half-day of teacher training in the afternoon.

Three other suggestions were rejected. They included: cancelling all field trips, eliminating the annual outdoor "Field Day" events and cancelling achievement tests.

Due to a legal technicality in present school law, all temporarily-contracted teachers must be dismissed before May 1. This does not mean they cannot be re-hired. Superintendent Kenneth Cole said he would deliver such notification to affected teachers personally so that he can explain the technicality to avoid misunderstanding.

Charles Hampel, a member of the Butler Elementary faculty, has requested consideration as a candidate for the office of superintendent. Mr. Cole plans to retire next year.

Consideration is being continued on the suggestion that Eastside withdraw from the Allen County Athletic Conference and join the Northeast Corner Conference in athletic competition. It is felt that Eastside would be competing with schools closer to its enrollment by such a move.

'Tornado Alert' Drill This Friday

Guy Mausteller
DeKalb County Civil Defense Public Relations Director

All fire departments in DeKalb County will run a tornado alert on Friday, March 24, at 7:00 p.m. This test is given so that the public will know what the siren means and what to do. This article will have follow-up information over the next two to three weeks which will be vitally important, so watch your newspapers.

1. During this test or for actual alert, the siren will run steadily for THREE MINUTES. This will notify the public that a tornado has been sighted within our area and so proper action should be taken concerning safety.

2. When the weather service gives an all-clear signal, an all-clear siren may or may not be used, as this is left to the discretion of each fire department.

Chief Fred Rayle of St. Joe-Concord Twp. Dept. says that there WOULD NOT be an all-clear siren used at his station. Spencerville Dept. Chief Robert Moore informed us that his station would run an all-clear siren for ONE MINUTE.

For an actual alert, fire departments will be on the street with full instructions for those persons without safety shelters.

Great Lakes Bible College Concert Choir To Appear

The Great Lakes Bible College Concert Choir, under the direction of Shockley Flick, will appear in concert at the Edgerton Church of Christ on March 24 at 7:30 p.m. The church is located at 224 Laubach Drive at Edgerton.

The concert choir, a group of 40 young people who are studying for some phase of the leadership ministry, will sing a variety of sacred music. This year their repertoire includes classics, hymn arrangements, spirituals and gospel songs. The program will feature the men as they sing gospel quartet arrangements by Ralph Carmichael and the women will sing inspiring and joyful numbers.

The message of the concert centers on the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ. This moving dramatization shows some of the suffering of Christ contrasted with the jubilant resurrection.

Great Lakes Bible College is located in Lansing, Michigan. It is supported by Christian Churches and Churches of Christ and prepares students in a four-year degree program for specialized work in church-related vocations. The school offers degree programs in Bible, Christian Ministries, Christian Education and Music.

The public is invited to share and participate in this spirit-lifting concert. There is no admission charge, but an offering will be taken for the college.

Little Hoosiers

—Laura Tatro, secretary

The Riverdale Little Hoosiers held their monthly meeting on Wednesday, March 15, 1978, after school in the Riverdale School Cafetorium. Laura Tatro and Michelle Freese presided over the business meeting. Laura read the secretary's report and Michelle read the treasurer's report.

Dorothy Lepper talked to the group about the State Convention Project. The State Convention is being held in Fort Wayne this year. The date is April 29, and the place is the old Central High School Building.

Mrs. Jewel discussed the architectural surveys with the group and showed the children how these were to be done. The art project and "Notes on Indiana" project were also talked about.

Camp slips may be obtained from Mrs. Jewel. Jody Lepper is in charge of the Arbor Day Program this year. Mark Hudson and Michelle Freese will be responsible for Antique Day in May. Fifth graders are to be thinking about running for Little Hoosiers offices for next year. Our Little Hoosiers will be participating in the Sunday in the Park Program in Auburn on June 11, 1978.

Six people became one-gallon donors at Riverdale. They are:

Frank Laub, Ted Hollabaugh, Sharon Munsey, Dale Harter, Tonda Miller and Robert Arnett.

Joining the ranks of those who have given two gallons of blood over the years was:

Stanley Bremer.

Alfred Suntken has but one more pint of blood to go to become a six-gallon donor.

Mrs. Hicov announced that the Bloodmobile date for next year, if anyone wishes to mark their 1979 calendar, will be February 14, Valentine's Dav.

Bloodmobile Donor 'Honor Roll' Listed

Several cots accommodated the donors in the center of the cafetorium, as shown above. A brief period is allowed after the donor has given blood during which the arm is raised to aid in closing the puncture made when blood is extracted.

The photo below shows the registration tables at left in the background, donors lying on tables in the center and at right, and the refreshment table at the right in the background. A donor is accompanied to the refreshment table in case he or she feels faint or dizzy. The donor waits for a short time at the refreshment table before being allowed to leave. Delores Hicov serves as chairman for the Bloodmobile visits to Riverdale, and her efforts in organizing the entire operation have brought Riverdale's unusually—and pleasingly—high response from residents in the area.

FAITH

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

A woman who was showing a beautiful, massive piece of family silver apologized as she took it from the cupboard where it was kept. "Dreadfully tarnished!" she said. "I can't keep it bright unless I use it."

That is just as true of faith as it is of silver. Tucked away in the Sunday closet of the soul, only brought out for show, it needs apology. It is bound to be tarnished. You can't keep faith bright unless you use it.

An orphan girl of India, fearing slavery and worse, asked the missionary teacher to take her home with her. The teacher replied: "We have no room, and no money to build more, but you ask God to enable us to take you, and I, too, will pray."

That night the teacher received a personal gift of ten dollars from a friend in America. She sent immediately for Kara, the young orphan child. But Kara met the messenger halfway, and when she reached the teacher, simply said, "We both prayed to God, so I thought I might as well start!"

Faith sees the thing for which we ask as already in our possession.

Happiness is....faith.

Plants may be made to feel at home in any room. But for you, the important thing is that you are comfortable with them. Each room in your home can be custom-fitted with its own selection of foliage or flowering plants. For example, plants that need moister air will do better in your bathroom. In any case, the plants you choose should fit your individual personality and choice. When you enter a plant shop, look for plants that catch your eye at a glance. Don't let anyone pressure you into a plant you're not sure of. Have in mind the size and setting before you enter the shop. If you are planning to have the plant for some time, it is wise to go with a smaller cutting. If it is a plant you wish to move outside, a larger one is better. The key, as with any smart purchase, is to think before you buy.

If you are interested in the exotic plants, know the scientific as well as the common name. This will be a great help to the merchant since some common names change from region to region. Shopping for a new member to your garden can be quite enjoyable, if you go prepared.

Happy gardening!

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 360, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)

Senior Citizens' Employment

March 5 through March 11 is designated as "Employ Older Americans Week". In keeping with this, the Board of Directors of the employment program geared for senior citizens, called Gainful Opportunities, would like to announce its opening on April 3 at the Senior Citizen Center, 233 W. Main, in Fort Wayne, IN.

Gainful Opportunities is an agency that will serve senior citizens in securing employment for the nine-county area including LaGrange, Steuben, DeKalb, Noble, Whitley, Allen, Huntington, Adams and Wells counties.

The program will offer two distinct services. The first is providing employment opportunities for persons 55 or older. This will be done through recruitment, job searches, interviewing and screening, counseling, job placement and then follow-up techniques. The second component of the program will be the provision of supportive services for those persons 60 or older. This will be accomplished by using persons from any age group with an emphasis on older adults. The activities include screening and assessment of the needs of applicants, homemaker services, chore services, escort and transportation services, and companionship or friendly visitor services.

For more information on this program, please contact the Northeast Area III Council on Aging office at 423-7484.

BARCUS Q. HIPPENHAMMER??? Who Was He?

Mort E. Olds, first editor and publisher of this newspaper, had a tremendous sense of humor. He shared it with readers of the handout St. Joe News 'way back in the 1880's.

An example of his folksy efforts is indicated in the following tidbit from the February 23, 1884, issue. Writing under the pen name "Barcus Q. Hippenhammer," Mort Olds said:

"The editer he lide about me in the last papar; he said I wus sufferin with a dislekation ov the brane; it was'nt so, I had the hiccups. I dont beleave the editer wil evar hav eny truble about his brane gettin dislokated, caws he aint got eny. Az I wus rusticatin along on Perke Avanew the other day, a thinkin tu miself, I herd a grate noys jest ahed, and I sea a man comin out ov a hous, an a woman wus after him with a broom. It wus just awfool the way that grate big woman pelted that por harmles innoscent man; all becaws he would'nt cary in the wood an make fires. The ide, that in this enlitened age, under a free goverment, a man must cary in the wood, an git up on a coal mornin an starte the fire, wile the woman keeps the bed warm; it's preposterus to think ov. And yet, this man wus driven from his own hous, under the point ov the but end of a broom (sea abov engravin) just becaws he re uzed tu du as she said. I hed lowed to take a companyon this fall, but seaing this incident has kinder upsot me. Yours in truble,

Barcus Q. Hippenhammer"

In the column right next to the above there were these news items:

"O. M. Meek has rented the building formerly occupied by Martin, the wagonmaker, and will use it for a paint shop. Give him a call.

"Arron Thomas was at Hicksville last Tuesday.

"350,000 valentines passed through the Chicago post office on St. Valentines' day.

"William Bleeks is building a barn on his lot.

"Rev. Frank Hussey began a series of revival meetings at Concord last Thursday evening.

"Our canned fruits are selling off quite rapidly. Try our vinegar pickles.

"Mr. Evans will move back to St. Joe next week.

"Mrs. Louisa Bradley was married last week to E. E. Wilson, a book agent who has been canvassing through this part of the county for the past few weeks.

"Steve Silberg went to Napanee last Monday.

"It was highly amusing last week on those icy days, to see how particular people were about how they walked. They acted as though they were afraid of falling down.

"Ruff McDonald has been working in the saw mill this week.

"Wm. Stamen was about the only person in St. Joe who got a valentine last week. It was one of the kind that cry and keep a fellow awake when he wants to sleep. Its a boy, and he will probably be out buying lumber in a few days."

Somebody lost a pair of glasses. A pair of child's brown-frame glases can be claimed at the Bita General Store.

Liat Osmun and Robyn Loy are publishing a newspaper—on a temporary basis. The project will lead them to a merit badge in the Girl Scouts program.

Steve Monroe has run several ads in recent weeks, seeking old-time photos of this community. Steve has an interest in historic records and, while it was slow going at the start, he has had increasing responses from residents at Saint Joe and Spencerville.

A young fella from toward the southwest part of town was buzzing around town Tuesday afternoon. Just as Charlie Emenhiser turned the corner at the fire hall to head west on Railroad Street, the young man came ripping along east. Charlie had to stop halfway or so through the intersection to avoid a crash and the young man had to swerve to the left and go bouncing past the railroad crossing sign, falling to the ground with the bike.

Charlie hollered, "Hey, you're supposed to yield," as he pointed to the yield sign for eastbound traffic. The boy said, "I did." And Charlie came back with, "Like — you did!"

The young man righted his bike, started it, and took off with a typical hot-rod start.

I point the incident out because, in addition to some fast driving on Railroad Street by both motorcyclists and motorists, there is a steady violation of the stop and yield signs at the intersection. Another young man on a motorcycle was buzzing back and forth I think on the morning of the same day. One time he went through the stop sign at my estimate of 35 miles an hour. And a red compact went through the same stop sign right after the Tuesday afternoon incident.

The young man who failed to properly yield the right of way is very lucky. Had his bike hit the deep depression of a large catch basin located on the railroad right-of-way, I think he'd be in the hospital right now.

Herb Holden has been on leave the past couple of weeks. He always makes it a point to come to his church "home," St. Mark's at Saint Joe, on those leaves. A couple of Sundays ago I inquired about his military status. He said he is headed for Japan soon on a one-year overseas stint, then back to the states again.

Estil and Thelma Taylor reported an odor of gas last Saturday. Guy Mausteller told me Sunday that local firemen finally found a propane leak at the Vulcraft plant after doing quite a bit of searching and sniffing.

John Paul Hill, minister at Coburn Corners Church of Christ, stopped in last week. I asked him how was feeling since he had a heart "pacer" installed — if "installed" is the proper word. He says he feels great. He said, "Here feel it," and placed my hand on his chest. It's sort of an eerie feeling to realize that you're touch a solid mass inside a human body and that implant is adding years to a human life.

Eerie—but good.

He spoke with justifiable parental pride of the fact that daughter Audine was named the most outstanding junior at Hicksville High School.

Judge Stump Vindicated

The United States Supreme Court this week ruled that DeKalb Circuit Court Judge Harold Stump cannot be sued for a decision and action he rendered a few years ago in a sterilization case. It is reported that the dissenting minority opinion was presented in a somewhat angry tone of voice.

I sometimes wonder what is in certain judges' minds when they make rulings which open the doors wider to suits for damages. In this particular instance, if the ruling had allowed Judge Stump to be sued, who would want to sit on the bench in the future?

The argument that a 15-year-old girl was not represented, her "child rights" were not protected, is not true in this case, if you ask me. A minor child is the responsibility of the parent or parents. If the Supreme Court had ruled that Judge Stump could be sued, it would have been another blow to the basic structure in our society—the family.

It was argued that a 15-year-old girl was not protected in her basic rights. News accounts I have read indicate that the mother of the girl was concerned because the girl was "retarded" and had been going out with boys and men. Obviously, the mother was afraid the girl would become pregnant. That is a concern of a lot of parents. And when it involves a retarded individual, the concern is even greater. It OUGHT to be.

Nowhere have I read that the mother simply said, "Judge, I am afraid my 15-year-old daughter will get pregnant. She is running around a lot, and she is retarded." And Judge Stump said, "O.K.—we'll sterilize her." Nowhere have I read anything which suggests such an irresponsible act. And if I DID read it somewhere, I wouldn't believe it. Judge Stump is not that kind of man.

Although the case was based on a legal decision and the ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court is on the question "is a judge liable for his or her decisions in matters under his or her jurisdiction," the Supreme Court's ruling is of importance to all, including residents of DeKalb County, and also for other Hoosiers as well since Judge Stump hears cases venued from other counties. This matter involved the integrity of an individual.

The 5-3 decision is somewhat frightening. Such a close decision indicates how close we came to the destruction ("legally" speaking) of a conscientious and compassionate man.

Hang in there, Judge. Though you don't—you CAN'T—please everyone who comes to your court, you're one hundred percent fair and impartial in my book.

Time Lost, But Taxpayers Pay

I must be dense.

I can't figure out why we can have 14 days of school missed because of winter weather, but teachers are not obligated to make up those days. And the law apparently says they cannot be required to make up for lost classroom time.

Last year, when we had several days of classroom activity lost due to winter weather, a few school corporations tried to make up for lost time, at least in part. But they were prevented from doing so because the Indiana State Teachers Association filed grievances and won their appeals. It's a matter of record in the official publication of the ISTA.,

Recently, the local classroom teachers' association presented several suggestions to the local school board to "make up" for lost classroom time. The board accepted one of the suggestions —to eliminate a half-day teachers' "professional meeting" and make it a full day of school.

The other suggestions were so ridiculous, it makes one wonder how some of our faculty members can stand by and have their name associated with, for instance, the suggestion that field trips be cancelled. How in the world can cancelling field trips, which involve small segments of the student body, be considered a way to make up for lost time? We lost FULL DAYS of the entire student body —not isolated classroom periods.

President Carter recently got headlines by stating that more money should be devoted to education and he proposed a $14 billion increase in federal funds for education, as I recall.

He's off target. We don't need more money for education—we need more education for the money.

SB Convention Not In Hawaii

There has been a rumor in the past few weeks that the local school board is going to Hawaii for the national school board convention.

Two years ago, a number of patrons in the eastern school district were upset due to rumors which gave the impression that board members attending the 1976 convention devoted more time to "having a ball' than to convention business—and at taxpayers' expense. When a large group of patrons attended a board meeting thereafter, they were given a financial report of the cost of the trip. Such expenditures are closely audited by the state board of tax commissioners. In addition, those who attended the convention made comments concerning the value of conventions. The result was that the aroused patrons were shown to be misinformed and misled. And the leading spokesman for the aroused patrons stated that the board report was satisfactory, and the matter appeared to be settled.

Now we have another instance in which the national school board convention is an issue—and we once again have misinformation or misunderstanding.

The rumor I heard twice in the past few weeks is that the school board is going to Hawaii to attend the national convention after stopping off in California for a few days. Naturally, such a story would arouse school patrons. It sounds like another "ball" for board members.

I checked the story out at the superintendent's office this week. These are the facts, as passed on to me:

Three board members plan to attend, not the entire board. (In 1976, when the previous "fuss" occurred, six board members attended the convention, as I recall. So did the school attorney, AT HIS EXPENSE.)

Any trip to Hawaii will be at the board member's expense. Any other trip, for that matter, while representatives from our school are out west for the convention, WILL BE AT THEIR OWN PERSONAL EXPENSE

It is impossible to definitely establish that conventions are or are not worthwhile. It is a matter of personal judgment. And we elect school board members basically on our confidence in their personal judgment. These people are our personal friends, our neighbors, our fellow parents. To condemn them individually or collectively, without attempting to get all the facts, is unfair and unwise.

So, although there apparently has not been a widespread reaction to the story that school board members are going to Hawaii for a convention, I hope this information sets matters straight for those who may have heard the false rumor and have been upset by it.

Rapping With Youth About.....

Minority Rule And Built-In Inflation

Some instances of misleading the public are unintentional—at least I hope so.

What brings that thought up is that the Wednesday United Press International (UPI) report about the coal construction workers' strike refers to the 160,000 UMW miners' approval of their contract.

The stories I have read indicate that only something over 100,000 miners voted on the contract. Roughly, 65% of the miners exercised their privilege and responsibility to vote.

That means that, in addition to the fact that only eight-hundredths of one percent of the nation's total population caused inconveniences, layoffs and what have you due to the coal miners' strike, that fraction of the total population is made even smaller when you take 65% of 160,000.

This type of statistic suggests a warning that we have minority rule in these United States, not majority rule. And majority rule is basic to the American way of doing things.

The headlines during the past week or two contain the information that prices are going up. The average American does not need a news story to tell him or her that; all it takes is a trip to the grocery, or an order to the fuel distributor, or a purchase at the hardware—and so on. Everybody knows everything is going up. What they do not realize is that there is no way that the cost of living is going to stabilize, and there is one simple reason why it will not — IT ISN'T SUPPOSED TO!

Years ago, the nation came under the spell of the "Keynesian theory." Under that economic supposed cure-all, an annual inflation rate of around 4% was considered "healthy." Only it wasn't called "inflation;" it was given the optimistic description of "economic growth."

The voices of warning were ignored. Those voices pointing out that government spending to promote growth was inflationary and dangerous were ignored.They were described as "insensitive to the needs of the people," "do-nothing" no-goods with a tendency to enslave the people in a lower standard of living than the people had a right to expect.

Warning signs appeared from time to time, but the majority prevailed in Congress and government took a first-place position in our economic structure.

Now, the price is being paid. The dollar you had in 1968 now must have another 88 cents added to it in order to buy the amount of goods or services in 1978.

The elderly, who have a right to keep what they have accumulated over the years as the basis of their retirement, now are beholden to the government for their keep to a great extent because taxes have taken away a bigger and bigger portion of their income during their productive years. And taxes take more and more of their dollars spent to keep alive.

While it is still true that it is wise to save one's money for the future, that practice is foolhardy today. The reason: inflation is making those saved dollars worth less. And even with interest collected on savings accounts, the saver ends up with less purchasing power year after year.

Social Security has become a tremendous burden. With the average Social Security tax now near or at the 10% mark, it is totally accurate to call this nation a socialist society.

Who has caused this revolution? Our legislators—at the federal and state level. But they couldn't have done it without the approval of the American people. When there has been the promise of some sort of benefit for this or that group in our society, the American people have sold their souls time after time.

Sentimentality instead of common sense has prevailed many times. The latest involves legislation called the Humphrey-Hawkins Bill. Its purpose—to bring so-called full employment under the theory that every American has the right to have a job.

The bill is now going through Congress, not because it is a sound approach to the employment problem. Rather, it is being passed as a memorial to the late Senator Hubert Humphrey, the "Happy Warrior," who did not have a hateful bone in his body. He is probably the 20th century's most outstanding example of a forgiving nature.

Unfortunately, his admirable nature was not matched by admirable legislative proposals including the Humphrey-Hawkins Bill. Even some members of his own party say the bill is dangerously inflationary. But who is going to raise a fuss about it? It would be like being against God, Mother and Country.

In addition, we have the prospect that Mrs. Humphrey, now completing the late Senator's term, will seek election on her own. And she'll probably win. For good reason? No. For sentiment.

When you stop to think about it, hasn't a lot of governmental intervention in everyday living been aided by sentiment or the emotions? Who in his or her right mind would oppose more money for school lunches, more money for jobs programs, more money for family welfare? It seems that whatever group you name it, has a "need." Little attention is paid to actual circumstances and conditions—and national budget limitations! It's always "these people need to be helped." And so we have another governmental program.

Getting back to the original thought—inflation can't be controlled because it isn't supposed to be, it CAN'T be. Inflation is built in. Every worker who gets a cost-of-living increase in pay adds to the cheapening of the dollar, whether that worker is in private industry or government. Our legislators, at the national and state levels, GUARANTEE more inflation every time they establish or condone an automatic cost-of-living pay increase for themselves or anyone else.

Every union member who allows a handful of leaders at the top level to demand more and more pay and fringe benefits every time a contract comes up for renewal GUARANTEES that he or she will be able to buy less.

What dismal thoughts to express on these bright, sunny days this week that bring the promise of spring and the richness of new and renewed growth.

But that's the way it is. The future is dark, simply because Americans have become intoxicated with material wealth.

Costly 'Sunshine'

The new "sunshine" law, intended to make government more open to the public, has a price tag. I wonder if it's worth it.

An effort is being made to cut down on red-tape paperwork related to government functions. Articles have appeared in recent months about the tremendous cost to private business and taxpayers because of the burden of duplicate, triplicate and quadruplicate forms required by all agencies of government.

Now we have another paperwork cost because of the "sunshine" legislation. I know the intent of that legislation is good. But look at the cost.

The Saint Joe News has been receiving meeting notices from the county Plan Commission, the Auburn City Council, the Garrett City Council—and these notices also go to the four county newspapers, the local radio station AND the two Fort Wayne daily newspapers. Schools and other governmental agencies also send meeting notices to the media.

It's unnecessary and costly. It involves time to prepare the notices, the cost of the paper involved and the cost of postage.

Another "bad" side of the situation is that public officials are led to function more and more and more in an atmosphere of fear of liability. A conscientious public official thus is forced to devote more of his or her thinking toward "how do I keep from being sued" rather than "how can I serve the public best."

If a citizen wants to know what night or day a given governmental or tax-supported agency holds its meetings. It only takes a phone call

The present dependence on so-called "sunshine" laws appears to be unnecessary. If a basic concept of the Constitution of the United States is not the public's right to know, then what DOES that Constitution offer every citizen???

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Letters to the Editor

I thought that Herblock's cartoon was most appropriate and clever. I thought you'd be interested. The individuals were, of course, ALL G.O.P.'ers and connected with SCANDLES—Fall with Tea Pot Dome.

Thought you'd like the article regarding the Electoral College.

Generally, I disagree "violently" with your political editorials. Often I've wanted to write to straighten you out, but it is difficult for me to write.

I can't resist submitting one correction on a non-political matter. A few issues back you devoted a paragraph or so on the front page dealing with the computation or derivation of "profits" for corporations. You stated, in substance, that salaries, wages, taxes and DIVIDENDS TO STOCKHOLDERS are deducted from gross income to produce net income. Ted, for gosh sakes, dividends ARE profits which are DISTRIBUTED to shareholders. Dividends ARE NEVER deducted to arrive at net profits. You owe your readers the duty to be more accurate in your writing because some of them might believe what you write.

Cordially
Dick (Richard Shook)

If you don't believe me, ask any high school student who has taken a semester of elementary bookkeeping.

The Herblock cartoon shows 2 buildings designated "The J. Edgar Hoover F.B.I. Building" and "Dept of the Interior, The Albert B. Fall Building," with 3 men putting up a sign for a "Department of Justice" building. One of the men says, "We might as well be consistent" as he holds up another sign with "The John Mitchell Building." The obvious reference is to Republican administrations.

The article on the Electoral College, the system by which the election of a President is determined, gives support to the idea that reform is needed in the Presidential election system. The article indicates that such reform is backed by Indiana Senator Birch Bayh who is chairman of the Senate Constitutional Subcommittee. Senator Bayh is chief sponsor of a Constitutional amendment to make the election of the President by direct popular vote. Another proposal has been submitted to give a "bonus" of 102 electoral votes to be awarded to the candidate who has the highest popular vote. The theory is that this would eliminate the possibility of having a candidate with a lesser popular vote becoming President through the present electoral college vote, rather than the candidate with the highest popular vote.

On Mr. Shook's occasional visits to Spencerville, his hometown community, through the years (he was an attorney in Washington, D.C., for many years), we always had a discussion on politics and Mr. Shook enjoyed "baiting" us about the mess Republicans make of everything.

As for the inclusion of dividends as part of the deductions made to determine net profit, we bow to Mr. Shook's legal knowledge and experience. We hasten to note, however, that the overall point of our "Rapping with youth about" profits was to emphasize that "profits" is not a dirty word, that the public has a highly inaccurate idea as to how much profit is derived in everyday business, and to point out the responsibility to be fair in determining how much profit will be expected from the public.

If we were technically wrong in including dividends in the expenses deducted to determine "profits," then our error gives more force to the point that the public has terribly wrong ideas about "profits." Because, if dividends are part of net profits, that leaves even less for capital investment (that means "jobs") after dividends are deducted. —Ed.

Firemen Plan May Auction

"Technically, spring is here."

So say members of the Saint Joe-Concord Township Volunteer Fire Department as they prepare for another auction.

"Time to clean up the garage and Junior's room? By your many requests, your local fire department would like to help by again sponsoring another auction May 13 starting at 10:00 a.m. at the St. Joe Fire Hall," the department reports.

30-day advance pickup will be provided by calling 337-5365, 337-5084 or 337-5356.

Township and local area pickup will be the week prior to the sale date, May 13.

"Your donations and cooperation are greatly appreciated and help the local fire department to serve you better."

NE Center Seeks Office Funds

The Northeastern Center, Inc., is trying to raise funds to help equip its offices, to replace the current policy of leasing office equipment.

The four-county organization serves DeKalb, LaGrange, Noble and Steuben counties in mental health services. Offices are located now at Auburn and Kendallville with expansion in the future to serve from offices in Angola and LaGrange.

Some $22,000 is needed in additional funds in 1978, over and above county commissioners' allocations, county mental health association contributions, patients' fees and state aid.

Application for federal assistance has been made.

The Cole Foundation of Noble County/Kendallville has offered to match funds raised in the new effort. For every $2.00 in "new money" raised, the Cole Foundation will contribute $1.00. Therefore, immediate help is needed from individuals, service clubs, sororities, civic organizations, churches, merchants and so on. The "new money" must be raised by April 28 of this year in order to bring the Cole Foundation contribution.

Those who wish to contribute may do so by sending a check, payable to "Northeastern Center, Inc.," and sending it to: Northeastern Center, 305 East North Street, Kendallville, Indiana 46755.

Though April 28 is the deadline for the matching funds, a contribution is welcomed at any time which is convenient for the donor. Pledges may also be made before April 28.

Any group or organization wishing to have a speaker explain the center's program should contact the center.

The four-county organization now offers services from nearly 30 staff members, including psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers, secretaries, receptionists and executive director Dale Cochard.

With the expansion to Angola and LaGrange, the staff will number around 100 employees.

Bike-A-Thon Date Changed

Lois Lichtsinn, chairman of this area's Bike-A-Thon to raise funds for St. Jude's Children's Disease Research Hospital, has announced a change in the date for the Bike-A-Thon. It will be held Saturday, April 29, with a rain date of one week later.

The Bike-A-Thon will form at noon at St. Peter Lutheran Church in Spencerville. Participants will ride bicycles according to the pledges collected by the participants.

A $25 donation will bring a T-shirt to the cyclist with the words, "I support St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital. Danny Thomas, founder."

A $75 donation brings a backpack award.

The sheriff's office and the county highway department will cooperate with the event in providing supervision for safety reasons. Flags and bright jackets will be used to warn motorists of the cyclists' presence.

A picnic will be held following the Bike-A-Thon.

There is no age limit for the bike riders. Parental permission is required for those under the age of 18, however.

Happiness Is...

AVOIDING HYPOCRISY

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

Once there was a snake that was greatly displeased at the horror he seemed to excite in everyone. He was conscious of his innocence and could not understand why everybody ran away from him, or, if they stopped, threw sticks and stones at him with cries of anger.

He concluded that it was merely on account of his personal appearance, and made up his mind to change that. Therefore, placing his tail in his mouth and forming himself into a perfect circle, he stiffened himself so that he appeared perfectly wooden.

In this condition he was found by some children, who pounced upon him with eagerness, crying out, "Oh, what a pretty green hoop!" Taking a stick, they began to hit the "hoop," giving it a smart blow with the stick at every revolution.

The poor snake endured this torture as long as he could, and then took an opportunity to roll off among the bushes and speedily assume his proper shape and slip into his hole. "I have learned," said the snake, "that however unfortunate one's lot, nothing is to be gained from pretending to be something you are not."

Happiness is . . . avoiding hypocrisy.

Tornado 'Season' Brings Tips On Public Protection

—by Guy Mausteller
Public Relations Director of
DeKalb County Civil Defense
(First of three parts)

Most tornadoes occur during the months of March through June and in late afternoon and evening. They can and do occur in any month and at any time of the day or night. Tornadoes usually travel from southwest to northeast and almost always come from the western horizon. The average ground speed of a tornado is 25 to 40 miles per hour, but have reached speeds of 70 miles per hour.

Indiana averages 23 tornadoes per year, 10th highest in the nation. Indiana is 2nd highest in the average number of tornadoes per 10,000 square miles and 4th highest in average number of deaths per year.

Indiana's three worst tornadoes were on March 18, 1925, April 11, 1965, and April 3, 1974.

There is no way to understand or get ready for a tornado and its destructive power. However, there are five steps a person can and should take for protection against this intensive storm. Each person must:

—know what a tornado is;
—know a tornado's usual habits;
—know a tornado's damaging effects:
—understand the meaning of tornado reports; and —know what to do if a tornado strikes.

WHAT IS A TORNADO?

It looks like a spinning twisting rope at the bottom, and fans out into a rotating funnel-shaped cloud extending down from a thundercloud. Its color varies from gray to black. It sounds like the roar of many airplanes or a speeding locomotive. It contains twisting winds up to 500 miles per hour. It forms when a precise combination of complicated forces develop, associated with cold, dry air, moving rapidly over warm, moist surface air, producting thunderstorms.

It cuts a swath of destruction about 400 yards wide. Its destructive path varies from 10 to 40 miles in length. The average is about 16 miles long. It travels at ground speeds of from 25 to 40 miles per hour.

Tornadoes have been known to remain stationary and have also been clocked at speeds of 68 miles per hour.

A tornado moves into an area from a westerly direction, usually traveling to northeast. Some remain aloft and never touch the ground. But others touch the ground and rise again. They have also been seen moving along in continuous ground contact.

WHAT ARE ITS USUAL HABITS?

A tornado can occur anywhere but most likely will be in the midwest and central area of the United States. It may accompany or follow familiar spring and summer thunderstorms that come at the end of a hot, sticky day, with southerly winds. Sometimes greenish-black clouds that bulge downward are present before a tornado, and heavy rain and hail often accompany it or follow thereafter. There are really no foolproof signs.

A tornado is difficult to predict because its causes are so complex. The average number of tornadoes ranges from 1 to 25 per year. Our area averages about 4 per year.

A tornado is possible at any hour of the day or night, but usually they follow the warmest part of the day. 82 percent come between noon and midnight, with more than half occuring between 3 and 7 p.m. The greatest number are reported between 4 and 6 p.m.

WHAT ARE ITS DAMAGING EFFECTS?

A tornado's violent and twisting winds strip the bark from trees, uproot them or twist them off at the ground. It tears apart strong buildings and scatters them like kindling wood. People and animals are whirled through the air and dashed to the ground, cars overturned, and bridges torn out. Its winds are so intense that we find trees sheared off by flying pieces of sheet metal, straws and slivers driven into boards or posts, and large pieces of wood and metal driven into the earth. This flying debris causes serious injury or death. Rapid and extreme changes in air pressure cause buildings to explode or implode, and can lift vehicles off the ground.

Next week we will tell you how to estimate wind speed by watching objects, what tornado watches and warnings are and what to do if a tornado strikes.

Letters.....

United States Senate

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Thank you for your letter and your opposition to the labor reform measure currently before the Senate.

The effort to focus attention on (H.R. 77, which would have denied workers the important right to participate in a secret election on union representation, has succeeded in forcing proponents to abandon the most objectionable sections of the bill. I have given the same critical review to the revised version of this legislation, as contained in S. 2467, and have concluded that it, too, would disturb the balance between union and non-union interests which has been maintained under the NRLA. As in other areas, I am skeptical of legislation which further imposes federal restrictions on the free flow of communication between labor and management. On that basis, I am opposed to the version of this legislation now before the Senate.

Thanks again for writing. I hope to have the benefit of your counsel throughout the coming years.

Sincerely,
Dick Lugar

United States Senate

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

Thank you for your recent letter concerning S. 1883, the Labor Reform Act.

As you may know, the Senate Human Resources Committee recently reported a revised version of S. 1883. The Committee reported this revised bill, S. 2467, after eight days of hearings which examined its potential impact on workers and businessmen alike. In order to address many of the concerns raised during these hearings by representatives of the business community, the Committee made several significant changes in the original legislation.

Among the changes was an extension of the time deadline for elections once the employer is formally notified by the NLRB that over fifty percent of his employees have requested an election. The Committee doubled the time period originally allowed for under S. 1883, and the revised bill now requires an election within one month from notification.

In addition, the Committee provided several major changes in the "equal access" provisions of the bill which attempt to address many legitimate concerns of several businessmen. Under the new provisions, unions may only have access to workers on company time provided the company closes down its business for the purposes of a "captive audience" meeting.

S. 2467 is not legislation which will force compulsory unionism. This bill attempts to provide needed changes in our nation's labor laws which have not been revised since 1959. The present backlog of cases before the NLRB is indicative of the need for this reform. I feel that existing shortcomings in the efficiency of current labor relations practices are addressed by this bill. I assure you, however, that the views you expressed will be taken into consideration when this measure is deliberated by the full Senate. I firmly believe that all of us in Congress share with you the mutual goal of enacting legislation which carefully balances the interests of both management and labor.

Sincerely,
Birch Bayh
United States Senator

Under current circumstances, it should not be difficult to understand why we have serious doubts about any consideration being given to our concern over labor's distinct advantage in labor-management matters.

The current coal miners' strike has crippled millions of Americans. A large majority of Republicans, including Governor Otis Bowen, Indiana Senator Dick Lugar and Fourth District Representative Dan Quayle (and a few conscientious Democrats) have been calling on President Carter to take undesireable, yet necessary, steps to ease the burden of the coal miners' strike. These concerned voices have been heard for nearly two months. It wasn't until it became obvious that the President would take drastic action in the matter that we heard any comments from Senator Bayh. Only in the past two weeks has the Senator used strong language in stating that the danger to the entire nation, represented by the strike, could not be tolerated.

The above letter is tricky. It does not recognize the fact that unions can seek worker support months before an election is called for. But the employer has only between 21 and 30 days after the union files an election petition, to present his side of the story. Also, union organizers can talk to employees about the union, on company property and during company time, if the employer has done so. But there is no limit on the time allowed. If a union organizer talks for an hour, the workers can then discuss the matter—on company time.

No matter how you cut it, the "labor reform" proposed by the Democrat majority and supported by President Carter—and Senator Bayh—gives even greater advantages to union leaders than they already have. Why is "labor reform" such an issue? Because organized labor has dropped over 700,000 in membership in recent years, reflecting the attitude of the majority of the public that labor leadership has too much power and that membership in a union or payment of the equivalent of union dues by a worker, even though that worker is not a member of a union, should not be a condition of employment. Senator Bayh's long tenure in office has been bought and paid for by organized labor. There is no reason to expect "consideration" of the views of the businessman from him in labor-management matters. —Ed.

I watched the first portion of the "Oscar" awards program the other night. I went to bed after Vanessa Redgrave abused the privilege of expressing gratitude for being selected best supporting actress of the year and turned her "thank you" time into a political imposition on the program and the public.

If I had any say in the matter, I'd withdraw the award made to her. That award was based on her ability as an actress, not as a spokesman for a cause. The award was not for the message in the movie; it was for individual talent in conveying a character's part in a story.

Everyone has the right to support whatever cause they may believe in. But they don't have the right to inject their crusading efforts into a program which is totally unrelated to any political or social cause.

Vanessa Redgrave showed how un-professional she is and how inconsiderate.

Thank goodness it was my bedtime—except that I missed Racquel and Farrah later in the program.

Charles Benjamin of New Haven is going through back issues of The News tracing the history of the Gee family. His "roots" are connected to several names familiar to days gone by—Milliman, Abel, Hadsell, Koch, to name a few. A couple of cousins live here now, Audrey Wilmot and Albert Wade.

In one of the late 1880's issues he found an interesting item, a prediction that women would wear pants in the future.

Fuel leaks were "the thing" locally the past week. The small leak found at Vulcraft was followed by another at the Nosey Nook Auction House Monday. Monday evening firemen took to the water hoses at the vacant service station at the west end of town when a broken filler cap on an underground tank led to bubbling up of gasoline as the tank filled with draining surface water. Then the fire at Ross's apparently due to a slow leak in a fuel oil line which resulted in fuel-soaked turf.

Did you ever try making faces by using a typewriter and its symbols and characters? —or any other kind of drawing, for that matter. Well, recently as I was setting type and making some corrections, the way the parentheses lined up struck my eye. So I set several slugs which came out:

'Gator 'Scare'

Two Fort Wayne boys caused a stir this week when they said they found a small alligator along a river bank at Fort Wayne. They said it chased them and when they hit it over the head, the eyes popped out.

Later, it was determined that the reptile had been disposed of by Larry Mason of Saint Joe, a keeper of exotic pets. Somehow the boys got hold of the reptile and made a pretty good story out of it.

There were skeptics at Fort Wayne at the outset, however. And their suggestion that the reptile be cut open was ignored. They suspected that it was a stuffed reptile since it is virtually impossible for such a creature to survive in cold water. However, Larry reportedly said it's a good thing they didn't cut it open. Dead reptiles rot from the inside out and — — —.

Grand Opening, Open House Set For End Of April

With the former Saint Joe Beauty Salon planning a grand opening at the end of April to introduce its new status and name as "Family Cuts and Curls," some other attractions are being planned by local businesses and residents.

Because March was such a bad month weatherwise, the News Office did not have an anniversary open house. But it will this month, to coincide with Kay Smith's "Cuts and Curls" grand opening. And Wanda Coburn at the local restaurant says she will run a couple of specials Saturday, April 29, the concluding date of Kay's grand opening and the date of the News' open house.

Margaret Wisler at the Bita General Store is working on some specials, too. And Parlia Hull is getting the residents of Hamburg lined for for their own individual garage sales that day. Other Saint Joe residents are invited to have garage sales also if they so desire.

Some other "goodies" may be forthcoming, also. More information will be published the next couple of weeks.

The Spencerville Volunteer Fire Department is sponsoring a Pancake and Sausage Supper to be served Saturday, April 15. It will be served starting at 4 p. m. at the Spencerville Community Club Building.

Prices are $2.50 for adults and $1.75 for children.

The public is invited to enjoy the supper and at the same time give support to the department.

EHS Thespians Present 'Bye.....'

The DeKalb Eastside Drama Department will present "Bye Bye Birdie" May 5 and 6 at 8 p.m. in the high school cafetorium.

Tickets are available in advance at the administration office at $2.25 for adults and $1.25 for students. Tickets at the door will be $2.50 and $1.50, respectively.

The musical concerns the romance of a composer-publisher-agent and his secretary, plus the drafting of his rock 'n roll star into the Army. In a gigantic publicity stunt they all descend on a small Ohio town and proceed to "turn it upside down."

The results are hilarious and musicallly rewarding.

Absent Voting

Absent voting began April 3. Those who will be out of the county the day of the May Primary Election can register at the clerk's office in the courthouse in Auburn.

Absent Voters Boards will be contacting confined persons in their home Saturday, April 29, and Monday, May 1.

No absent voters ballots can be mailed to residents within DeKalb County, according to the new state law.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to express our appreciation to friends, neighbors and relatives for the special acts of kindness shown to each of us during the illness and at the death of our husband and father. Special thanks to Rev. Terry Rhine, the UMW of the Spencerville United Methodist Church, and the DeKalb County EMS unit. The food, flowers, prayers, cards and gifts to the memoriam for Bill were deeply appreciated.

$15,000 Fire

A fire at the Ron Ross residence about a mile south of Saint Joe on State Road 1 caused damage estimated at $15,000 this week.

Evidently a trash fire spread to a tack shop, following a path of fuel-soaked ground caused by a leak in a fuel tank.

A dozen horses were saved and two dogs. Damage was related to the building and tack supplies and equipment.

Saint Joe firemen Guy Mausteller and Jim Miller suffered minor injuries in fighting the blaze.

The residence is the former Lester Anthony property.

Church League Meets April 20

Saint Joe Church Softball League president Ted Haberkorn has announced that a meeting of the organization will be held Thursday, April 20. Representatives of teams who plan to participate in this year's church softball activity should attend the meeting at St. Mark Lutheran Church starting at 7:30 p. m.

One of the items to be decided is that relating to the use of the lighted ball diamond by the Little League teams one night of the week until mid-July. Secretary Lavon Hart, who has prepared the schedules for many years, has indicated that there should be no problem in granting the request. However, it is up to the entire league to make a final decision.

The need for use of the lighted diamond by the Little League has arisen due to expanded activities of that group and limited facilities in other communities. Pony League activity will also be expanded this year at the unlighted diamond at Riverdale School.

It appears to be a "big year" for softball and baseball, with girls' softball also included on the list of activities.

The church league meeting will include discussion about replacing or adding to the present lighting units at the local diamond. Floodlight developments the past few years have brought units with apparent greatly-reduced operational costs.

The secretary has indicated his intent not to be available for re-election when elections are held at the April 20 meeting. He said he thinks it's time to "turn it over to somebody else" because of the many activities in which he is engaged.

Boys' State Delegates Named

Two DeKalb Eastside High School juniors have been named delegates to Boys' State to be held in June.

Kenneth Ray, son of MM Charles Ray of Butler, is the delegate chosen by the Butler American Legion post to attend the week-long exposure to the process of self-government. Delegates campaign for office, are elected and serve in the first-hand experience in the elective and legislative program on which Boys' State is based.

Mark Haberkorn, son of MM Ted Haberkorn of Saint Joe, is the delegate sponsored by the Butler Eagles lodge. He will have the same experience as Kenny in the functioning of self-government.

Selections to Boys' State are based on scholastic ability, interest and participation in school activities, character and so on.

Alternates for Boys' State are Kevin White of Saint Joe and Brian Sawvel of Butler.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

You notice, the "night on the town" prize Kay Smith is giving away April 29 doesn't say what town. I heard a rumor that actually what's gonna happen is Jim Rediger will pick up a '68 Chevie from back of Maxton's building, the winner will be picked up, taken to the Saint Joe Restaurant for coney dogs, then out to the local pub for a beer, then a stop at the News Office to see "modern journalism" in progress (and help fold newspapers which should have been out two days before), then dropped off at home again.

— Naw — —— I was just kidding. Kay knows that. — — It's actually a '69!

Larry Kinsey dropped in to renew his subscription. He pulled out a paper from his billfold, and here was a cashier's check from the St. Joe Valley Bank, made out to August Kinsey. The year: 1891.

When Harvey Carr stopped in this week, I didn't know what to expect from him in reaction to my comment last week about Fern's "wiggle." His reaction: "What do think I married her for?"

Now, before any "libbers" get upset about marrying a "wiggle" instead of a woman, keep in mind that Harvey and Fern have had too many years together, including raising a family, for anyone to think that the only factor keeping them together was Fern's wiggle.

But it does point out that oftentimes a lasting and meaningful relationship IS begun due to something physical.

Expansion At Pickle Factory

Remodeling and expansion is in progress at Sechler's pickle processing plant.

In recent months, work was done on the main existing building to expand the area for display of products for customer convenience. Double glass doors now provide entrance to the display area.

New construction includes enclosing an area between the boiler room, built in 1972. The addition will provide some 2,000 additional square feet for processing operations.

In commenting about the project, Frank Sechler noted that present facilities would have accommodated anticipated growth over the next few years. However, with increasing costs of construction, a delay seemed ill-advised. He said that the new processing area, which already has a portion of its sidewalls provided by the present two buildings, will cost more than did the other two buildings combined just six years ago.

Newville Bazaar

Ladies of the Newville United Methodist Church are planning a rummage sale Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, April 26, 27 and 28. Sale time is 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Among the items to be offered for sale are baked goods, clothing and miscellaneous.

The church is located on State Road 8 at Newville.

Tuesday—spaghetti and hamburg, cole slaw, sliced peaches, bread and butter or peanutbutter.

Wednesday—hamburg sandwich with pickle, french fries, applesauce.

Thursday—mashed potatoes, beef and gravy, pork and beans, chocolate cake, bread and butter or peanutbutter.

Firemen Plan May Auction

"Technically, spring is here."

So say members of the Saint Joe-Concord Township Volunteer Fire Department as they prepare for another auction.

"Time to clean up the garage and Junior's room? By your many requests, your local fire department would like to help by again sponsoring another auction May 13 starting at 10:00 a.m. at the St. Joe Fire Hall," the department reports.

30-day advance pickup will be provided by calling 337-5365, 337-5084 or 337-5356.

Township and local area pickup will be the week prior to the sale date, May 13.

"Your donations and cooperation are greatly appreciated and help the local fire department to serve you better."

Bike-A-Thon Date - April 29

Lois Lichtsinn, chairman of this area's Bike-A-Thon to raise funds for St. Jude's Children's Disease Research Hospital, has announced a change in the date for the Bike-A-Thon. It will be held Saturday, April 29, with a rain date of one week later.

The Bike-A-Thon will form at noon at St. Peter Lutheran Church in Spencerville. Participants will ride bicycles according to the pledges collected by the participants.

A $25 donation will bring a T-shirt to the cyclist with the words, "I support St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital. Danny Thomas, founder."

A $75 donation brings a backpack award.

The sheriff's office and the county highway department will cooperate with the event in providing supervision for safety reasons. Flags and bright jackets will be used to warn motorists of the cyclists' presence.

A picnic will be held following the Bike-A-Thon.

There is no age limit for the bike riders. Parental permission is required for those under the age of 18, however.

Girls' State Delegate Named

Miriam Elizabeth Graham of R1 Butler has been named delegate to Girls' State by the American Legion Auxiliary of Butler. Mary Jo Baughman of R2 Butler is alternate.

The 37th session of Girls' State will be held June 18-25 at Indiana State University at Terre Haute.

Herb Freidenberger, Jr., of Butler is chairman of the committee which named Kenny Ray and Mark Haberkorn as Boys' State delegates. Pat Kneip is chairman of the Auxiliary's Girls' State committee.

Tuesday—pizza, corn, applesauce.

Wednesday—hamburger sandwich, french fries, pears.

'Cuts And Curls' Set For Opening

Kay Smith is preparing for her "Family Cuts and Curls" grand opening week the last week of April, climaxed by a drawing Saturday, April 29.

There will be three lucky winners, with the prizes including a "night on the town" with an automobile provided by Maxton Motors of Butler, a patented "Redken" permanent, and $25 in Redken products.

With Cindy Culbertson assisting as stylist, Kay is providing total hair care service in her impressive salon. Remodeling and installation of exclusive Redken "trichoanalysis" equipment make the Saint Joe hair care shop as up-to-date as those found in communities many times larger than the Riverdale area.

Church League Meets April 20

Saint Joe Church Softball League president Ted Haberkorn has announced that a meeting of the organization will be held Thursday, April 20. Representatives of teams who plan to participate in this year's church softball activity should attend the meeting at St. Mark Lutheran Church starting at 7:30 p. m.

One of the items to be decided is that relating to the use of the lighted ball diamond by the Little League teams one night of the week until mid-July. Secretary Lavon Hart, who has prepared the schedules for many years, has indicated that there should be no problem in granting the request. However, it is up to the entire league to make a final decision.

The need for use of the lighted diamond by the Little League has arisen due to expanded activities of that group and limited facilities in other communities. Pony League activity will also be expanded this year at the unlighted diamond at Riverdale School.

It appears to be a "big year" for softball and baseball, with girls' softball also included on the list of activities.

The church league meeting will include discussion about replacing or adding to the present lighting units at the local diamond. Floodlight developments the past few years have brought units with apparent greatly-reduced operational costs.

The secretary has indicated his intent not to be available for re-election when elections are held at the April 20 meeting. He said he thinks it's time to "turn it over to somebody else" because of the many activities in which he is engaged.

WHAT'S COMING APRIL 21?

St. Jude's Children's Hospital Bike-A-Thon starting from St. Peter's Lutheran Church at Spencerville.

Garage sales in "Hamburg" (Harrison Street which runs east and west just north of the Chessie tracks).

Garage sale at Doris Yeiser's (Friday afternoon and Saturday all day).

'News' To Give 'Antique Edition' At Open House

A 94-year-old issue of the "St. Joe News" will be given away Saturday, April 29, 1978.

When the local newspaper holds its open house April 29, an appropriate prize will be given to someone who registers that day at the open house.

Due to bad weather in March, formal observance of the present editor's 30th year as editor and this paper's 95th anniversary was not held. An anniversary open house will be held in conjunction with the grand opennig of Kay Smith's remodeled and extensively equipped "Family Cuts and Curls" salon.

After debating over what to offer as a prize at this paper's anniversary observance, the editor decided to give an appropriate prize—a copy of the June 14, 1884, "St. Joe News."

The prize will be "the real thing." Not a reproduction, the prize will be one of the original papers, printed by Case & Olds as a free handout newspaper to the store's customers and anyone else who might want a copy.

The old paper will be framed. With it will come a certificate of authenticity, assuring the winner that the prize is a "real for sure" original.

Because of the nature of the prize and its antique value, registration for the prize will be limited to those who are 21 and older.

But the under-21's won't be overlooked. They can register to win their choice of a portable cassette or 8-track tape deck.

Refreshments will include a few things to nibble on, punch—and champagne! —(for adults, of course).

Since there will be only one genuine original copy of the paper to be given away, the disappointment for those who don't win may possibly be eased by the availability of exact reproductions of an 1884 issue of the paper. The reproductions will be 4-page and will be framed. They will be printed on newsprint, to make them as close to the original as possible. The type, the news items—everything in them will be exactly the same as the original.

The paper began publication in March of 1883, as determined by volume numbers of old issues.

Connie Oberlin Named 'Ladies' MV

With the coal strike affecting public activities in recent weeks, the annual winter sports awards dinner of DeKalb Eastside High School was cancelled. However, an awards convocation was held Friday morning in the school gym.

Connie Oberlin was named most valuable player on the girls' varsity basketball team. Assistant coach Lois Vick made the award and called Connie "one of the best defensive players in the state." The graduating senior was selected to the ACAC all-conference first team two consecutive years and to the all-area first team. She won special recognition from the Indiana Girls' Basketball Magazine and earned four letters during her athletic activities.

Amy Hampel was named the most improved player. She was named to the ACAC first team and the all-area first team.

Lisa Johnson, a contender for state honors, average 24 points a game and set school record of 41 points in a game. She was named to the ACAC first team.

Other team members who received letters were Sandy Hood, Mary Jo Baughman, Sunda Obendorf, Anita Hudson, Kandy Kaser, Kathy Ray and Laurie Culler. Student managers Marsha Busche and Linda Mills also received letters.

Wrestling coach Mike Watson presented the most valuable player award to Tony Salinas. Others who received letters included Jim Kreig, Jack Ridenour, Ron Schmucker, Wes Cook, Paul Haynie, Brian Powell, Eugene Evans, Chris Wood, Steve Billings, Tim Hamman, Brad Kaiser, Steve Lechleidner and student manager Mike Kiesling.

President Ignores Built-in Inflation

"Carter Plans Anti-Inflation Measures" was a headline this week. The story told of Mr. Carter's approach to stemming the steady decline of the value of the dollar.

One of his recommendations was laughable, not because it is wrong but because it is out of character for his party. The recommendation:

The federal government set an example of frugality by cutting its spending.

President Carter is a good actor. He must be—to say something like that and keep a straight face. Why? Because it is HIS party which has promoted and expanded big spending programs. It is HIS party which has controlled Congress for years and years and years.

Keep in mind that Congress, not the President, controls spending. All the President can do is make suggestions.

The President's remarks were made at a session of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. Some of them must have wondered if they were hearing correctly, inasmuch as the President also suggested:

"Frugality" by government should be indicated by reducing a 6% pay increase AUTOMATICALLY coming to nearly 3.5 million civilian and military government employees. He said "cut" the pay raise to 5.5%.

IF THE PRESIDENT IS SERIOUS ABOUT FRUGALITY IN GOVERNMENT, THE PAY RAISE SHOULD BE COMPLETELY ABOLISHED.

I commented a couple of weeks ago about the fact that we have inflation "built-in" our economic structure. No expert in economics can refute this novice's point that when pay increases are granted with each new labor contract and included in the governmental payroll structure, and when cost-of-loving pay increases are automatically granted on the basis of the consumer price index, there is automatic inflation. IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO REDUCE INFLATION WHEN YOU GIVE PEOPLE MORE MONEY TO SPEND BUT THEY PRODUCE NO MORE PER HOUR INDIVIDUALLY.

Another suggestion by the President:

Limit the federal budget deficit to around $60 billion. He said he planned to veto an emergency farm bill if it passed Congress, as a step to hold down the budget deficit. (The House defeated the bill Wednesday, so the President has been relieved of that "hot potato.")

This is another instance where it takes a good actor to keep a straight face. We have an annual deficit of $60 billion dollars, which means the federal government is spending $60 billion more a year than it takes in—and the President tries to sell the idea that "holding down" the deficit to $60 billion will stem the tide of inflation.

Inflation will not be stopped until the government cuts back on some programs, eliminates others. There is no way to get around it. Reduction in government spending is a must; just "not starting" new programs (like the farm bill) won't do.

Still another Carter suggestion contradicts the idea of protecting the purchasing power of the average American. The President would impose "stiff" tariffs on imported oil. His "energy bill" has been before Congress for a year. Congress isn't anxious to pass it because it would increase taxes on oil to supposedly reduce the consumption of oil. That means motorists would pay even higher prices for gasoline and fuel oil users would also see their costs increased. President Carter's "energy bill" would TAX consumers, not increase energy sources.

This is a strange solution. Every day I see railroad carloads of automobile frames headed east. Every day I see railroad carloads of automobiles headed west on the Chessie track just a hundred feet from where I am now setting this type. We are producing automobiles as if they were going out of style, as the saying goes. Thousands and thousands of new automobiles every week come off the assembly lines. And they all need gas to run. Yet, the President would "help" the economy stabilize by increasing the cost to operate those automobiles.

Another thing—a large portion of today's economy is based on recreational travel. "Tourism" they call it. We even have a "Tourism Division" in the Indiana Department of Commerce with state government employees being paid full-time salaries to PROMOTE travel. Yet, the President's solution to the energy problem includes INCREASING THE COST OF TRAVEL—which means a higher cost of living—which means automatic cost-of-living pay increases for millions of workers —which means more inflation.

Who brought this problem on? The President? No. The Congress? No. The answer is: you and I brought it on. The President and the Congress can act only so long as you and I let them. The American people expect too much because they have been promised too much. Their own common sense has been smothered by the promise of more, more, more. We have an astronomical federal debt, an astronomical annual federal deficit—and astronomical private indebtedness because Americans have more material wealth than they have earned, they receive more pay and benefits than is represented by their productive efforts.

As long as any elected official, whether it is President Carter, members of Congress or other high officials, can get away with such statements as the President made this week as ways to fight inflation, you and I are going to see the death of the geese that layed the golden egg.

Democrats Hasty Tax Action

Last year, most Republicans in Congress fought a hike in the Social Security tax. Most Democrats supported it. So, the increase went through.

Later, when President Carter signed the bill, he said the Social Security program had been guaranteed by the bill for several years to come.

In recent weeks, certain syndicated columnists have been noting that the Democrats who passed the bill were now working on legislation to cut back on the Social Security tax increase. Their new proposal, prepared quietly until the past couple of weeks, would make up for revenue lost in the tax cutback by using general tax monies.

Three things stand out:

1. The Social Security tax increase was passed hastily by a Democrat majority which ignored the public's pocketbook.

2. Use of general tax funds for Social Security still involves money taken from the taxpayers. (What difference does it make whether you call it a Social Security tax or a general tax? It's still the same amount of money coming out of your pocket.)

3. President Carter covered up the truth when he signed the bill. The legislation didn't add strength and solidarity to the program. There simply isn't enough money to finance Social Security as it is now administered. To put it bluntly, the President deceived the public; some would say he told an outright lie.

Perhaps there should be another point added to the above three—and it may be more important, more significant, than the other three. Here 'tis:

Democrats are reversing their previous hasty legislative Social Security tax hike because of public protest from the folks back home. Letters to members of Congress brought the reversal.

That is encouraging and is an indication that John Q. Public DOES get action when he takes the time to write.

This is one of the quickest reversals of legislation I can remember. And the situation is a reminder for me that, back in 1964 when the late Hubert Humphrey was campaigning in Detroit during the Presidential election, he said something like, "Democrats offer no spur-of-the-moment panaceas....."

He deceived the public with those words. Democrats—not Republicans—have for 46 years proposed spur-of-the-moment "cures" for every type of situation. That's why we have such a muddled mess in Washington today.

The truth of the whole matter is—programs to catch the public's fancy (and its vote) have been fostered by the Democrat majority in Congress and their Presidents. We are all working a third of each week to pay our taxes because of Democrat proposals. They have controlled Congress for 42 of the past 46 years, then some of them—SOME, I said, not "all"—some of them mislead the public into believing that all our troubles are due to Richard Nixon!

One final point. My reference to Democrats and Republicans in this matter is not to embarrass those whose party loyalty lies with the Democrat party. The purpose is to point out that, contrary to popular belief "sold" to the public by certain members of the Democrat party leadership, that party's legislative efforts have not reflected the will of the people, have not been to the best interests of the nation as a whole in the long run. "Back to basics" is the phrase heard oftentimes these days to correct educational deficiencies resulting from years of idealistic experimenting with our school students. That phrase is also applicable to our national economic situation where Democrat party control for many years has brought idealistic legislative efforts which have been based more on theory than on a respect for established sound economic principles.

In the recent coal strike, who looked out for your personal welfare, the Democrat leadership of the nation who allowed a minority to inflict their will on the entire nation, or the Republican leadership as represented by Congressman Dan Quayle, Governor Otis Bowen and Senator Dick Lugar who recognized the potential hazards of the coal strike long before the President stepped in? In the Panama Canal treaty matter, who represents the some 66% of the American public who oppose the treaties, President Carter and the Democrat majority in Congress, or Ronald Reagan and a majority of Republicans who continue to fight approval of the treaties? (A notable exception is Senator Howard Baker, a Republican, who favors the treaties even though most Americans oppose them.)

You need to be careful when taking sides on the basis of political party affiliation. There are "turncoats" on both sides.

All-Night Proms Raise Doubts

Last year, the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette published a full-page spread about the DeKalb Eastside junior-senior prom. It was a cleverly-worded writing in certain respects because without coming right out and saying so, the writer left the reader with the impression that Eastside is "the pits" as far as social behavior is concerned at the "big event" for juniors and seniors. The article left the impression that, generally speaking, students were smoking pot and drinking alcoholic beverages. Principal Robert E. Williams was caught in the middle because he had granted permission for a reporter and photographer to cover the prom, as I recall. He was expecting a factual news story. What we got at Eastside was something quite the opposite.

I think the "bad publicity" is due to the continuing practice of having an all-night affair and using school facilities for it. A reader of this paper knows that I have publicly opposed the all-night program for many years. I see no value whatsoever in allowing such an activity to be conducted. There is no educational significance to "staying up all night" for after-prom activities on school property.

The situation is one of those in which no one knows exactly how or why the all-night idea was undertaken, but it's like being against God, Mother and Country to oppose it. It's a "sacred cow" but there is nothing sacred about it.

At least two past school board presidents have told me they didn't like the practice. But it seemed nothing could be done about it, mainly because to question the practice, as I am doing here, reflects on the private civic groups which have provided chaperones for the affair. Those people could be asking, "What's the matter; doesn't he trust our adult club members?"

This isn't a matter of trusting certain adults. It's a matter of setting an example, it's a matter of the use of school facilities, it's a matter of removing temptation.

If we received "bad" publicity last year, maybe it's our fault. Though the after-midnight activities have not been school-sponsored, the use of school facilities brings an association of place and activity. As a parent, I want that association eliminated. I don't want our school's reputation jeopardized by an activity which has no constructive significance and no social value.

Comments heard from adult chaperones AND STUDENTS indicate to me that the after-midnight activity brings strong arguments against its continuance.

I want to make some things clear:

1. I am not against having a junior-senior prom.

2. I am not against use of school facilities for a banquet and dance.

3. I AM against use of school property after midnight for ANY student activity.

I believe any after-midnight activity should be a matter of private decision; if someone wants to have a party after midnight, that's their privilege; but the school is not the place for it.

I know it is at the moment too late to make any changes this year. However, I believe that the school board ought to seriously consider eliminating the use of school property in the future for junior-senior prom after-midnight activities. Such a move would more appropriately reflect a well-disciplined outlook to set an example for the students.

If some parents are willing to turn their 16 to 18-year-olds lose all night, that's their privilege. If those students are going to have "pot-parties" and "beer blasts" the night of the prom, that's their business. And it is essential that whatever they do be as separated and divorced from association with our school as possible.

Note this: no advance media news releases have been given concerning the all-night junior-senior prom activity the past few years. This is an indication to me that somewhere along the line, someone is saying, "Let's keep it quiet and not spoil the fun."

It is also an indication to me that many adults—teachers, school board members, school administrators, club members and parents—have been intimidated into silence about the matter. They don't like it; but they are afraid to say anything.

—And please keep in mind that I am a parent, too.

Science Fair Placers

Though the DeKalb Eastside High School science fair is yet to be held April 27, five students placed at the regional science fair held at Tri-State University at Angola. Their participation was arranged through recommendation of Kenneth Olin, Eastside science instructor.

Kim Poinsett of R2 Butler was second in the fourth grade level with a project on electroculture.

Kenny Ray of Butler and Brian Sawvel of Butler placed third in the high school chemistry division with a project on the effects of Graham's Law on liquids.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Record Turnout Hears Butz

A record crowd of 531 attended the annual Lincoln Day Dinner of the DeKalb County Republican Party. The event was held Friday at the Auburn-Cord-Duesenberg Museum.

Guest speaker was former U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz. He criticized President Jimmy Carter for having made the word "profit" an "evil word." He stated that inflation is due chiefly to present big government. He pointed out that in 1962 the federal budget was $100 billion. Now the proposed budget is $500 billion.

Mr. Butz said Congress is the weakest branch of government and that members of Congress are "pushing inflation and selling out to labor." One-third of them owe their election to organized labor.

The speaker described Indiana Governor Otis Bowen as "one of the greatest the state has ever had." He also had words of praise for Congressman Dan Quayle, described as "someone who has some sense of fiscal responsibilty and who knows something about what makes this country tick."

Mr. Butz noted that any improvement in the national picture must come from the people and this points out the importance of grass roots activity as represented by local precinct committeemen.

Flena Rubalcabo of northeast of Saint Joe served as master of ceremonies. She made appropriate observations about Abraham Lincoln and the presidency.

K'garten Roundup

Registration dates for kindergarten roundup at the Riverdale and Butler elementary schools have been set, according to elementary principle Charles Ray.

Registration at Riverdale will be held Tuesday, April 25, at 3:15 p.m. in the cafetorium. At Butler, registration will be held Wednesday, April 26, at 3:45 p. m. in the cafetorium.

To be eligible for kindergarten, children must be five years of age on or before September 1, 1978. Verification of age must be established by birth certificate at the time of registration.

During registration, parents will receive health forms that must be completed by their family physician and dentist and returned by the time the child enters school in the fall.

Indiana law mandates that all children entering school be immunized against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, measles, rubella (German measles) and poliomyelitis. No child will be permitted to attend school for more than 30 days beyond the date of enrollment unless fully immunized or immunization has begun. Also, a child must have proof of a tuberculosis skin test.

Della Farrer and Carole Hampel, kindergarten teachers; Alice Cole, school nurse; Rex McFerran, school social worker; Loretta Musser and Grace Bellamy, school secretaries; and Mr. Ray will be present at the respective roundups to answer questions.

It is important that parents attend the meetings, Mr. Ray said. Information needed for enrollment is provided, including a sound filmstrip suggesting practical things parents can do to help their children.

A brief description of the kindergarten program and health information will also be given.

As far as thousands of people are concerned---

"he's" still single. That's because he's still listed as just "Michael W. Leon" in the telephone directory. There is no mention of his wife, Joan - nor their three teenagers. After all, don't they deserve their own listings?

Well, now you can let everybody know about the great things happening in your life with the new edition of your telephone directory. It's going to press soon. So if you're about to make any changes or add a dual name listing, now's the time to do it.

Just call our business office and find out what the charges are, if any.

Happiness Is...

SERVICE

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

An old fable says that it was proclaimed by an angel in a certain city that whoever laid an acceptable offering on the altar in the cathedral on a certain day would receive a miraculous sign of acceptance, with the divine blessing.

The rich paraded ostentatiously down the center aisle, and gave their rare and costly gifts. Mighty soldiers laid their swords there, kings and emperors their crowns and scepters; but all were rejected by invisible angelic hands.

At the last hour, in the twilight, a young woman, modestly dressed, slipped into the church and, hugging the shadows, crept up to the front of the church and placed her hands upon the altar. Then she silently slipped away as she had come.

But where she laid her hands, behold, two tall white lilies sprang up, bloomed, and filled the temple with fragrance. Her service, humble and complete, was the best of all the gifts laid upon the altar.

Happiness is . . . . service.

Letters.....

Dear Ted,

As I have accepted a new position, I will soon be leaving Georgia State University and Atlanta. On April 3 I will assume the position of Assistant Director of Engineering Libraries/ Assistant Professor Library Science at Purdue University. Please note the following change in my mailing address effective immediately: 2410 B-7 Happy Hollow Road, West LaFayette, IN 47906.

I will truly miss Atlanta, a city I have fallen in love with, and wherever I go I will always be a one man chamber of commerce talking up Atlanta. I'm also excited about returning to Indiana and joining the faculty of Purdue University. I may start to reconsider when Winter returns, however. Anyone traveling through West Lafayette is encouraged to stop and look me up.

Sincerely,
Jerry W. Mansfield

Dear Ted:-

As it is the time to renew my subscription to the St. Joe News, I have decided to discontinue renewing sorely due to failing eye sight. I can no longer get any more helpful eye glasses than I now have and which aren't strong enough to read.

I have taken the news many years. Thank you for your kindness in times past.

Sincerely yours
Audrey E. Wade

Sorry to "lose" you. But we understand. —Ed.

Tornado 'Season' Brings Tips On Public Protection

—by Guy Maustelier
Public Relations Director of DeKalb County Civil Defense

(Second of three parts)

The United States Department of Commerce publication issued a wind speed estimation guide which gives some idea of the miles per hour the wind is traveling by observing objects around us.

25 to 31 mph—large branches moving. Whistling heard in overhead wires.

32 to 38 mph—whole trees moving; inconvenience in walking against the wind.

55 to 63 mph—moderate structural and tree damage.

WHAT ARE TORNADO REPORTS?

Tornado Watch—this means that a tornado or severe thunderstorm may develop because conditions are favorable for severe weather within a defined area. You should continue normal activities, but be alert for any changes in cloud formations. Your radio or TV should be tuned to stations that issue weather information or radio monitor National Weather Service.

Tornado Warning—this means that a tornado or severe thunderstorm has been sighted or indicated by radar. You should seek shelter immediately if such conditions are sighted. Keep constant watch and be prepared to go for a maximum protection area.

WHAT TO DO IF A TORNADO STRIKES

If you are at home, open windows on the north and east sides of the house to allow for sudden air pressure changes. Go immediately to an underground shelter. If no underground shelter, go to your basement and get under something heavy or a stairway. If there is no basement, go to a small interior room on the lowest floor, such as halls, closets or bathroom, and stay near the floor. Keep away from outside walls, doors or windows. Do not go outside.

If you are in open country and there is time to escape, move at right angles to the tornado's path. If escape is impossible, lie flat in the nearest depression, such as a ditch or ravine.

If you are in a city or town, seek protection in a designated shelter area, in a strong reinforced building or in the basement of a frame structure. Keep away from doors and windows.

If you are in a school or factory, stay inside, away from windows, near inside walls. Avoid auditoriums and gymnasiums or any area with long roof spans and few supporting posts. In schools or factories with less than strongly reinforced construction, personnel shoud be removed to a ravine or ditch if storm shelters are not available. Never go to your car in a parking lot.

Remember—there is no sure protection against tornadoes except underground.

Keep as calm as possible, as excitement only increases the hazard. People have been killed by running outside and turning back into the tornado path. Keep a good battery-powered radio available for weather information.

Next week—preparation for a tornado in the form of questions and emergency help.

DAR Meets

Mrs. Marlin Yoder introduced the DAR Poster Contest winners at the March meeting of the John Houlton Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The theme, "The American Way," was depicted through the different categories of service to home, school and country—the freedoms, patriotism, the lives of the founders, and anti-pollution.

First place winners were Tim Murdock, Nicole Woodworth and Kirk Schaefer of McIntosh School in Auburn; Noelle Robbins and Debbie Habakken of Auburn East Elementary School and Angie Metzger of Waterloo. Certificates and money were awarded the winners.

Mrs. Norman Best entertained the group with a colorful description of the Natchez Home Pilgrimage. This tour of homes is an annual event and sponsored by the Pilgrimage Garden Club of Natchez.

In traveling to Mississippi, settlers followed the Natchez Trace. This is a highway beginning in Nashville. The DAR has placed historic markers along the way.

Southern owners did not have the money to restore their homes following the Civil War. Many homes deteriorated. In 1938, Katherine Miller of Hope Farm conceived the idea of the Pilgrimage. At first only three homes were shown. Today, 35 homes are included in the showing.

These homes were built by slave labor and reflect luxurious living. Much of the material used was imported. France, England and Spain left their mark in southern architecture.

Hope Farm, built in 1774, was once the home of a Spanish governor. It is furnished with family heirlooms. "Natchez Under the Hill" was at one time a hideout and rendezvous for gamblers and pirates.

"Rosalie," built in 1820, was the headquarters of generals Grant and Gresham during the Union Occupation. It is now owned by the Mississippi DAR.

"Stanton Hall," the most elaborate of the antebellum homes, occupies an entire block. In the courtyard, the Carriage House is now a famous restaurant.

"Richmond," built in 1770, 1832 and 1860, reflects three types of architecture, representing three periods of Natchez history. It contains the original furnishings.

"Longwood," the largest octagon house in the United States, was begun in 1856 but halted in 1861 because of the Civil War. Only the nine-room ground floor was completed and lived in. It was given to the Pilgrimage Garden Club in 1970 by the McAdams Foundation. It is a national historic landmark.

Town Board

The town board of Saint Joe met in regular session last week. Present were board members Butch Coburn, Loretta Loy and Fred Rayle; clerk-treasurer Emma Frank; and visitors including Denny Baker, John Nadolny, Jim and Donna Norris and Ted Haberkorn.

Part of the meeting was devoted to some questions presented by Mr. Haberkorn in behalf of some local citizens regarding the proposed sewage treatment plant.

No answers were forthcoming to such questions as: how much will it cost for hookup to the proposed sewage plant lines (the property owner is reponsible for the cost of running tile from home to sewer line); how much is the grant being sought for the sewer system; has the board decided what type of treatment to install.

When no answers, not even approximations, could be given to the questions, Mrs. Loy suggested setting up a public meeting to be held in the near future to include the presence of a representative from Clyde E. Williams & Associates, to answer any questions the public may have.

Mr. Haberkorn noted the board's responsibility in decision-making concerning the proposed sewage project and suggested, "Think about it—the board doesn't know the answers to the questions, yet it is responsible for the project." He had noted that a recent conversation with a local resident brought that resident's fear of a $1600 hook-up expense. The same resident was reported to have been "speechless for ten seconds" when told that the cost of the project is over $1 million.

In other business, the board accepted a contract offer by Mr. Baker to apply weed and grass killer around cemetery markers at Riverside Cemetery to help keep the area presentable through the year. During the discussion prior to the vote, Mr. Haberkorn pointed out that such a project might involve "paying twice" for the same service, inasmuch as the board has advertised for bids for cemetery care which includes trimming around cemetery markers. However, the board felt that the weed killer project was necessary to guarantee the good appearance of the cemetery.

The board authorized an application by airplane of an oil-base mosquito larvae killer, as described by Mr. Nadolny. He also presented an estimate of around $450 for a one-time airplane application of mosquito "killer" but stressed at the same time the importance of the early-season destruction of mosquito larvae. He suggested that the public be made aware of the importance to eliminate places where water can accumulate, such as old tires, tin cans and heavy brush.

The town has used its "fogger" for many years. Its effectiveness, however, diminished when DDT was banned. Other chemicals have not done a comparable job.

The board plans to seek the cooperation of townspeople in placing numbers on their residences to assist in emergency situations. A copy of a town map was discussed to help do the numbering. Mr. Haberkorn offered to get his old blueprint copy of the 1929 official town map which already has the lots numbered for the most part. A few other copies of the map also exist. He said, "We can do it in a half hour," referring to the assignment of numbers. But the board carried the matter over.

Though there are other maps of the town, such as those prepared by I&M for street lighting and General Tel for telephone lines, there has been no official town map prepared through the town board since 1929. However, that old map still provides almost all the identification required for today's needs.

The board indicated that it would provide mosquito-control information at the April 19 special meeting set up originally to receive bids on cemetery care and park care.

Kenny Roberts has resigned as a town maintenance employee due to his health. He and Mrs. Roberts reportedly plan to move to Auburn.

Rich Gfeller was mentioned as the tentative replacement for Mr. Roberts.

It was noted that no one has as yet volunteered to serve as dog warden. Mr. Rayle said one of his sons might be a possibility.

Reporting for the fire department, Mr. Rayle stated that three new members are on the department's roster: Steve Monroe, Fred Rayle, Jr., and Gary Norton.

He also requested that the board purchase a double female and the request was granted at a cost not to exceed $40.

Bills presented were: I&M street lights $284.06; Merritt, Inc., trash collection 331.50; DeKalb County Farm Bureau fuel oil 52.64; William Mansfield, labor 10.00.

Waterworks: William Mansfield, salary and expenses 45.36; Indiana Department of Revenue, sales tax on water bills 84.34; Indiana State Board of Health, fee 10.00; I&M 128.58.

An effort is being made to relieve a standing water problem at the Lynn Duke and Bob Chew residences.

Discussion about the park and cemetery care bids included a statement by Mr. Haberkorn that what originally involved only mowing and trimming has now expanded to total care. He pointed out the wording "general upkeep" in a legal notice for bids and said "that means everything, not just mowing." Mrs. Loy said she didn't interpret the legal notice as meaning total upkeep.

Kay Smith's 'Cuts And Curls' Grand Opening Set For April 25th Through 29th

When a customer at "Family Cuts and Curls" in Saint Joe has hair care done at the hands of owner Kay Smith, he or she is getting the benefit of 17 years of experience.

It seems almost impossible that this attractive young woman has been a part of the local business community that long. But from 1961 to 1978 adds up to 17 years, and it was in 1961 that Kay first opened her beauty shop. She used a room in the house in which she and her late husband, Ronnie, set up housekeeping after their marriage. It is located just west of the local hardware and furniture and years ago was the Buckingham property. Kay now resides at Hamilton Lake but is planning to move in the near future.

Kay's parents ran the hardware for three years during which time Kay graduated from Riverdale High School. She remained in the remodeled house with her beauty shop until 1968.

In 1968, after remodeling and furnishing the present location of the beauty shop, the business continued to grow. The building had been utilized by her parents as a furniture storeroom for a time. In years past, the building was used as an office by "Doc DeMuth, a family physician from Hicksville. And before that time, the building was used as a livery stable, according to former Saint Joe resident and historian Willard Hurni of Auburn.

With additional customers, Kay was assisted at one time or another by Carol Seiler, Debbie Miller who served her apprenticeship here and Mary Minor. At the present time, Cindy Culbertson is a stylist at "Family Cuts and Curls." Kay says, "I don't know what I'd do without her!"

Both Kay and Cindy are attending frequent training courses as the term "beauty shop" slowly becomes obsolete and "hair care" becomes the more appropriate term. Kay's training sessions have taken her coast to coast, and as a registered cosmetologist, her professional skills have reached into the field of "trichoanalysis," a patented system of hair analyzing and appropriate hair treatment. The system was developed by the Redken company and Kay carries a full line of Redken products.

As an "extra" during Kay's Grand Opening Week running Tuesday, April 25, to Saturday, April 29, a Redken representative will be at "Family Cuts and Curls" all day Thursday, April 27.

During Grand Opening Week, there will be refreshments daily at the hair care facility. In addition, Kay is giving a 10% discount on all Redken hair care products.

The week will conclude Saturday with a drawing for three prizes.

Though Kay was thrown into the role of "breadwinner" at an early age, with two daughters to support, she is obviously happy in her work. One of the reasons has nothing to do with hair care, she noted this week. That reason for finding fulfillment in her work is in the knowledge that, for some customers, her shop is a place to find someone to talk to. She said that some experts in the field predict hair care shops in the future as substitutes for or replacement of doctors' offices, simply because of the opportunity to talk, to be listened to, to share common experiences with others. Kay reflects a keen sense of observation and awareness of people as individuals when she says, "The most important thing isn't what we do to their (the customers') hair; it's what we do FOR THEM."

Kay inherited her keen "sense of business" from her parents, who were successes in every business they were involved in, from mint farm to hardware and furniture to real estate. There was also a stretch of sod farming in there somewhere.

A heart attack suffered by Eddie Halt forced the sale of the hardware and furniture store. A later attack proved fatal. Thereafter Reta, Kay's mother, went into real estate and also owned a miniature golf course and drive-in lunch stand.

Kay says she can still hear her father's economic advice "to us kids." And the wisdom of that advice is reflected in the conscientious, professional and "first class effort" approach as seen in her most recent venture, the opening of "Family Cuts and Curls." It appears no exaggeration to say, "There's not a shop like it for miles and miles."

People of all ages are invited to stop in during Grand Opening Week and register for prizes. And they will probably learn something about their hair they didn't know before.

Ye Editor's 30th anniversary as editor and the 95th birthday of The Saint Joe News will be officially observed Saturday, April 29, with an open house.

Those who attend will have an opportunity to examine back issues of the paper, see some "antique machinery" as far as modern printing is concerned, enjoy refreshments, and register for a drawing.

The prize for those over 21 will be a rarity—a copy of the local newspaper dating back 94 years.

In 1894, the paper was distributed from "The Big Four Store" of Case & Olds. Mort Olds edited the small "handout" newspaper which contained news items and brief note-ads telling of the merchandise available at the store.

The old issue to be given away will be framed. With it will come a certificate of authenticity because of the document's monetary as well as historic value.

For those under 21, a separate drawing will be held. The prize is a portable AM-FM radio.

Only Fred B. Leighty served a longer period of time than the present editor—40 years, from 1906 to the winter of 1945-46. He was killed at Christmastime as he crossed the main street in the evening and was struck by a car.

The News of Fourty Years-Appreciation of a Reader-It's Our Birthday

(The following article appeared in the January 14, 1926, issue of the St. Joe News. The author is only identified as "Reader.").

"Glancing at the date line of the last issue of The St. Joe News, the writer of this article was made aware of the fact that this issue will be the first number to begin the fortieth year of its existence.

"Wonder if there are many towns the size of St. Joe that can boast of a newspaper for that length of time? Many of our older readers can remember The News as a mere infant, and was not much larger than a handbill. Its father, M. E. Olds, a merchant in the early days of our little city, started it with a view of advertising his wares, and incidentally throwing in a few local items, served in a spicy manner.

"Many of the early readers will remember the Barcus Q. Hippenhammer articles, written in a style that might well cause Artimus Ward to turn green with envy.

"The advertisements extolled the virtues of Stew Pan T. and Nimble Nickel Soap. Mort sold many safety pins in those days as early copies of the paper will attest.

"You did not subscribe to the paper in those days. A convenient cigar box attached to the front door of the store was accessible to all, first come, first served. Later the paper was enlarged and subscriptions were taken for same.

"The News passed into other hands in due course of time. Bowman and Johnson, I believe were the successors to Mr. Olds, then followed (perhaps not in the order here set forth) Williams, L. W. Yeiser. L. O. Tustison and Wm. Quance had temporary charge at different periods, while the paper was owned and controlled by F. B. Leighty the present manager and publisher.

"I wonder how many of the present day readers ever paused to reflect what difference it would make to this community in its business and social affairs if this paper would at once cease to exist; or looking at it from a slightly different angle, what would the community be like today had it never existed? This is a thought that has come to me often. I wonder if any other person has wondered, that's all.

"As a reader of papers local and papers metropolitan I want to say this, each has its sphere, its influence in its own way. Neither can take the place of the other. As an instrument fostering a community spirit, and as a means of creating and upholding of moral institutions it ranks with the school and the pulpit, there is a tendency upon the part of cosmopolitan papers to jeer and caricaturize country journals and country people. When we look upon the pages of some of our city papers, read their jests at law that does not harmonize with their desires, hear the flings at reformers, see the trash that is supposed to be funny in the so-called comic strips, we feel that the short comings of the country editor will place him on the credit side of the ledger, when the accounts are squared. That is one thing we have never seen in the pages of a country weekly, connivance with, or, at least condonment of lawbreakers, cynical slams at things religious, and jibes at those who are not tolerant toward indecency.

"The hope of our country lies in its plain people, and the country Editor is of the plain people among them, his problems are their problems, his hopes, his desires and his ambitions, are akin to their own. With those who rejoice he can rejoice, and when sorrow comes he can come near for in a country community we are never strangers. (Reader)."

Rapping With Youth About.....

What I Wanted To Say.....

The recent coal strike interferred with a lot of activities which shouldn't have been imposed upon. One of those activities was the annual winter sports carryin banquet and honors night. Athletes, coaches, administrators and parents of athletes normally get together for the occasion.

But this year it was cancelled due to energy-use restrictions.

The athletes were honored at a student convocation. But that was a disappointment to me because I was all "primed" to say a few words in behalf of all patrons of the district. No, I had not been asked to make any remarks; I planned to ask Athletic Director Bill Peden on the banquet night for a few minutes.

The athletes were recognized at the convocation. But the words of praise from the coaches are what you expect from them. I felt something was needed, and appropriate, from outside the ranks of coaches and athletes. So, it was a disappointment that there was no opportunity for an "outsider" to add words of praise—and to point out some very important contributions made by, in particular, "The Lady Blazers."

I believe that athletics today are overemphasized. I'm talking about the excessive programming required under the "equal opportunities" regulations forced on school systems by government edict.

The situation is so bad that the hiring of teachers for ACADEMIC subjects is often determined by the prospective teacher's COACHING qualifications. School superintendents and school boards must find not only good teachers but good teachers with the right combination of talents to fill a school's particular situation. That's like having the tail wag the dog.

But I also believe that the value of athletics is underestimated. And I recall that, in the past several years, it has been our ATHLETES who have provided a re-birth of school spirit and enthusiasm. And it wouldn't have happened without good coaches.

Think back. When reorganization brought Riverdale and Butler together, there was a period of adjustment for both areas. It was difficult for many people, student and adult, to accept the "other guy."

However, the transition was helped tremendously because we had an outstanding baseball team (what was it, 21 out of 22 games a winner?).

We had the beginnings of the dispute about a school site. And who helped keep the district together? The basketball team, a sectional winner despite their small size.

Some further problems were made bearable by whom? A football team under a coach who pumped life into his squad and spirit into the school.

Then down we went again with salary disputes. And who was it that CHALLENGED all of us by their untiring and unselfish efforts? "The Lady Blazers" with a sectional championship in 1977!

More problems—more disillusionment due to suits filed against the school board. And who once again CHALLENGED every student and every adult in the district to rise above petty things and work for positive results? "The Lady Blazers" again—with another sectional championship. in 1978!

I hope that, somehow, our students read this dissertation, or hear about it—because their own peer group proved a lesson of life that is basic and fundamental. TO WIN YOU MUST WORK. TO SUCCEED, YOU MUST WORK. TO GAIN FULFILLMENT IN WHATEVER YOU DO, YOU MUST WORK. And "The Lady Blazers" are living proof.

Of course, there is an essential element involved —leadership. You can have the best players in the world. But if you don't know how to use them, the results can be disastrous. It is no secret that we didn't have the best players in the world on the girls' varsity basketball team. After all, when you're playing a full schedule of basketball games and five players play 99% of the total games' time, obviously the team has some limitations. And that's where "The Lady Blazers" became "winners," not only in the games played but also in the manner in which they played those games.

Those gals are "winners" because of two reasons:

1. They had the best coach in the state of Indiana and he knew their limitations; and

2. The gals knew and accepted their limitations and when Coach Bob Brown talked, THEY LISTENED!

There are those who scoff at the wisdom of the late Grantland Rice and the final lines of his poetic effort: "It matters not that you won or lost, but how you played the game."

But there is eternal truth in those words. His thought is a sports-related way of saying what is in the Bible. "Do your best" is what a true sports fan has in mind, whether as a participant or as a spectator. Use your talents, whatever they may be, and limited though they may be in comparison with the talents of those about you, your best effort will bring fulfillment —and sometimes a literal "winner"!

The Lady Blazers used their talents. They did their best. And two sectional championships are testimony to that fact.

Last year, in a write-up about the Lady Blazers, I mentioned the number of times they had been behind by 6, 8, 10 or more points in games during the season, but kept plugging away and won those games. It wasn't talent that did it. It was dedication, determination—and discipline.

"Discipline" is a bad word in today's society. But, kids, you are only fooling yourselves if you think the word is out of date or out of place.

In the past two seasons of girls' varsity basketball, it has been five young women who taught the community a lesson. The climax came not in winning the 1978 sectional tourney. The climax—and the lesson on the value of discipline—came in the regional loss to Heritage.

Down by 10 points or so, even with half the final period gone, the Lady Blazers kept plugging away. It was thrilling. I was standing at one end of the floor shooting movies of the game. As the gals got up to just two or three points behind, I turned to walk a small circle to blink away a few tears in my eyes and I thought, "My God! Look what these kids are doing!" I am certain there were some other adults in the bleachers who were blinking and thinking the same as I was.

We didn't win the game, but it took overtime for Heritage to take the victory. And our Lady Blazers, in losing, re-affirmed for me and other grownups the truth of the belief that doing one's best is more important than winning. The most sought-after people, the most respected people, are those who try harder. You remember them after you have forgotten who won the game.

Our gals humbled themselves by disciplining themselves to the leadership of their coach. Those Lady Blazers—I love 'em—especially Number 22, "the fighter"—for the example they set for others to follow. They made "trying" more imporant than "winning," and thus became a winner; they made "discipline" a dignified and challenging word in a day when sports are burdened by million-dollar crybabies; they brought sunshine into our school system where gloom has been evident so often in recent years.

—That's what I wanted to say at the winter sports banquet we didn't have.

The 'Declaration' Need

It's usually around election time that the matter of the two-party system comes up for some criticism. In particular, a number of people resent having the necessity of declaring their party affiliation in order to vote at a May primary election. The criticism is due to a misunderstanding.

Though we call it an "election" in May, the word forgotten is "primary"—or "first." A primary election is the first step in putting people into office. A primary election compares to the nominating committee in an organization. Or, it compares with nominations "from the floor"—either way, an opportunity is given for people in the group to indicate whom they would like to see in a specific office or position of responsibility. Though there may be only one opening to fill, several people may be eligible to serve and willing to serve. Thus, the voting group has an opportunity to make a choice.

In the coming May primary election, candidates for public office will not be elected. Instead, each political party will select those individuals from their party who are eligible for political office and willing to serve in that office.

Because the primary election is a "nomination" process, it is necessary to ask the voter his or her party affiliation when voting at the primary election because the voter is entitled to nominate candidates only from his or her party.

Sometimes there are "cross-over" nominations. That is, an individual may feel so strongly in favor of a candidate on the other party's list of nominees that he or she will declare their party affiliation opposite their actual loyalty in order to get a primary ballot on which to mark their preference. Or the individual may make an opposite declaration because he or she is so strongly AGAINST someone on the opposite ticket that he or she wants to help get someone else nominated.

This practice is not encouraged, generally speaking, because it can lead to "playing around" with the nominating process. It may even be illegal; I don't know.

The exception in primary elections as to the nominating process involves "non-partisan" offices. For instance, in May we will nominate candidates for certain political offices who will then run against one another in November to be elected to office. But we will ELECT school board members. Non-partisan means that a candidate's place on the ballot is not a matter of Republican or Democrat or Independent or whatever. It means the candidate is on the ballot as an individual.

(Another exception is that we will elect delegates to the respective party state conventions.)

So, if you hear someone complain about "invasion of privacy" because they must say "I am a Democrat" or "I am a Republican" at the primary election, remember that such a declaration is necessary because candidates are being NOMINATED by the political parties, not elected. In November, at the general election, no declaration of party affiliation is needed. You vote privately, you can vote a straight ticket or you can pick candidates from any party having eligible nominees. No one knows how you voted except you.

The important point to remember as the May 2 primary election approaches is that you will be NOMINATING candidates on the bassis of "politics" to seek office in the November general election, but you will be ELECTING school board members on a "non-partisan" basis.

Reproductions

At the open house of The Saint Joe News, there will be exact copies of the January 26, 1884, issue of the paper available for purchase by those who want a memento of the past history of Saint Joe. It is an item of interest to show the role of a newspaper when a community came into existence in pioneer days.

The replica has the folksy bits of news interspersed with advertisements for the "Big Four Store" which published the paper in those days.

The humorous column of "Barcus Q. Hippenhammer" is a part of the old issue. Mort Olds wrote the column under the unusual pen name.

TO THE EDITOR—
Dear Editor:

I am writing your newspaper with hopes that you will publish my name and address for the purpose of obtaining a pen pal.

I am 32, presently in prison, and have lost all contact with people on the outside. This letter is basically the only way I have to get someone to write to.

I would appreciate your placing my name and address in your paper as a filler.

Thank you.

Dear Ted:

I extend to you my heartiest congratulations on the recent birthday of the Saint Joe News.

I join with your friends and the citizens of St. Joe in saying "Happy Birthday" and thanking you for your many years of providing the community with high-quality news reporting.

Best wishes to you for continued success.

Sincerely,
Dick

Friend Ted:

Hi! from Chapel Hill. We had a much needed shower this morning (April 13). It has been hot, dry and awful dusty here. The temp. was in the 90's a few days, but it has been in the 80's for 3 weeks. Our only cool days were Easter Sat. and Sun. It was rainy and in the 40's.

The leaves are all out and flowers in bloom everywhere. It is really beautiful here.

Just wanted to tell you not to send my St. Joe News any more as I will be home. Thank you for mailing it to me.

Bye for now.

Any interested riders are welcome to join the fun. Donor checks should be made out to: St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

'Pickles' Adds To Saturday's Fun

Adding to the fun for the open house weekend at Saint Joe is a gesture by Frank Sechler of the local pickle processing plant to show appreciation for Kay Smith's expanded business venture which includes adding to the attractiveness of the downtown Saint Joe area.

Frank says he will give three $10 gift certificates, good at the "Family Cuts and Curls" hair care salon. The winners will be the three people who come nearest to guessing the number of pickles in a gallon jar. To help guessers get an idea of what they are guessing at, a gallon jar of pickles has been placed in each of three business places: the Saint Joe Restaurant, Brown Furniture & Hardware and the Knisely Branch Bank.

"Yes, men are eligible to guess, too," Frank says, since Kay's establishment name means "family" literally.

Winners will have their certificates mailed to them next week.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

Zay Sailer stopped in a few days ago and said the article about the businesses in town many years ago brought back memories of "old" Saint Joe.

Zay will be 83 next month and has resided here for 80 years.

Bill Beebe brought in a business card from 'way back when. It's a humorous type of thing used by J. L. Rhodenbaugh to promote his business. The card indicates "Bell Phone No. 28," "Work Guaranteed" and "At Your Service." Following the heading "To Whom It may Concern," the card states that Mr. Rhodenbaugh "is an Auctioneer and Pedigreed Stock Salesman with Plenty of mouth and lots of tongue,

Will sell to either old or young,

No way shy or hard of hearing,

Can't be beat for auctioneering,

Now it doesn't matter, wet or dry,

He will holler loud and sell 'em high."

On the back side is the following:

'Don"t be a KNOCKER. If there is any chance to boom business, boom it. Don't pull a long face and look as though you had a sour stomach. Hold up your head, smile and look for better things. Hide your trip hammer and try to speak well of others, no matter how small you may really know yourself to be.

"When a stranger drops in, jolly him, tell him ST. JOE is the greatest place on earth—AND IT IS. Don't discourage him by speaking ill of your neighbors. Lead him to believe he has at last struck a place where people live, and if you find him on the street looking for a good time, kick his (picture of a certain four-legged beast of burden) but before doing so, remember him kindly to The St. Joe News, St. Joe, Ind. The only place to get first-class Up-to-Date, well displayed, Neat, Attractive, Two-Color Sale Bills."

With what's happened in the past week or two, it might be appropriate to call Saturday, April 29, "Saint Joe Open House and Garage Sale Day."

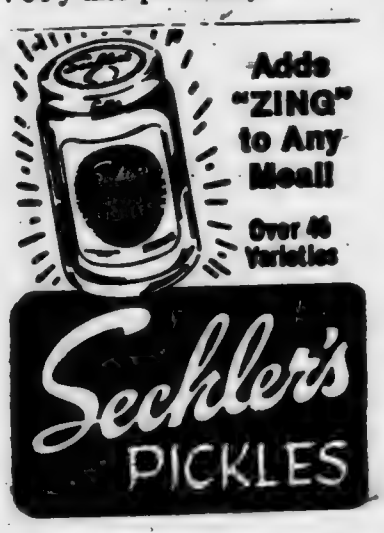
With the grand opening week of "Family Cuts and Curls" to be climaxed by a drawing for three prizes, with The Saint Joe News having an open house Saturday, with the restaurant, the grocery and the hardware having specials, and the upholstery shop having a special on fabrics, plus several garage and yard sales, what else would you call it?

And Marie Noel is having a "$1 grab bag" at the Nosey Nook—all of which put together means "come to Saint Joe Saturday, April 29, for some small-town shopping and relaxation."

If anyone has been everlooked in the schedule of yard sales, it is unintentional.

Did you see the results of a recent study by a psychology professor? She says men who like leggy women tend to have nicer personalities than those who like women with large breasts or buttocks. Nancy Hirschberg, professor at the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle, made the 10-year study.

That means I should have a v-e-r-y nice personality.



School Board

Following a study by Committee On Athletics of the DeKalb eastern school board, a recommendation was made April 17 to seek a new varsity basketball coach and a new athletic director.

In an obviously "ticklish" situation, committee chairman Norman Kinsey said an effort was being made "not to hurt anyone," but it was felt that a change was necessary to make Eastside more "competitive" in boys varsity basketball in particular.

Bill Peden has been serving in both capacities and recently asked to be relieved of classroom duties due to the expansion of athletics and resulting time consumed in scheduling and so on.

18 teachers attended the meeting apparently to hear the results on an executive session at which faculty re-hiring was discussed. The board voted to rehire all teachers currently on the faculty. Three resignations made the only exceptions, one to seek a job in physical education and another due to moving from the community.

It was decided to make no changes in the driver's education program. The Boy Scouts were granted permission to renovate at their own expense the south lobby of the old gym in Butler. A report was given on the recent national school board convention. The system will remain in the special education cooperative program.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank those who sent me cards, flowers and get-well wishes, and visited me in the hospital, for their thoughtfulness. It is greatly appreciated.

Happiness Is...

WINGS OF FAITH

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

On many a fine spring morning, I have seen one of God's little creatures, the bird, standing upon a flimsy branch, pouring forth his sweetest melodies. What a wonderful chorister is he, and equally wonderful preacher!

Unminded of the frailty of his perch, he merrily sings. He is quite independent of the limb on which he stands. If it should break beneath his feet, his wings will lift him into the broad expanse of the sky. The happy bird preaches to us a most excellent sermon on the triumph of wings.

You have wings — a capacity of soul that enables you to soar far above the broken branches of earth into the infinitude of God. Keep strong the wings of faith. If loss or sorrow befalls you, do not fall dispirited to the earth. To your wings! They will lift you into the heights where hope never fails. If the frail limb that supports your earthly life breaks, and death overtakes you, fear not. Stretch your wings of faith, and they will bear you aloft to fly forever in the greatness and goodness of God.

Happiness is . . wings of faith.

In Sincere Appreciation

TO THE PEOPLE OF DEKALB COUNTY who responded so graciously with prayers, cards, flowers, calls, and countless acts of kindness during our recent illnesses, we say THANK YOU AND GOD'S BEST TO ALL OF YOU.

Newville Bazaar

Ladies of the Newville United Methodist Church are planning a rummage sale Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, April 26, 27 and 28. Sale time is 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Among the items to be offered for sale are baked goods, clothing and miscellaneous.

The church is located on State Road 8 at Newville.

EHS Thespians Present 'Bye.....'

The DeKalb Eastside Drama Department will present "Bye Bye Birdie" May 5 and 6 at 8 p.m. in the high school cafetorium.

Tickets are available in advance at the administration office at $2.25 for adults and $1.25 for students. Tickets at the door will be $2.50 and $1.50, respectively.

The musical concerns the romance of a composer-publisher-agent and his secretary, plus the drafting of his rock 'n roll star into the Army. In a gigantic publicity stunt they all descend on a small Ohio town and proceed to "turn it upside down."

The results are hilarious and musicallly rewarding.

'Wag Tag Day'

May 6 is "Wag Tag Day" in DeKalb County. Boys and girls from the 4-H Dog Club and the Boy Scouts will be selling tags to raise funds for the DeKalb County Humane Society, Inc.

There will be a program at 1 p.m. that Saturday on the west side of the courthouse in Auburn. This will be an opportunity to see the 4-H Dog Club Drill Team in action.

The day marks the beginning of "Be Kind To Animals Week" May 7-13.

T-shirts will be on sale that day.

Board Candidates

When voters in the DeKalb eastern school district go to the polls May 2 for the primary election, they will select three members for the local school board.

Though the members of the board qualify according to specified areas in the district, voters in the entire district vote for candidates in all those areas.

Thus, all voters in the district will select one candidate from the following areas:

Board member-at-large for Butler City and Wilmington Township—Gene R. Balser of Butler or Sondra Phillips of Butler.

Board member-at-large for Concord, Newville, Spencer, Stafford and Troy townships—Connie Hollabaugh (incumbent) of Spencerville, Jerry Storer of R1 Saint Joe (Spencer Township), or Mary Tucker of Spencerville.

Board member-at-large for Wilmington Township—Lynn Fuller of R1 Butler, or Walter Grogg of R1 Butler.

Mrs. Hollabaugh had decided not to seek re-election. However, an "open letter" to her from the editor, appearing in these pages as the filing deadline drew near, resulted in what she called an "overwhelming" response from school patrons in this area urging her to seek re-election. She filed just before the deadline.

Newville Twp. Homemakers

—Dorine Singer, reporter

The Newville Extension Homemakers met April 10 at the Grabill Inn for a lovely lunch, then returned to Gladys Impton's home for the afternoon session. Her assistant was Charlotte Kimmel.

President Doris Hart opened the business meeting with the club collect. "A Christian Woman's Paraphrase," taken from the 13th chapter of 1st Corinthians by Eleanor McElroy, was given as devotions by Dorine Singer.

"The Easter Parade" was the song of the month. 21 members and two guests, Mrs. Ladd and Mrs. West, answered roll call with an April Fool joke.

The ladies are to be entertained by "The Town and Country Club" Tuesday, April 25, at 7:30 p.m. in the I&M Building at Butler.

April birthdays were Zella Collins and Lois Guiff. A seed and bulb exchange was held for Secret Pals. During the social hour, a reading and contest were led by Dorine Singer.

The May 10 meeting will be at 1 p.m. Indiana time at Berniece Wilder's, Freda Engle assisting. Guests will be "The Spencer Bells" and a salad bar is planned.

Church League Re-elects

The Saint Joe Church Softball League met Thursday at Saint Joe. Seven teams were represented.

Re-elected to office were Ted Haberkorn, president; Roger Cook, vice-president; and Lavon Hart, secretary-treasurer. Although Lavon said he was ready to turn the books over to a new officeholder, those attending insisted that he remain in office. He has now been secretary of the league for 20 years.

The entry fee for participants in the slow-pitch league was kept at $70. Terry Doub and Jerry Storer were appointed to get prices on quartz lighting fixtures to replace the present incandescent lights. It is reported that the energy demand of such fixtures is much lower than the present fixtures.

It was noted that the Lions Club had remitted a check for $250 to the league, $125 for last year and $125 for this year to help pay the light bill for the two seasons.

Norris Chapel II was the 1977 league champion and Newville Church of Christ won the sportsmanship award.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

It was gratifying to see the response of the public to Saturday's "spur-of-the-moment" occasion. Perhaps I am overly-sentimental, but I sensed a sort of "hunger" in the overall reaction to the announcement of a grand opening, open houses and garage and yards sales—a hunger for something to rekindle fond memories and renew old acquaintances, not only by those no longer residing here but also by those who do yet reside in this community.

It was heart-warming to see graduates from the class of 1914—yes, I said "1914"— meet one another in the News Office. And it was a pleasure to see some familiar faces come "back home" again. The overall reaction seemed to be similar to that of 1975 when we had our centennial—a nice, smalltown occasion in a leisurely atmosphere.

The results show that oftentimes a "spur-of-the-moment" event can be every bit as rewarding as one involving months of planning. And the "success" of the event is not measured in terms of how many people came but rather in how they felt when it was over.

From what I've heard this week, I'd say evedybody feels "good."

—And you never saw anyone so thrilled as Ila Coburn when she won the old copy of the St. Joe News. She was actually shaking. You'd have thought she won a million dollars.

Joe Robinson Honored By Fire Department

Approximately 30 people attended a dinner to honor Joe Robinson of Saint Joe on his retirement from the local fire department after over 30 years of service. The dinner was held at the fire hall Saturday.

Mr. Robinson received a certificate, his fireman's badge mounted on a display plaque, and an engraved knife, the last item coming from the town board.

Guy Mausteller served as master of ceremonies and did a bit of "roasting" on local firemen, their wives, and others. He himself was presented with a plaque in recognition of his service with the local department. The Maustellers will move to Butler in the near future.

Four firemen were honored with plaques for their part in saving two lives last year. Receiving plaques were Steve Monroe, Butch Coburn, Bill Mansfield and Bob Miller.

Board Seeks Public Opinion

The local school board has had reports presented concerning a proposal to leave the Allen County Athletic Conference and affiliate with the Northeast Corner Conference.

The board was told Monday night that such a switch could be made but only if another school entered the NECC at the same time.

The change in affiliation has been suggested as a way to participate with schools closer to the size of DeKalb Eastside. The ACAC is considered to be somewhat beyond Eastside's capabilities, in the minds of a segment of the eastern district.

In order to gain public input in the matter, the board has scheduled a public meeting for next Monday night, May 8, at 8 p.m. in the high school cafetorium. This will provide the public with an opportunity to express views on the proposal to change athletic affiliation.

The board wants to know the feelings of parents, students and faculty to serve as a guide in making a decision.

Everyone is urged to attend.

Scout Honors

St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe received recognition for its outstanding support of Girl Scouts. The recognition was given at the annual meeting of the Limberlost Girl Scout Council. Garrett Methodist Church also received similar recognition.

In individual awards, Sandy Guinn of Hudson received the second highest volunteer award for her more than 20 years as a girl Scout and adult leader.

Meta Goldie of Garrett received the "Girl of the Limberlost" award in recognition of her Girl Scout support. Alice Bauman of Garrett received a Limberlost Council mug for her service.

Karen Griggs of Ashley was awarded a golden ruler. She is a member of the council's board of directors and serves as association secretary.

Debbie Young of Garrett accepted a trophy in recognition of her 2nd place position in the 1978 cookie sale. She sold 524 boxes of cookies this year.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Jan Houtz of Waynedale was elected president of the council and Kathie Swaim of Butler was re-elected to the board of directors.

Town's '?-Day' Enjoyed By Many

Though there was no way to keep a "head count" Satuurday, it is generally agreed in Saint Joe that it was a "fun day" for many young and old.

With the grand opening of Kay Smith's "Family Cuts and Curls" blossoming into a couple of open houses, specials by local businesses and several garage and yard sales, the day took on a particularly significant meaning in various ways for various people. The most gratifying was the return of former residents of varying ages, making Saturday for some a reunion of a sort.

The weatherman cooperated by granting a full day of sunshine and mild temperatures; then it became chilly again on into Monday this week.

Arla Sechler was the lucky winner of "a night on the town" given by Kay. Gladys Hull won a permanent wave and Rose Means won $25 worth of Redken products. David Garrison won a ball glove and Carrie Loucks a curling iron.

At the News Office, the 94-year-old issue of the local paper was won by Ila Coburn. Harriet Baker won a lamp and Becki Smith a portable radio.

Wanda Coburn reports that she ran out of hot dogs with her Saturday special. Some 350 were sold that day.

In the pickle guessing contest sponsored by Frank Sechler, a gallon jar of pickles at Knisely Branch Bank had 144 pickles in it and Karen Baker won with a guess of 145. At the restaurant, the jar contained 146 pickles and Charles Carnahan won with a guess of 147.

At the hardware, the jar contained 156 pickles. Since there were three guesses of 150, Frank awarded each a $5 gift certificate, to Mary Taylor, Rodney Kitchen and Sandi Garrison, rather than "draw straws" among the three for one winner.

The other two winners receive a $10 gift certificate, all of the certificates to be redeemed at "Family Cuts and Curls."

One Re-elected, One Unseated

In Tuesday's primary election, there were few contests in both major political parties in townships and the county. But those which did appear on the ballot were of interest.

Locally, the races for three seats on the DeKalb eastern school board saw incumbent Connie Hollabaugh re-elected but only by a slight margin. She tallied 561 votes while Jerry Storer was close behind with 525. Mary Tucker, a third candidate for the same seat, received 102 votes.

Gene Balser won a seat on the board with a 700-442 margin over Sondra Phillips.

The third race saw incumbent Lynn Fuller unseated by Walter Grogg by a 662-509 margin.

The race for Republican precinct committeeman for Concord Township was won by Donzella Graham with 66 votes to Loretta Loy's 51 votes.

The race for county sheriff nominations saw Gene Snook getting the nod over four other candidates on the Democrat ticket. For the Republicans, Larry Myers won a close contest with Larry Thrush 1840-1763. Johns Ells received 622 votes.

Fred Romero ran a strong race against incumbent H. Charles Winans in the GOP contest for prosecutor. Winans received a 2179-1903 margin.

In the GOP race for State Senator, Dennis Kruse received 2416 votes to Richard Worman's 1820 in DeKalb County. However, the Allen County vote was the deciding factor in giving Worman the nomination.

The following tabulation gives vote totals for Concord, Spencer and Newville townships and the county total.

Tennis Court Lights Coming

Frank Sechler appeared before the school board Monday night concerning a project to provide lighting at the local tennis courts. He informed the board that funds are tentatively available from local sources to cover the approximate cost of around $2700 or $2800.

Estimates obtained by Booster Club president Ted Haberkorn last year indicated that a new third court would cost in the neighborhood of $9,000. The high cost dampened discussion about expanding tennis facilities.

In recent weeks, however, Mr. Sechler talked to those who have used the local courts extensively in the past. And the feeling is that adding playing time with the installation of lights will be as beneficial as a third tennis court and at about a third of the cost.

Due to the thorough report presented by Mr. Sechler, the school board expressed its approval of the project and indicated that it would provide maintenance of the courts.

The local Vulcraft plant, the Saint Joe Lions Club and Sechler's Pickles have already made a commitment to give financial support to the project.

At another meeting, the cost of electricity was taken care of. Mr. Sechler reported this week that the town board of Saint Joe has agreed to pay for the electricity. A 10 p.m. curfew will be mandatory, under the agreements made by the school board and the town board.

Riverdale Little Hoosiers Are 'Tops' In State

The Riverdale Little Hoosiers chapter received six awards at the recent state convention held at Fort Wayne Central High School. Two individual awards were won by members of the Riverdale group.

The six chapter awards included:

Traveling trophy and plaque for being the most outstanding Little Hoosier chapter in the state of Indiana;

First place plaque for best name tag design;

Plaque for eight consecutive years of club existence;

Third place trophy for an exhibit called "Our Towns 1885";

Plaque for being a host school to the convention;

Plaque for participating in an architectural survey.

Individual awards are given for participation in art and writing contests. Riverdale's two winners were:

Charlotte Baker, third place $5 for her story about her mother's goat;

The exhibit which the group took to the convention was a game based on information compiled from the 1885 DeKalb County History. It involves the communities from which the Riverdale children come.

Little Hoosier Moms who have "helped the chapter tremendously," according to Little Hoosier faculty advisors Donna Jewel and Betty Wagner, include Mrs. Julie Hissong, Mrs. Bev Shinabery, Mrs. Dorothy Lepper and Mrs. Jeannie Schmucker.

At a recent chapter meeting, the Moms and past officers were recognized for their service to the organization.

TO THE EDITOR—

To the Dear People of St. Joe,

Due to Kenneth's illness, we had to sell our home in St. Joe and we would like to take this opportunity to thank the present Town Board and the past Town Boards for giving Kenneth work to supplement our Social Security. We appreciate it very much.

To the ladies in my Friendship Club and Sewing Club, words cannot express how very much I enjoyed meeting and working with them.

To our wonderful neighbors who were a real help to us during Kenneth's illness, our sincere and heartfelt thanks.

Our address now is 1046 Steve Street, Auburn, and our phone number is 925-3371.

Come and see us, one and all.

Kenneth and Pat Roberts

Dear Ted-

Thank you so very much for your support with the Wheels-For-Life Bike-A-Thon. We had a fun time, but much more importantly, the young people worked so very hard for children and yes adults who have cancer.

Through each of us giving of our self and our money cancer cells are examined by professionals - experimenting with anti-cancer drugs - therapy and diet in treatment of the cancer patient.

Someday, somewhere, God will give someone the answer for preventing the growth of the cancer cell. But - for now it was good to be a part of that which man can do.

The rides were over - we were tired. The sponsor sheets were tabulated, the ride finished, sponsor sheets signed, instructions given for collecting and banking money. Time to go home. As families were loading bikes or people riding away, one could hear the buzzing of anticipation of next year's ride. Truly a rewarding involvement.

Now time to collect - order T-shirts and back packs after money is collected for those having $25 or $75 and more. How great to watch faces of persons achieving a goal. Where else but in America could one have this freedom to reach out to people for help and support of others in need of care.

Then there was the one young fellow that didn't get to ride a bike but did ride both days in the truck and stayed to help pick up that LAST road sign. We were thankful for his support.

Thank you again.

Lois Lichtsinn and committee members and St. Jude Research Hospital Bike-A-Thon.

P.S. Must tell you about the young man who wanted a back pack. He worked and got enough sponsors for well over the $75. However, on the way home at St. Line road, he fell. If you have ever fallen on a gravel road you know how he was hurting.

The R.N. who was driving the truck following the group of riders gave him expert first aid treatment. He had a sore arm and needed rest. So she got him into the truck with a blanket and cold cloth to his head. He was relaxing a little when the bike ride started moving again. Well, this young man was so intent he proceeded to get on his bike and ride the nine miles back to St. Peters in Spencerville and though very tired when he arrived he made the entire 18 miles. Needless to say we were all proud of him.

Our nurse friend took him and his bike home and she felt he would be just fine. Would have a sore arm for a while but he made it.

The American kids! These are what this country is all about. If you have a problem, work with it and generally you will be able to overcome it.

Thought you would like to hear about this young fellow.

—And we thought our readers would like to hear about him, too. —Ed.

Dear Ted:

Congratulations on what appears to be 92 years of the publication of The Saint Joe News. I enjoyed reading the January 14, 1926, letter which you reprinted. I still enjoy reading the newspaper each week.

With kindest personal regards,
Nelson G. Grills
(Indianapolis)

Mr. Grills is the attorney who represented a protest group during the school "site fight" a few years back.

The apparent confusion over 92 or 95 years of publication comes from the fact that the 1926 letter did not take into account the years 1883-1886 during which this paper was not distributed by mail.

When we flipped through our mail last week and saw the envelope with Mr. Grills' return address on it, several digits immediately came to mind without hesitation — "112-317-439-3395" —Mr. Grills' office phone number which we dialed many times in those days. —Ed.

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

Enclosed is an article which may be of interest to your newspaper. Our files indicate Pegg Kennedy had lived in your area.

She has been a reporter for The Indianapolis News five years. She has won two previous awards, one for consumer reporting, the other for consumer reporting-medical writing. Both of them were presented by the Community Service Council which holds competition in Central Indiana.

Her maiden name was Hudson.

Please feel free to use this information if you wish.

Sincerely,
Rochelle Hargis
The Indianapolis News

The article tells of Peggy Hudson Kennedy's award "for her work last year in reporting efforts to inoculate children for childhood diseases and attempts by health and school officials to force the inoculations by expelling children without them." She is the daughter of the late Bill Hudson and present Spencerville Postmaster Charlotte Hudson. —Ed.

Happiness Is...

TRIBULATION

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

A visitor to a famous pottery establishment was puzzled by an operation that seemed aimless. In one room there was a mass of clay beside a workman. Every now and then he took up a large mallet and struck several smart blows on the surface of the lump. Curiosity led to the question: "Why do you do that?"

"Wait a bit and watch it," was the reply.

The visitor obeyed and soon the top of the mass began to heave and swell. Bubbles formed upon its face.

"Now you will see," said the molder, with a smile. "I could never shape the clay into a vase if these air bubbles were in it, therefore I gradually beat them out."

It sounded in the ears of the visitor like an allegory. Romans 5:3-5: "Tribulation worketh patience . . . experience . . . hope." Is not the discipline of life so hard to bear sometimes, just a beating out of the bubbles of pride and selfwill, so that the Master may form a vessel of earth to hold heavenly treasures?

Red Cross

—Betty Bevington, reporter

The DeKalb County Chapter of the American Red Cross officers and directors held a regular meeting in the courthouse Planning Commission office April 25.

President Paula Slentz presided. 20 directors attended.

Reports were heard from Doyle Whitton, treasurer, Jesse Baxter, executive secretary, and other committee chairmen.

Disaster chairman Dr. Paul Trausch reported a busy winter for the committee, maintaining shelters for stranded motorists and workers during the blizzard. He said the chapter has an adequate supply of clothing stored for disaster and hardship cases, but always is in need of housewares, kitchenware, towels and bedding. The committee cooperated in a mutual aid drill held recently by the Civil Defense office and area fire departments.

Other chapter activities included eight visits of the Bloodmobile to the county and the collection of 968 units of blood.

Expectant Parent classes are held every two months at the DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

Two students are currently receiving Water Safety instructor training in Fort Wayne and will work at the Garrett Community Pool this summer.

The Red Cross welcomes requests for first aid and CPR training.

The county chapter is funded entirely through United Fund of DeKalb County.

Plans were made for the annual meeting of the chapter to be held at the Lake James home of MM Gerald Oren on July 19. At that meeting, officers and directors will be elected for the coming year.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

"Memorial Day" this year is more confusing than ever. The Indianapolis 500 "Memorial Day" race will be run Sunday, May 28. Monday, May 29, is a holiday because Sunday holidays automatically make Monday a part of Congressionally-innovated "long week ends." Then Tuesday, May 30, is the traditional Memorial Day.

Who's doing what when???

VBS Schedule

Vacation Bible Schools are in planning stages right now in the community.

Sessions start May 30 at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Saint Joe and St. Peter Lutheran Church in Spencerville. Time is from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at both churches.

The theme at St. Mark's is "Jesus Christ, God's Greatest Gift." At St. Pete's, the theme is "Hosanna, God's People Praise Him."

Classes are for age 3 through 6th grade.

At the Saint Joe Church of Christ, sessions will be held 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. from June 5 through June 9. The same dates are set for the Spencerville United Methodist Church. However, class time there will be 9 to 11:30 a.m.

School Board Has 'Toughie'

The dilemma facing the DeKalb eastern school board concerning a proposed change in athletic affiliation was apparent at Monday's special board meeting. The public had been invited to express its views on the matter.

From other news reports of the discussion, it is obvious that there is no majority opinion one way or the other—to stay in the ACAC or to drop out and join the NECC.

Those for change say that the switch will put Eastside in a group of schools whose enrollment is closer to Eastside's than some schools in the ACAC. They also note that traveling distance would be reduced—and this is a significant factor in these days of energy and expense concern.

On the other side is the argument that it's the development of athletes through grade school and junior high that is the deciding factor—a suitable "feeder system." And it is also noted that coaching has much to do with the success of athletic ventures.

The board will once again consider the matter Monday at its regular meeting. But it seems safe to say that, no matter what decision it makes, it will be "wrong."

114 Sign Up For Lions' Swimming

An amazing total of 114 young people have signed up for the summer swimming program provided by the Saint Joe Lions Club for kids in the Riverdale area.

Because of the large number of enrollees, all cannot attend lessons at the same time. Beginning Monday, June 19, children whose last names begin with A through K will go first, according to director Forrest Bevington. Mrs. Bissell's bus will pick up at Newville at 8 a.m., at the Riverdale School in Saint Joe at 8:10 and at 8:25 at Spencerville.

The one-hour lesson starts at 9 a.m. each day. The group will then return between 10:30 and 11 a.m.

The group whose last names begin with L through Z will be picked up by Mrs. Meek at Newville at 9:30 a.m., at Riverdale at 9:40 and at 10 at Spencerville. The lessons start at 10:30 a.m. The group will return just after noon.

Riverdale News

"Firebusters" is the new CB "handle" for the Saint Joe-Concord Township Fire Department as a result of a recent contest sponsored by the fire department. CB jargon is made up of numerous abbreviations and nick-names to make transmission of emergency information a quick process. To find a suitable name for the local fire department, classes at Riverdale were invited to submit suggested names.

Although students at Riverdale are presently in the middle of individual "Positive Mental Attitude Days," the banners for the most outstanding classrooms were awarded last week.

Sharon Fox's room placed first in the primary division and Lori Fox's room and Donna Jewel's room tied for the top spot in the intermediate section.

Respect, courtesy and demonstration of a positive mental attitude overall were the criteria for judging.

Individual PMA certificates will be presented to those youngsters displaying the above attributes during individual PMA Days.

The Riverdale Elementary School library will again be open to the public during the summer, Principal Charles Ray has announced.

The library will be open from 1 to 4 p.m. each Wednesday beginning June 7 and ending August 2. All people in the Riverdale area are invited to borrow books from the library.

Volunteers from the Riverdale School staff will supervise the library.

Although school has not yet ended, Mr. Ray reminds residents that all workbooks for elementary youngsters will be purchased at the school starting next school year.

Workbooks will be available and on sale at the school beginning August 7. These items are to be purchased prior to the beginning of school August 24.

Boosters Support Lighting Projects; Church League To Meet Thursday

The Booster Club will donate one-fourth of the cost of lights at the local tennis courts. This action was taken at a meeting Wednesday.

Prior commitments had already been obtained from Vulcraft, the Lions Club and Sechler's Pickles by Frank Sechler who is coordinating the project.

The school board has agreed to provide upkeep of the courts and the town board has agreed to pay the light bill estimated to be a maximum of $50 per month for a projected four-month period during the summer.

The tennis court lighting will include four poles with each having three 1500-watt quartz fixtures. Tentative plans call for an automatic timing device to allow use of the lights until 10 p.m.

Estimated cost of the project is around $2,800.

The Boosters also voted to donate up to $750 toward the installation of new lighting fixtures at the local ball diamond. The Lions Club had already made a commitment of $750 toward the project which has been investigated by the Saint Joe Church League through Jerry Storer and Terry Doub.

Present Booster Club board members were retained in office. A meeting of the directors has been set for next Wednesday, May 17, at 7:30 p.m. at the home of president Ted Haberkorn. The board will at that time select officers for the coming year.

Due to the favorable report by Jerry Storer about new fixtures for the ball diamond, a special meeting has been called by the Church League for next Thursday, May 18, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Mark Lutheran Church. To be considered is the financial commitment to be made by members of the league toward new lights. The league has set aside funds from last year's entry fees and will have additional monies from this year's fees. However, additional money will be needed and a per-team assessment may be utilized, as was the case two or three years ago when chain-link fence was installed around the outfield.

Secretary-treasurer April Davis gave a financial report after an audit of the books with Mary Beatty, Booster board member and manager of the Knisely Branch Bank at Saint Joe. The report showed $4,543.93 in the savings account and $573.69 in the checking account.

President Ted Haberkorn asked Booster board member and town board member Loretta Loy if there was anything the club could contribute toward completion of the fire hall addition as far as furnishings. Loretta said there wasn't at the moment as the town board was investigating availability of surplus equipment from the federal government.

The president noted that he had always been a 'stickler" in preserving Booster Club funds for potential future economic development primarily, as stated in the club's constitution. But changing times and the manner in which industry now relocates or develops new plants allows for a different approach in the use of Booster funds.

Amburgey-Carnahan Engagement

Cindy Carnahan and Shirl Amburgey plan a June 3 wedding. Parents of the couple are MM Charles Canahan of Saint Joe and MM Orbin Amburgey of R1 Grabill.

Vows will be exchanged at the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

7. Do you have a good flashlight with extra batteries or a lantern powered by battery, gas or oil, with a good supply of fuel? Candles should only be used with extreme care.

8. Do you have a supply of matches, stored in a waterproof container?

9. Do you have sleeping bags, blankets, extra clothing and rain gear on hand?

10. Do you have pencil, pen and paper on hand?

11. None of the above items are of any value if you can't find them. Keep them in an area where all members of the family can obtain them at a moment's notice.

12. Last but not least—keep with the above valuable items the telephone of your local fire department, police department, Civil Defense and Red Cross.

WHAT WOULD AUTOMATICALLY TAKE PLACE SHOULD A TORNADO STRIKE OUR AREA?

1. Immediate emergency would be declared and emergency service would begin at once.

2. Areas of direct hit would receive priority service.

3. Areas of direct hit would be sealed off and no one allowed in this area without proper identification.

4. Police Department would handle traffic, etc.

5. Fire Department would handle rescue, fire, evacuation, etc.

6. EMS would handle injuries, casualties, etc.

7. Utility companies would handle electric, gas and water service.

8. Civil Defense and Red Cross would assist all units in emergency situations.

9. Cleaning of debris, clearing travel routes, etc., would be handled by all departments plus volunteer help from all concerned citizens.

We sincerely hope you have carefully read all three parts of this tornado information, so you will know what steps to take if one should strike.

The directors met April 24 at the Farm Bureau Building.

Carl Perkins gave devotions from Acts 10. He closed with prayer and the pledge to the flag.

Mr. Von Pinkerton, editor of the Farm News, gave the group a good picture of how this Farm Bureau paper is run and published. It is printed at Marion and has come to DeKalb County residents since 1939.

Carl Deihl reported that 49 people attended the membership award dinner at Platners April 13. Bruce Provines reported that the dinner meeting with the county school officials at Richards April 20 was a big success.

June 26-27 is the Citizenship meeting held at Franklin College. July 5-8 is the Safety Seminar for freshman and sophomore age students.

Woman Leader Irene Nelson has forms to fill out if anyone is interested in "Indiana Farm Wife." This report must be in to the state by October 1.

Gertrude Reinhart will give devotions in May.

Past Presidents Club

The DeKalb County Past Officers Club of Indiana Federation of Clubs met at Gottfried's Restaurant in Garrett last week for dinner. 20 members and guests attended.

Mrs. Eldon Hardy, Mrs. Nelda Magnuson and Mrs. C. E. Mavis of Auburn presented the program. Exchange student Marcas Vidigal took the group on a "tour" through Brazil with colored slides, music and reminiscing.

The next club meeting is in October.

Little Hoosiers

The Riverdale Little Hoosiers held their monthly meeting April 25 in the art room.

President Mark Hudson presided. Laura Tatro read the minutes of the last meeting and Michelle Freese read the treasurer's report.

Dorothy Lepper talked to the group about the project, "Our Towns," which we will display at the state convention. Betty Wagner discussed convention plans and behavior.

Mark Hudson talked to the group about Antique Day and a possible field trip in May. Donna Jewel discussed a Conner Prairie trip which the adult society is taking in June. The cost is $10 and the Little Hoosiers are invited to go along. Cost to the Little Hoosiers is $8.

Mrs. Jewel reminded us that the Architectural Survey Committee would be working even through the summer. Members of this committee are Jodi Baker, Valerie Miller, Jackie Johnson, Tim Rayle and Shanna Crowl. Plans are being made to publish a booklet of DeKalb County homes built before 1900.

Officers elected for next year include Chris Timmerman, president; Karen Schmucker, vice-president; Toby Shinabery, secretary; and Valerie Miller, treasurer.

The newly-elected officers were installed by repeating a pledge to do their best in the office they were elected to. It was a candle-lighting ceremony.

Several awards were given at the meeting. Lisa Vinson, Brian Cook, Tim Bosserman and Charlotte Baker were given awards for the "Notes On Indiana" contest. Mark Hudson and Jody Lepper were selected the "Outstanding Sixth Grade Little Hoosiers" for 1977-78. They each received a booklet on America and a five dollar check.

Pens were presented to the outgoing officers, Mark Hudson, Dirk Tejan, Laura Tatro, Michelle Freese and Jody Lepper.

"Little Hoosier Moms" Dorothy Lepper, Jeannie Schmucker, Bev Shinabery and Julie Hissong were praised for all the work they have done all year long and were presented with gifts of appreciation.

After the business meeting, Mrs. Jewel showed camp slides.

Gail Kreischer

Funeral services were held Saturday for Gail Ann Kreischer, 26, of R1 Auburn, who died unexpectedly Thursday at DeKalb Memorial Hospital. She reportedly had been ill with "flu."

Mrs. Kreischer was a graduate of DeKalb Central High School in 1969 and was employed in an accountant's office. She was born in Fort Wayne May 11, 1951, and resided in the Auburn area most of her life.

Survivors include the husband, Keith; her parents, MM Lester Waterson of R1 Auburn; a brother, Larry, of Hartford City; and a grandmother, Zelma Forrest of Churubusco.

Rev. Joseph Hanawalt officiated at the funeral and burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery at Auburn.

Volunteers Needed

Sue Bryan, area coordinator for the "Big Brothers—Big Sisters" program, called this week to say that more volunteers are needed to serve the needs of some 36 children in DeKalb County. Three or four are in the Saint Joe area.

The program is directed toward providing companionship for children who live primarily in a single-parent environment. They range in age from 7 to 17 years. Volunteers see these children on a weekly basis for three to four hours. Volunteers are asked to serve for at least one year and should be over 18 years old, preferably in their 20's.

Both volunteers and the children they are to provide companionship for are checked so that a suitable "match" can be made.

Sue is a newcomer in this area and asks that anyone wishing to volunteer their time contact her in the organization's office in the basement of the Auburn United Methodist Church. The phone number is 925-3004 and the mailing address is Post Office Box 265.

Funds for administration of the program come from a $150-per-couple benefit dinner and from Title 20 of the Social Security program.

Happiness Is...

A GOOD FOUNDATION

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

A commission which investigated the bursting of the St. Francis Dam near Los Angeles reported that the collapse of the dam was due to defective foundations. When the dam collapsed, more than 450 persons lost their lives. Faulty foundations! In these two words we have the explanation of the moral collapse of many lives.

In building a life a good foundation is as necessary as in building a dam, and the first life-builders are parents.

Investigation shows that most men and women who go wrong lacked a religious training in their youth. No attention was given, apparently, to moral foundations. The children grew without instruction in the first principles of living, without religion, without reverence for God and man, and without having before them the invaluable example of godly lives. The foundations were faulty!

Every foundation is faulty that leaves out God and immortality. Church people should be awake to this truth, and see that the proper foundations are built into the lives of their children. And always remember a good rule to follow. TAKE your children to church, don't SEND them.

Happiness is . . . a good foundation.

Humane Views

—by Joyce Kuclauck, director-officer of the DeKalb County Humane Society

An unspayed female dog has a litter of puppies. The people who own her are unable to find homes for some or all of them. So they take the pups to a dog pound, if there is one, kill them by some method, or perhaps dump the pups along the roadside. The same predicament faces kittens. Even those turned in at a city pound or county shelter may be "put to sleep" after a certain length of time and no one claims them.

What can be done? Unless an animal is being especially raised for breeding, cats and dogs should be spayed or neutered as soon as they are old enough, generally around six or seven months old. It is an expensive process, but it saves so much misery suffered when cats or dogs are unwanted.

Spaying and neutering helps to keep pets at home WHERE THEY BELONG. This reduces the possibility of complaints from neighbors as well as reducing the number of dog packs and related problems. Contrary to legend, spaying a female dog or cat does NOT cause her to become fat and lethargic.

A hope for the future is to have a County/Humane Society spaying and neutering program which would offer those services at a lower cost than most veterinarians presently charge. However, public support is needed to acquire good holding pounds in each town of any size and a proper, adequate county shelter.

Did you know-

—that Lori Loy is in Parkview Hospital at Fort Wayne recovering from injuries sustained in a fall from a 14-foot ladder. She was working at a truck terminal Monday morning when the accident occurred. She suffered a broken jaw and a deep cut on one of her legs requiring stitches.

—that a taxation report by the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce shows Indiana as having the next-to-lowest increase in state and local taxes of all 50 states. The national average increase was 152.2% from 1966 to 1976. Indiana's increase was "only" 106.6%. Indiana's property tax burden decreased in 1976 for the third consecutive year. This was the goal of Governor Otis Bowen when he took office, to reduce property taxes.

—that a Benefit Antiques Show will be held May 19-21 at the ACD Museum in Auburn. Admission is $2.50.

—that Vincennes is planning a 199th Birthday Party commemorating the capture of Fort Sackville by George Rogers Clark in 1779, which will be a full-scale rehearsal for the city's 200th birthday in 1979. The 1978 affair is set for May 27-29.

—that the concern about an unemployment rate of 6 or 7% is distracting in that the number of people who do have employment is forgotten. In March, the civilian labor force showed 93.3 million employed out of 99.4 million men and women.

—that May graduates at IU in Bloomington include Lori Jo Resor of Spencerville, BS in business and Sheryl Sue Smith of R2 Auburn, BS in education.

—that Michael Snyder, 17, of Butler was slightly injured last Thursday when the car in which he was riding, driven by Kenneth Kinsey, 17, of Saint Joe, went out of control east of Newville, snapped off a telephone pole and rolled over.

—that Vincennes University will again offer two five-week summer terms so that students may get a head start on fall studies.

—that Yvonne Miller, Linda Freidenberger, Sally Strange and Cheri Schmucker are listed in the sixth annual edition of "Who's Who In Foreign Languages in Indiana and Kentucky High Schools." They are students at DeKalb Eastside and were nominated by their foreign language teacher, Margaret J. Thomas.

—that Senator Richard Lugar has applauded Logansport electric utility officials for burning old seed corn with coal to generate electricty. The coal-to-corn ratio in the mixture is 3-1.

—that Senator Birch Bayh called "penny wise and pound foolish" the defeat of his co-sponsored amendment (8 no, 7 yes) which would have specified that no federal transportation grant of more than $1 million could be made for the acquisition of steel and rolling stock for highways, fixed-rail service or buses unless such items were manufactured substantially from materials produced in this country. Senators voting against the measure included Richard Lugar of Indiana. Senator Bayh's explanation of the proposal was that it was intended to help the American steel industry which has suffered from foreign competition.

—that county highway superintendent Wally Graham says he wants to close the Spencerville Covered Bridge to traffic and allow it to remain as a historic and scenic site. He wants to get a new bridge built near the old bridge to handle the weights which are now crossing the old bridge. He doesn't want the old bridge destroyed. It's the only covered bridge in northeastern Indiana.

—that a national insurance trade association says it would cost $23,400 to replace all the parts on a totally wrecked 1978 standard automobile priced at $5,097. "Total" repair would thus be four times the purchase price. Damage to less than one-fourth of a car's parts would cost more to repair than the car is worth. Replacement of 25 percent of the car's parts would cost $5,850.

—that Senator Birch Bayh is recommending funding of $20 million for 1979 for the Runaway Youth Act program.

—that local State Representative Norman Gerig will serve on a special legislative committee to study public records maintenance systems.

—that Governor Otis Bowen has proclaimed May 12 "Teacher Recognition Day."

—that the U.S. Navy Recruiting Command has designated Indiana a "best site" for a new recruiting incentive program.

—that Kim Houser took a third and Cheri Schmucker and Chris Baker fourths for Eastside Monday in an ACAC girls' track meet.

—that the Auburn Lions Club celebrated its 50th anniversary Monday.

—that Democrat State Senator Woody Wilson says he is available to run for re-election in the November general election. He failed to file his candidacy by the March deadline date due to his upset over the way some of his Democrat colleagues were conducting Senatorial matters.

—that Richard Bacon, 66, of Butler died of a heart attack Monday at his home.

—that after a national "hassle" over qualifications for Boy Scout participation by handicapped youth, the age restrictions on enrollment and advancement of mentally retarded and severely handicapped Cub Scouts, Scouts and Explorers have been eliminated.

—that May is "Older Americans Month." But you can't tell who is "older."

—that Congressman Dan Quayle is sponsoring the first annual Fourth District Conference On Small Business Friday, June 16, in the Chamber of Commerce Building in Fort Wayne.

—that unemployment insurance claims dropped 4,014 last week to 34,769.

—that Melanie Carper of Spencerville was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital last week.

—that Terry Kern of R1 Saint Joe is among the 2,400 students who will receive degrees at Indiana State University at Terre Haute Sunday, May 14.

—that the local fire department took a load of kids from Riverdale Elementary School for a ride on one of the fire trucks Tuesday as part of a session to show the youngsters what the local department uses in fighting fires.

—that the Blazers took a twin bill from West Noble Saturday, 4-1 and 8-3.

—that teachers in the Richmond school system set a good example of how not to behave when half of them stayed home to protest a lack of progress in contract negotiations with the school board. The "sick-in" closed three Richmond schools.

—that Bob Wilder was re-elected DeKalb County Republican Central Committee chairman by a 44-22 vote over Dean Kruse who had announced his candidacy due to urging from some of the county's precinct officials. Kruse pledged his full support to Wilder and the party following the election.

—that Cheri Bushee and Renee Douglas of Spencerville were among placers at the Auburn Horse Show Sunday.

—that Kirk Carpenter was re-elected chairman of the DeKalb County Democrat Central Committee Saturday.

—that Senator Dick Lugar voted last week to cut $5 billion from the proposed federal budget of $556.1 billion. But the measure was defeated 43-46. He said, "No one who is serious about stopping inflation could refuse a cut of less than one percent in a federal budget which is $55 billion in deficit. A $5 billion cut would not come anywhere near to closing the defieit in President Carter's budget, but it would have been a start." He noted that Republicans have fought for balanced budgets for many years. A recent national poll showed that 4 out of 5 Americans favor a balanced federal budget.

—that Governor Otis Bowen has proclaimed May 14-21 as "Kiss Your Baby Week." A salty kiss indicates possible cystic fibrosis—or she just ate some pop corn.

—that delegates to the 17th annual convention of the Indiana-Kentucky Synod LCA May 18-20 include Rev. Wilbur Miller, Arden Dwyer and Fran Sechler of the local Lutheran parish.

—that Dennis Davis, 19, of Butler was found guilty of sale of phencycledine, a narcotic, in a jury trial last week. He had been selling drugs to students at Eastside Junior-Senior High School. Davis was an employee in the school cafeteria.

—that groundbreaking was held Tuesday in the Butler Industrial Park on US 6 West for a new Dowley Drop Forge plant.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

Dave Martin added some interest to a news broadcast last week on WIFF radio. When reporting the UPI story that a Washington University research team has stated that hamburgers fried or cooked on grills may cause cancer, Dave noted that now you shouldn't eat hamburgers because they're cooked and a couple of years ago we were told you shouldn't eat hamburger raw.

It reminded me of Jim Kroemer's column in the Auburn Star last week noting that the Gettysburg Address by Abe Lincoln had only some 200 or so words and another historic document (I forget which) also had relatively few words. But a definition put out by OSHA required over 20,000 words. OSHA is the government bureaucracy which is supposedly making life safer for you and me. It's doubtful that the agency is bringing noticeable benefits. But one thing is for sure—we're paying a heckuva tax bill for support of a bunch of busybodies.

A few days ago as I was running a job press, I looked up in time to see a young fella of about 9 years go rolling down the embankment of railroad bed stone. He apparently had hopped on a slow-moving freight train east of the shop and decided it was time to get off as the train headed out of town to the west.

He walked past the shop, rubbing the top of his head from time to time, then turned into the alley next to Jiggs' garage.

That was as close as you would want to come to seeing a child run over by a train.

—I wonder if he's been up to any other "devilment" lately.

School Board

The DeKalb eastern school board has voted 4-3 to seek admission to a conference which includes schools closer to its enrollment size. The action is subject to approval by the North East Corner Conference (NECC). Eastside currently is a member of the Allen County Athletic Conference (ACAC).

Another matter related to the incidence of vandalism on the "activities bus," the bus which makes a late run to accommodate students in the Riverdale area who stay after school for extra-curricular activities.

A motion to stop running the bus did not pass. However, the board expressed concern once again about vandalism which is apparently the work of a small minority of students.

A' continuing dissent was expressed by parents and students concerning the manner in which cheerleaders were recently elected. Principal Robert E. Williams gave a report of his findings, but the report did not appear to satisfy some of those people present at the meeting. The matter is still being investigated.

The board voted to offer the position of head basketball coach to Rick Hudson of Mitchell, Indiana. The action was taken following a report by board member Norman Kinsey for the Committee For Athletics which recommended: a post-season meeting of the school board and varsity coaches; a change in the election process for cheerleaders; involvement of head coaches in the selection of assistant coaches; starting a paid summer intramural director or summer recreation director. He reported that potential new head coaches for basketball were interviewed all day May 12.

The editorial column last week caused some comment when we spoke of community organizations in a general way contributing to the community welfare. The facts are we did not mention all who are contributing to this end, either as organizations or individuals. The Dramatic Club took the article at heart but they have no cause for offense. It is an impossibility for us or any other editor to completely give credit to all in a few lines as we mentioned last week, and the omission was purely an oversight on our part. The News is for every person of society that has for its object the betterment of its community. Approximately $2,000.00 has been raised by this Club for community interests.

Big free entertainment at the school house Tuesday evening. Be there and enjoy yourself.

The W.B.A. entertained the girls basket ball team and coach at a six o'clock dinner last Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Henly. Miss Ruby Shultz regretted her absence, being in Indianapolis on business.

Last Sunday afternoon when Byron Woodcox went home from town, entering the house, he came upon a tramp sitting in the kitchen. He made his wants known saying that he was hungry and that he was just resting. Byron proceeded to feed the fellow and he went on his journey. Nothing was missed about the house.

Last Saturday morning the St. Joe River received another planting of fish, when the Department of Conservation delivered 100,000 wall-eyed bass, and Spencerville received 200,000 of the same specie. All this was brought about thru the efforts of the local Fish and Game Club and it is indeed bringing fish and game into our community that could never be secured in any other way.

Mrs. Mary Meek is quite poorly at the home of her son, Lessie and wife. She is up and down and feeling miserable.

Memorial Day Service Sunday At Alton Cemetery On SR-101

The annual Memorial Day Service at Alton Cemetery will be held Sunday, May 28, at 11:30 a.m., according to Bob Wilder of Coburn Corners Church of Christ.

Worship services at the Coburn Corners church will be dismissed early and a parade will be formed, leading to the Alton Cemetery. American flags will be distributed to all children participating in the parade.

The program will feature music, an address by State Representative Norman Gerig, and the traditional decoration of the graves of those who have served their country in time of war.

Alton Cemetery is located on State Road 101 in Concord Township and is one of the oldest cemeteries in DeKalb County, having been established in 1827.

Church Teams Commit Selves For Over Half New Lighting Cost

The new lighting project undertaken by the Saint Joe Church Softball League is now a certainty. With action taken by the churches which comprise the league, over half of the tentative cost estimate has been assumed by the church league.

In addition to the church league's commitments, pledges have been made by the Saint Joe Lions Club $750, the Booster Club of Saint Joe $750, Vulcraft plant $500, Sechler's $250 and the Little League $200.

With another lighting project, the tennis courts, already assumed by Vulcraft, Sechler's, the Lions Club and the Booster Club, two major improvements are assured for the two much-used recreational facilities at Saint Joe.

The success of the two projects would not have been so quickly assured had it not been for the efforts of Frank Sechler, Jerry Storer and Terry Doub. Frank coordinated the tennis court project and received significant cooperation from the two civic clubs and the Vulcraft plant—in addition to his own commitment. Each of the four fund sources has pledged one-fourth of the cost of tennis court lights.

The Booster Club had talked about adding a third court for the past three years. But cost estimates of the $9,000-$10,000 range dampened any significant consideration.

Then it was suggested that an additional amount of time in the use of the present two courts could compare to adding to a third court if lights were installed at the two.

Frank's further investigation and information from those who use the courts many times during the tennis season resulted in the lighting project.

Jerry and Terry were appointed a few weeks ago by the church league to investigate the cost of replacing the 26 now-27-year-old ball diamond light fixtures with more efficient units. Following a meeting this week, the two are proceeding with the new lights installation.

The 18 metal halide fixtures to be installed are 1500-watt units but give several times more light per unit than the incandescent 1500-watt units now in use. In addition, the new units will retain a high lighting efficiency rate for several years. The incandescents lose 30% of their efficiency in the first year and another 12-14% drop the second year, plus a further drop the third year—if they haven't burned out.

With 18 units replacing 26 units and with much greater efficiency resulting, it is estimated that the higher cost of the metal halide units will be recovered in four years, as compared to the lower initial cost but higher operating cost of another type of lighting.

With a new switch box being installed by the church league through Jerry and Terry, and the cooperation of Indiana & Michigan Electric Company in seeking to have the old lights ready for use by next Wednesday when the Little League opens its season, another summer of fun at the ball diamond is under way.

Installation of the new units will be made as soon as possible.

'Cycle Death

Carl Mansfield, 18, of R1 Butler was killed Sunday, May 14, in a motorcycle accident on County Road 75-A.

Apparently heading west on the county road, Mansfield lost control of the motorcycle and rammed headon into a tree a quarter of a mile west of State Road 8. He received massive head injuries and a broken neck.

Funeral services were held May 17 with John Paul Hill, minister of the Coburn Corners Church of Christ, officiating. Burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery.

Survivors include the parents, MM Calvin Mansfield; two sisters, Donna Antrup and Suzanne Rowe of R1 Butler; and three nieces.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing these rights.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

From The Editor's Desk....

'Had It All' Too Soon??

I had a conversation with Bob Brown a few weeks ago and, naturally, we talked about athletics at Eastside.

I mentioned that I have been a "wet blanket" for adults engaged in voluntary athletic programs as well as school athletic programs in that I strongly disagree with the usual concern about having uniforms for whatever activity you're talking about—uniforms cost a lot of money.

I noted that we were "hit" twice recently to buy a cleaning compound so that new "sweats" could be bought for the boys' and girls' track teams. The cost is some $700.

I also noted that, for many years, putting uniforms on the Little League teams was always the first item of business, or so it seemed. I don't think it is teaching basic proper attitude in kids to make a major effort to put a baseball uniform on an eight-year-old youngster who can hardly play catch, much less field a grounder or catch a fly ball. I know—it looks nicer when the team looks like a team—but what are we teaching, to learn how to play and do your best, or the importance of a uniform?

Mind you, I am not saying NO uniforms should be obtained. I am referring to the priority given to uniforms.

If the track teams want "sweats," let THEM buy the outfits individually. Why should the community be asked to foot the bill when there are no basic minimum standards of performance required from the athletes?

The trend may be to cut back on awards to a certain extent. However, the damage has already been done as far as several years of athletics. Even in academic matters, it seems questionable to recognize the highest average in various subjects when, in that particular year, the highest average may be only mediocre in terms of overall performance. Without minimum standards, awards—can become meaningless. This makes the truly deserving student, whether in athletics or academics, less outstanding in a sense, simply because others with lesser accomplishments receive the same recognition in other given years.

Isn't it rather inconsistent to award letters to athletes who have played a certain amount of time during a sports season but give no letters to others on the bench who have been to every practice and every ball game? The reply to that question probably would be, "We want the letter to mean something special." And that's the point I am trying to make—the awards system as it has been practiced for many years DETRACTS from the significance of the award because there are no standards established which would require above-average results.

When I had gone through my spiel, Coach Brown used it to make an observation which had not occurred to me. And his observation seems like a sound explanation of the lack of participation in athletics by upper grade students. He said, "They get so much (uniforms, awards, honors, etc.) at an earlier age that, by the time they get to high school, they've had it all."

Last year, Coach Brown made no "most valuable player" award for girls' basketball. He stated at the winter sports banquet that the girls' success was a team effort and it would not be fair to pick out one single individual for the award.

This year, Connie Oberlin received the "most valuable player" award, even though it was still a team effort that brought the girls success. I haven't asked, but I have a hunch the only reason Connie was singled out is that she graduates this month. I have a hunch her teammates WANTED her to be singled out, even though they were still an example of team success.

Yes, there are those, such as Connie and the other four girls' varsity basketball starters, who give their all regardless, just because they love the sport and find fulfillment in working to improve. But it is a rare occasion that you have five at the same time, as did Coach Brown.

I don't know how many times I have heard faculty members—not parents or students but FACULTY members—say that so-and-so ought to be out for this or that sport. There can be other reasons, I am certain. But I would strongly suspect that the prevalent reason is, as the Eastside coach pointed out, by the time they get to high school, they've had it all, it doesn't mean much to them any more.

It's something for adults to think about.

Yes sir, it's in the air. That time of year so dreaded by so many allergy sufferers is once again here. But, take heart friends, it's not nearly so bad as it once was. Not too many years ago, there was nothing to do but suffer miserably through the season. Now a physician who has carefully analyzed a specific allergy problem can usually prescribe a helpful medication to control the uncomfortable symptoms.

Enjoy springtime more this year. Consult your physician and then closely try to follow the advice he gives you.

Steady, Dependable Kenny

The death of Kenny Roberts is saddening. Yet, we all know physical death is as natural as life and in the end, we know we must accept it.

There is, however, joy in death because there are treasured memories of valued relationships left in the minds of those related to one who has died, whether that relationship is of family, friend, or business.

That is the case for me, personally, as far as Kenny is concerned - I am sad at the loss but happy for the opportunity to work with Kenny while I was on the board several years ago. Even thereafter, he would often stop in the News Office to chat a while.

Due to his age and an injury, Kenny didn't move as fast as other people. A few times I received complaints about his slow-moving efforts while working for the town. Clerk-treasurer Emma Frank still received such complaints last year, up to the time that Kenny was forced to quit due to a stroke.

Those people didn't know all the circumstances, I am sure. Kenny had a "plate" in his head due to that serious injury. He had a constant "buzzing" in his head, as he described to me, and thus his hearing was impaired. So the slow movement was forced on him.

But - that didn't mean he accomplished less than others would. Quite the opposite is true; he accomplished more with his steady gait than others do who might look "busier" but are not as thorough and as careful in their work.

Some people think the money he received from the town was too much. They probably didn't know the little things he took care of without running to the board for instructions or permission. When I was president of the board, I told Kenny to do what was needed to keep the streets clean of debris - for instance, after a windstorm or heavy rain. He cleaned the catch basins regularly to keep town tiles from getting clogged by leaves, sand and gravel, and debris.

The most important thing, however, was was that when a private property had drain trouble, Kenny was readily available. Except for occasions when he and Pat might be gone an hour or two for whatever reason, or he might be working on town maintenance that had to be finished, you could figure that Kenny would be at your place within minutes after you called him. I know that from first-hand experience. And if you've ever had a clogged drain, you know how helpless it is for most of us when our "conveniences" suddenly don't function. In Saint Joe, the answer to "what can I do" was simple - "call Kenny."

I remember one incident in particular. One winter several years ago, our family had just sat down for dinner. A phone call from an upset young woman came and she was mad because the town hadn't cleared the ice from the south end of Hart Street. That day's and night's rain (the temperature had risen but the ground was frozen solid) was running in her relatives' back door. I called Kenny and picked him up. We were bundled up for the elements.

All we could do was chop channels in the ice in the yard to get it to run away from the house. No way could anyone clear out the culvert. We worked there for over an hour but couldn't do a whole lot of good. But we did show the town cared. The woman who had been hostile when she called and when we arrived, warmly thanked us for coming and doing what we could. (That was the night some folks had water running in their basement windows - and I almost had water running in the front door of the News Office.)

A lot of folks don't know about Kenny. He's just one of those "little people" who do little things which don't make headlines. But I know - I know about steady, dependable Kenny - I know I will miss him - I know the town will miss him - and it's saddening.

The sadness will pass, and there will remain the joy, the pleasure, the warmth, the fond memories of the friendship of Kenny, my "town buddy."

From The Editor's Desk....

"....irresponsible and hurtful...."

A couple of weeks before I had my anniversary open house, I received a letter which really shook me. Because of the particular manner in which a reader cancelled their subscription recently, I wrote to inquire if there was anything wrong.

I waited days—weeks—and months for a reply—three months to be exact. The reader then sent me a reply and expressed "fear of your publishing everything I say in your newspaper."

I am not identifying the reader, because there is no benefit from such action. And it would be justifying the reader's fear if I did identify that reader.

The reader says "your paper truly has more reader interest per column inch simply because you sometimes stray from newsworthy comments into petty gosip and seem to enjoy fostering debates between readers on petty issues because it makes for 'juicy' reading. I would appreciate seeing more integrity in your comments and greater responsibilty in your reporting."

The reader does make a positive comment in, "I also believe that you do a great service for the St. Joe-Spencerville Community. We need a good newspiece to communicate the real 'news' of our community. I am therefore caught in two dilemnas. One, I am not sure how I can respond to you without having my response published - this is intended as a private communication. And two, how can I support your good efforts in publishing community events and concerns and at the same time protest your irresponsible and hurtful commentary?"

I may have caused more unrest because I have here published what is referred to as a private communication. However, I would hazard a guess that the reader's low opinion of my "commentary" has been expressed to others, or perhaps reflected in the reader's attitude. I feel justified, therefore, in making reference to the letter without identifying the writer because there are some very significant factors involved.

I do not understand the writer's fear of being quoted, although I do frequently hear someone say, "Don't say anything; he'll put it in the paper," when I enter a place where a discussion is going on. I have always considered the comment more as "kidding" than an expression of a serious opinion.

I can recall only two or three occasions in the past few years when I have conversed with the writer of the critical letter. And I do not recall any conversation involving opinions or any opinions quoted in this paper and identified with the writer.

What are petty issues? Is the decline in the quality of education but at increased cost a petty issue? Is the destruction of individual initiative, individual responsibility, a petty issue? Is the intrusion of government into private lives a petty issue? Is the destruction of the family as the basic social unit in American society a petty issue? Is the conduct of local governmental affairs a petty issue? Is the condemnation of business and the profit system a petty issue?

As far as fostering debates between readers on petty issues, I am completely "in the dark" as to the meaning, since no examples are given.

As for "juicy reading"—well, I guess I do get carried away sometimes in commenting about the female attractiveness present in our community. One of 'em won't even speak to me any more. My intention of letting them know they are noticed —as a compliment—is taken the wrong way sometimes.

As I said, no specific examples are given. Accusations are expressed generally with no way for me to know what the writer is talking about.

But the real cut comes in the accusation that my writings are "irresponsible and hurtful." My first thought when I read those words was, "There go 30 years down the drain."

I do not claim that I have never "hurt" anyone in these columns. I know I HAVE hurt someone from time to time, and I know that it was not my intent to do so. And what seems to be an innocent comment or an effort at factual reporting doesn't go down with someone from time to time. For instance, I know I hurt Doc and Jackie Wertman at the Oasis in reporting an incident at their place a few years ago. I just plain goofed; I trusted that the information given me by someone else was accurate and it evidently wasn't.

Years ago I hurt a teacher in an "April Fool" issue which I clearly identified—or so I thought. I joked about the teachers getting a $500 raise, but it wasn't funny to that teacher whose contract had not been renewed. I felt miserable. And the fact that I still remember the incident after 25 years is testimony to my desire NOT to hurt people.

As further testimony to my desire NOT to hurt people, I'll bet you can't remember the last time you saw an item about a divorce, or a driver license suspension, or an arrest, involving local residents. Even in some instances where criminal activity has been involved through the past several years, you haven't read about it in these pages, unless the same individual is involved time after time or such publication can serve as a warning to other citizens about disturbing circumstances. I figure those people have enough trouble without having it put in THIS paper, in a majority of cases.

The reader enclosed a check to renew their subscription to, as they put it, "support a valuable newspiece in our community." However, it is obvious that doubts still remain about "integrity," "responsibility," and so on. And since those doubts have not been at least partly explained with concrete examples of my failures, it would appear that my "bad" image is due to a great extent to what the reader has "heard" rather than from first-hand experience.

My "roots" are embedded deep in this community. You can't go through town without seeing or coming in contact with some community improvement which I helped to promote or get started, both personally and through the columns of this paper. There isn't another paper in the county which has the same close ties to the community AND gives readers something to think about at the risk of losing personal, professional and business relationships.

—Oh well — — you can't win 'em all.

Church League Not 'Beggars'

From a couple of comments passed along to me in the past week or so, it sounds as if some folks think the local church league is asking someone else to put in its new lights. 'Tain't so. I hope the idea is due to lack of knowledge of all the circumstances.

To refresh some memories and to point out some facts:

—the church league has existed since 1952 and is the oldest continuous softball activity in DeKalb County, and maybe a little beyond.

—years ago it was the Recreation Club followed by the church league that maintained all the fence at the local diamond, including re-doing the backstop, installing fence along the baselines and installing the outfield fence. There were donations made to help out, yes, but the league took on the major financial responsibility.

—the church league has provided bases, home plates and pitching rubbers through the past several years.

—the church league has provided the "cheapest" (meaning low-cost) recreation and fellowship activity possible by keeping its entry fees low, yet, when the time comes for more funds, taking steps to obtain those funds PRIMARILY from its participating churces.

—the Saint Joe Lions Club has helped for many years to assist in keeping church league participation at a low cost by contributing funds to pay for the electricity used by the lights. Until the past few years that donation paid all the electric bill but with inflation and higher energy costs overall, the church league now pays a portion of the light bill.

—the town board paid the light bill for about three years in the late 1960's.

—the local hardware has always worked with the league in efforts to obtain needed materials and supplies at lowest cost.

—the church league, its officers and certain individual participants have accounted for over half of the projected cost of $5,000 to install the new metal halide fixtures.

From the above, it be should evident that the church league doesn't just go begging every time it needs some money or wants to make an improvement. The current lighting replacement project can hardly be classified as a case of wanting something but wanting someone else to pay for it.

It is especially gratifying to note that, despite a major building program now in progress by the Coburn Corners Church of Christ and major remodeling and redecorating projects at Norris Chapel and Mt. Pleasant United Methodist churches, there was little if any hesitation by those teams' representatives in assessing each team an additional $100 toward the new light expense. This is in addition to the entry fee of $70.

Though the representatives of all the church league teams obligated their congregations "on the spot" without reporting back to a church board or council or committee (and this may not please some people), it should be kept in mind that the team representatives did so in faith. The league has handled similar money matters with the same procedure in the past and their faith has been upheld.

I hope this clears up certain questions or doubts which may have been reflected in the feeling that the church league does little to take care of its needs.

Guest Editorial

"I wish there was something that could be done to eliminate Social Security tax.Both employee and employer see it as another form of taxation. If Social Security must exist, let it be administered by private enterprise. Or at least it should be optional as to government administered or privately managed. When one considers the return on the payments, actuarially, the government is stealing or blundering. If the government were really interested in the aged, retirement, etc., a different plan would be worked out. After some close scrutiny, I found that if I were to put as much money into a private plan as I have into Social Security, I would be a millionaire by age 63 and a half. My monthly income could be in excess of $5,000 per month for the rest of my life. Please compare that to my projected $700 per month with Social Security."

Happiness Is...

ASPIRATION

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

In a certain place in the Alps there is a monument to a guide who had perished when attempting to make the ascension of the mountain. The simple inscription on the stone is "He died climbing." It is a noble tribute to a heroic man. He was in the line of his duty. His face was forward and upward. Higher and higher was his aim, not in a vain ambition, but in the line of duty.

Without fault of his own he fell, the sacrifice to duty. Not lost, but living still, his simple monument telling the story of a life of pure and high aims, that shrank not from perils and death when he heard the call. "He died cimbing." The words are an inspiration to men everywhere, an example that calls others to the same faith, even though it may have the same perils.

There is a tradition that Michaelangelo, by his prolonged and unremitting toil upon the frescoed domes which he wrought, acquired such a habitual upturn of countenance that, as he walked the streets, strangers would observe his bearing and set him down as some visionary or eccentric.

Happiness is...aspiration.

The DeKalb County Republican Women's Club met May 22 at Mrs. Charles (Ruth) Farrington's home in Waterloo with 30 members and guests present. President Marcella Fuller of Butler conducted the business meeting and several projects were discussed. Beth Bowen Cookbooks will be sold during late summer and early fall for $7.50 each. These include personal comments by the Governor's wife on the recipes plus photographs of Indiana's First Family. A donation will be sent to the Indiana Republican Women's Federation for a 32-place setting of china for official dinners at the Governor's residence. A decision will be made at the June meeting concerning a contribution to the Ramie McCormick Scholarship Fund. This scholarship is presented anually to an Indiana college student who majors in political science, government or journalism.

Ada Farrington of Corunna introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Rex Bangs of Churubusco, who had been a delegate to the National Republican Women's Convention last year in Atlanta, Georgia. Mrs. Roy Gordon and Mrs. Homer Diffendaffer, Smith Township Republican Women's Club members, accompanied Mrs. Bangs.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by Waterloo area members. The next meeting will be Monday, June 26, at 7:30, with place and speaker to be anounced later.

Yes sir, it's in the air. That time of year so dreaded by so many allergy sufferers is once again here. But, take heart friends, it's not nearly so bad as it once was. Not too many years ago, there was nothing to do but suffer miserably through the season. Now a physician who has carefully analyzed a specific allergy problem can usually prescribe a helpful medication to control the uncomfortable symptoms.

Enjoy springtime more this year. Consult your physician and then closely try to follow the advice he gives you.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Feed Your Best with Wayne Brood Sow Supplement

WAYNE SOW BLOX . . . WAYNE BROOD SOW SUPPLEMENT . . . both excellent ways to feed your breeding herd. For those swine producers who prefer a grind and mix ration Brood Sow Supplement has the edge.

Sows need plenty of protein to bring out the very best in that forthcoming crop of pigs. They need a good, all around complete diet to "toughen" the pigs for what often proves to be the "rough road ahead." A mixed ration consisting of WAYNE BROOD SOW SUPPLEMENT, WAYNE SWEET BULKY and farm grains has everything needed to provide performance that will show that you have fed your best.

Blazers Advance

Tony Salinas delivered a clutch single, scoring Rex Buell with the winning run, in the last of the ninth to give the Eastside Blazers a 6-5 win over the Hamilton Marines in the DeKalb Sectional on May 29.

The Blazers' mound ace, Jeff Hudson, nearly dug his own grave in the first inning. He walked the bases full and then appeared to be pitching his way out of it when a Hamilton batter tapped the ball back to the mound and "Hud" threw it past first baseman Don Delong, allowing three runs to score.

The Blazers countered that with two runs of their own in the bottom of the first on a two-run single by Rick Keener.

The Marines, down 5-4 in the sixth, sent the game into extra innings on a walk (Hudson's ninth of the game), a sacrifice bunt, and a single.

The Blazers play East Noble Saturday at 10 a.m. The Knights beat the Blazers earlier in the year by a 9-6 score, but Hudson didn't pitch then. He will Saturday.

Ground-breaking For New, Larger Coburn Corners Church Facilities

John Paul Hill, minister at Coburn Corners Church of Christ, has announced a significant event in the life of the congregation.

The long-awaited moment has arrived for the oldest church in DeKalb County, The Coburn Corners Church of Christ, founded in February of 1837. On Sunday morning, June 4, at 11:30 a.m. the congregation will break ground for the construction of a new house of worship which will be a one-floor unit consisting of 10,400 square feet.

Since preparation began two years ago, the membership has advanced forward and, with its faith and vision deepening, the building program has become a reality.

A few of the participants in the service will be Mrs. Elmer (Mary) Wolf, oldest member; Miss Elizabeth Hart, oldest active member; Ruth Goldsmith, youngest member; and Mr. Floyd Coburn, the oldest descendant of Mr. John F. Coburn who gave the ground on which the present church building stands.

The church, located on the corner of Highway 101 and county road 64, invites the public, former members and friends of the church to attend this service.

An important part of the financial basis for the project was the pledging of the congregation's members to buy $125,000 worth of bonds. Those who solicited for bond reservations included MM Sam Barkman, Ron Beard, MM Andy Crow, Harold Curie, MM Jerry Emenhiser, MM Bill Hart, MM Lavon Hart, Karl Hart, John Paul Hill, Lanny Huss, Willard Maxwell, Jim Morrison, Bonnie Noack, Jim Rediger, MM John Sechler, Dorine Singer, Mark Strong, Berniece Wilder and Bob Wilder.

Mr. Williams Says 'Thanks'

DeKalb Eastside Junior-Senior High School Principal Robert E. Williams sends the following statement of appreciation to the school district:

"As another school year closes and we look back in retrospect at the past school year, we realize that many people have contributed to the success that we have had during the year.

"As Principal of Eastside Jr.-Sr. High School I would like to acknowledge these people.

"Many businesses have loaned, donated or helped us in providing a way for us to be able to have an activity that we might not have been able to have without their help. Among these are John Nugen's Interior & Carpet Specialist, Butler Lumber Company, Armstrong Floral Company, The Butler Bulletin, Spake and Watson Television, Parkinson TV, The Knisely National Bank, Tule's Mobil Station, Butler Shell Station, Cooper's Jewelry, Maxton Motors, Tri-Wall Containers, Inc., and many others.

"Also of great service have been the Butler Police Department and Police Reserves, the Auburn Police Department, the Band Boosters Club, the Athletic Booster Club, the American Legion, St. Joe Lions Club and many individuals too numerous to list.

"We really appreciate the community backing and appreciate all the help you have given us. If I have omitted anyone, it was certainly unintentional and I apologize for the omission. We sincerely thank all of you and hope the community backing and support for our schools continues and builds in the same fine fashion that these people have contributed."

Steve Cole To Intern

Stephen L. Cole, son of MM Kenneth L. Cole of Butler, received his Doctor of Medicine Degree from the Indiana University School of Medicine in commencement excercises held in the Market Square Arena in Indianapolis on May 10, 1978. Dr. Otis Bowen, Governor of the State of Indiana, was one of the many featured speakers at the commencement excercises. Dr. Cole was among the medical graduates in the Class of 1978, and the 310 graduates made the class the largest medical class ever to be graduated on the North American Continent.

Dr. Cole was a member of the Eastside High School Class of 1970 for which he was the valedictorian. "Steve" graduated cum laude from Indiana University, Bloomington, in January of 1974 with a Bachelor of Science Degree and a full double major in Chemistry and Biology.

Dr. Cole has been assigned to a two year residency in Fort Wayne where he will be rotating in the three hospitals. Dr. Cole and his wife, Linda, are presently living in Butler.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Ted,

I just finished reading 'Steady, Dependable Kenny'. I want to let you know how much we appreciate your comments. It is a comfort to our family to know that other people knew and appreciated Kenneth, as we did. Kenneth was one of the few people who seemed content to be just what he was, an honest, dependable working man. We loved him deeply, we are going to miss him for a long time to come.

AN EXPRESSION OF SINCERE APPRECIATION

The family of Carl Mansfield would like to thank all the relatives, friends, neighbors, the Newville Church, the Coburn Corners Church, the DeKalb Sheriffs Department, Carl's fellow classmates and teachers and all fellow workers of the family, Preacher John Paul Hill and Pastor Wayne Smith, and the DeKalb Memorial Hospital Emergency Department for all their prayers, kindness, and help during the loss of our loved one. Thank you also for the flowers, food, cards, and kind words. Although no words of sympathy can ease the loss we bear, still we find comfort in the thought that others really care. Our family deeply appreciates every act of kindness given.

The President's Postage 'Trick'

Ordinarily, you might reasonably have expected some strong comments in this paper about the increase in postage rates. It has occurred before.

But there often comes a time when "what's the use" dominates one's thoughts. And what might have been said and done is left unsaid and undone.

Silence at this particular moment is not an indication of an agreement with the new postage rates. The increase is bad enough. What was really upsetting was the fact that the President of the United States supported the idea of having first class "citizen" mail postage rates remain the same but increase the "business" postage rate to 16 cents for first class mail.

I can see no other reason for having a higher business rate proposed except to "scare" business and the public with such a proposal while really having in mind to raise all classes of postage rates.

It's trickery. It compares to negotiations between two parties where one asks too much and the other offers too little—both expecting to compromise at an acceptable settlement for both parties.

When the postal system was turned into a "private" operation, the public may have erroneously thought that such a move would bring greater efficiency. Some folks may even have thought the postal department was no longer a governmental operation.

The change hasn't brought better service. It has brought a situation wherein the user of the mails is forced to conform to very exacting standards before their letter or package will be accepted for mailing.

Handling of the mails is still called "postal service" by the heads of the postal department. But in actual practice, "service" comes in second to the whims of employees in the postal department who sometimes take their own sweet time in carrying out sorting from distribution centers. There can be no other explanation when it takes three days for this paper to reach subscribers in Fort Wayne.

Though newspapers are mailed under "second class" privileges, they are supposed to be handled as "first class" mail. The lower postage rate for such publications goes back to the early days of the postal system when dissemination of news was properly recognized as an essential part of maintaining a free society. Weekly newspapers originally were postage-free to subscribers within their own county. The general public paid for the free distribution through general tax funds paid to "subsidize" the postal department.

Then a strange thing happened. The same majority in Congress which had instituted program after program of grants and handouts to help this or that group, took the position that everyone who uses the mail should "pay their own way." As a consequence, free mailing privileges for weekly newspapers were eliminated. Under a postal "reform" act, Congress not only made weekly newspapers "pay their own way," it raised everyone else's rates, too—or the new "independent" postal agency did. But whatever the agency undertook, it was with the permission of our elected representatives in both houses of Congress.

If you think 15 cents is a lot to pay for mailing a letter, consider this: the new first class rate represents a 15% increase. BUT THE RATE FOR MAILING THIS PAPER WENT UP 30%—29.6% to be exact.

The disturbing fact in the matter is that many people not acquainted first-hand with operating a business think such increases will be paid by business without any further effects. The truth is, every increase in expenses brings an increase in prices. When George Meany recently said in so many words, "Get business to keep its prices down to control inflation. Don't ask labor to take a lower pay increase," he was misleading his membership and he was misleading the public. There is no "pot of gold" into which the average business can dip when costs go up, to keep from raising prices to the consumer. Boiling the postal situation down to a few points, we have:

1. Every increase in cost of labor is paid for by the consumer (as is every increase in taxes for business).

2. The $8 or so it now costs per week to mail this paper is about four times more than ten years ago. It is 30 times more than was paid 30 years ago.

3. President Carter resorted to a dirty trick in proposing a "citizen's rate" plus a higher business rate for first class mail. The proposal had the psychological effect of making business happy that the separate rates didn't go through, even though the postal rates did increase.

4. Such a proposal was outright discrimination—which makes the end result deplorable.

You will notice that negotiations are currently underway for a segment of the postal employees. In total, the postal employees represent the largest body of organized workers in the country. Their average pay —AVERAGE pay, mind you—is now well over $15,000, plus all the usual (and some unusual) fringe benefits.

Concern is periodically expressed about the hardships on those with fixed incomes when inflation grows as it has been growing in this country for several years. First mentioned are the elderly receiving Social Security and other retirees whose pension income would have been adequate 10, 20 or more years ago but now is comparatively inadequate due to inflation. And starting an automatic cost-of-living increase to Social Security retirement benefits does not solve the problem; rather, it adds to the problem of inflation.

A smalltown independently-owned weekly newspaper is also on a "fixed income in that no automatic cost-of-living increase in income is forthcoming unless the editor raises advertising rates and subscription prices. This is a risky situation, because many people would give up a newspaper rather than cut down on the cost of watching TV by turning the TV off more often.

P.S. Will you continue to subscribe to the paper if I raise the rate to $14 per year (four times the 1968 subscription rate)?

Will you continue to subscribe if I raise the rate to $45 a year (90 times higher than the 1948 rate)?

The answer is obvious. And now you know why there are so few smalltown independently-locally owned weekly newspapers in this country today.

Happiness Is...

ENTHUSIASM

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

A young man in Pittsburgh was trying to put a pistol into his hip pocket when it exploded. The police got hold of him at once, and began an investigation which led to his confessing that he was the author of a series of outrages that had alarmed a whole section of the city a few weeks before. He had robbed two stores, had "held up" several pedestrians; and he was planning a far more extensive "job."

He was a college graduate and was asked what had led him to take up such a miserable mode of existence. The reason he had affords much food for thought. "The life of a burglar appealed to me," he said, "there's action in it."

Brothers and sisters of the church, what we need before everything else is to put action into our religion!

We need in all our church work the dash, the vim, the go of a twenty-five cent novel.

We need the ardor of a detective hunt. We need the gusto of the devil, his ardor, his zest. That is all we can copy from him, but there is no reason why we should not copy the one quality that gives him his power.

Happiness is . . enthusiasm.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Did you notice the recent item about the "light bulb stampede" in Detroit? Detroit Edison, the city's electric utility, has in the past replaced light bulbs at no charge to its customers when burned-out bulbs were turned in.

But a druggist filed a suit to end the practice, calling it unfair competition. He was upheld though he admitted having second thoughts about the matter after filing suit.

So now it appears that Detroiters will have an addition to their cost of living.

I point the situation out to bring attention to the fact that a public utility—the electric company—was giving its customers a "free" service. Sure, the utility was paying for the bulbs out of income received from its customers. But with the quantity involved, it's almost certain the customers were coming out ahead.

When our family lived in Wheaton, Illinois, during my early teens, I recall that I made occasional trips downtown to the electric company office with a sack of burned-out bulbs and got an equal number of new ones in return—for free.

Ah — the good old days.

The article was refreshing. It isn't often that the public is made aware of the good side of public utilities and business in general. Usually you hear about the gripes and complaints—such as were nationally reported about Commonwealth Edison in New York who got the blame for a brown-out or black-out a couple of winters ago. You'd think the utilities were headed by a staff of Simon Legrees, from some of the "news" stories appearing frequently.

FARM BUREAU BOARD MEETS

—Mazie Myers, reporter

The DeKalb County Farm Bureau Board of Directors held their regular meeting Monday evening, May 22, at the Farm Bureau building.

Gertrude Reinhart gave devotions from Phillipians 4, telling us all to count our blessings. She closed with prayer and the Pledge of Allegiance.

On July 10 at 8 p.m., the DeKalb County Farm Bureau will host a District II meeting at the Methodist Church on east Seventh Street in Auburn. State Farm Bureau President Marion Stackhouse will be speaker, and 4-H Tenure awards will be presented.

On July 16 at noon, the DeKalb County Farm Bureau picnic will be held at the St. Joe Conservation Club. This will be a chicken barbeque. Tickets are $1 and the rest a potluck dinner. There will be some good entertainment and door prizes. Committees for the event are 4 Corners, song leader and devotions; 4 T's, decorations; Fairfield, refreshments; and Smithfield-Grant, entertainment.

The Women's Alumni will meet at the Jackson Township Mall on June 8 at 11:30 a.m. This is a pot luck dinner, with the meat, rolls, and drinks furnished. Each township unit is to invite all its past women leaders. Judy Dilley will have the special entertainment

There will be a meeting for the local affairs chairman and committee on June 20 at the north Farm Bureau Office of Allen County.

Adelaide Stuckey will have devotions in June.

Town Board

The town board of Saint Joe met Monday in regular session.

Due to concern in the minds of town residents about the dangers of unrestricted swimming pools, the board passed an ordinance requiring a four-foot high fence around pools. The legal notice of the action appears elsewhere in this issue.

Though the board had awarded a contract for mowing of the local park and cemetery, weather and other circumstances resulted in unsatisfactory appearance at both locations the past few weeks. An effort is being made to correct the situation.

A representative from Clyde E. Williams and Associates told the board there was little need to hold a special public meeting to review the sewage disposal plant project. All 1978 monies for such projects have been allocated and it appears that 1979 will bring no grants to the town. Saint Joe is down in the 200-bracket in the list of priority sewage projects, the board was told.

Suffers Broken Neck In Fall

The fall reported last week involving Mrs. Jim Goldner was a "bad" one. She suffered a broken neck but was able to return to her home at Saint Joe wearing a restrictive head support.

Mrs. Goldner said that she doesn't remember the fall and may have fainted as she began descending a cellar stairway. She had only three or four slight bruises but did suffer a cracked vertebrae. She said she could not move her head immediately after the fall.

Praising the EMS unit for its help, the local resident said they were "wonderful" despite having cramped space in which to remove her without causing further neck injury.

As if that wasn't "bad enough," Mrs. Goldner said she intended to make arrangements for Mr. Goldner to be hospitalized again after returning upstairs from the basement. He has been hospitalized periodically for the past three years or so, not able to return to work. Mrs. Goldner said he had "a couple of bad days" last week which prompted her to plan for his hospitalization.

Then came her fall.

P.O. Exams

Saint Joe Postmaster George Armstrong has announced an examination to establish a register of eligibles for part-time flexible schedule clerk. There is no job opening at the present time, he explained. The establishment of a list of eligible people is made in order to be prepared for future needs.

Further information and application forms may be obtained at the local post office. Applications will be accepted from June 12 through 27, 1978.

Vandals Prompt Heart Attack??

A heart attack suffered early Sunday morning may have been caused in part by vandalism and harassment.

Pat Bartell of Saint Joe suffered a heart attack at 2:30 a.m. last Sunday. She was taken to Cameron Hospital in Angola.

A concerned neighbor reported to The News that Mrs. Bartell had been affected in recent months by petty vandalism to the family car and also a car owned by her brother-in-law. Catsup, sand and eggs were dumped or thrown at the vehicles, and air let out of the tires. These incidents were very upsetting to Mrs. Bartell and possibly were responsible in part for the attack.

It is not known who the vandals are, and it might be helpful if residents take note of any late-hour activities now that school is out.

Quayle Poll Results Given

Congressman Dan Quayle (R-IN) has released results of his recent 1978 opinion poll which showed that 4th District residents feel energy and inflation are the two issues that concern them most.

Quayle asked his constituents to rate ten issues on a scale from one to ten. Energy and inflation were rated numbers one and two with welfare receiving the lowest rating.

He explained energy was rated number one not only because of its extreme importance, but also because the poll was taken during the coal strike. A copy of the questionnaire was mailed to each household in the 4th District in late February.

In the questionnaire, 20 questions of national interest were asked with a yes or no response requested. Replies from the entire 4th District are as follows in percentages:

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

In your May 25, 1978 issue, you remarked about a letter you received from someone who was afraid you might quote them in your newspaper. Mr. Haberkorn, that attitude on the part of those unnamed people frightens me. Why, on God's earth, would someone be afraid for what they say to appear in print?

Has this country already deteriorated to the point that we are AFRAID for our neighbors to know what we believe? Or are we so unsure of our beliefs that we cling to them tenaciously but refuse to put them to the test of TRUTH by letting them appear in print? Are we afraid to be wrong? How will we find what is right or what is TRUTH if we are unwilling to subject ourselves to the test? The old cliche - "Say what you mean and mean what you say" holds true here. If it isn't good enough or TRUTH enough to be in print it ought not to be said in the first place. But, to reprimand a guardian of our free press for BEING the free press is so ludicrous that I am ashamed for these people. I am sorry for our country if we abdicate our freedoms and responsibilities so readily.

I have watched your newspaper and find it to be indicative of those principles I most cherish about our country. I wish to commend you for your courage to speak out irregardless of the fact that we may sometimes disagree. I wish to encourage you to continue in your efforts for there are some who listen and some who understand and some who care about what is currently at stake in our United States today.

And..Mr. Haberkorn..you may QUOTE ME!

Darla McCammon

Dear Ted,

Enclosed is check for seven dollars and fifty cents for subscription and souvenir reprint.

Sorry I cannot write well in bed. I wish I could write my memories of St. Joe which go back to 1905 when we lived next to Hollabaugh's Grove. Violet Kline's grandfather had saw mill, his daughters had hammock in grove.

Bayh's Deception - Again

Frequent criticism has been expressed here and by other individuals about Congressmen who say one thing "at home" but vote in the opposite upon returning to Washington. Ed Roush, a very likeable and conscientious individual, was unfortunately inclined to function in that manner. And voters in the Fourth District removed him from elective office the last time around, giving House of Representative responsibilities to Dan Quayle. (Mr. Roush didn't "lose" completely, however; he is now serving in a lucrative position in the federal bureaucracy by appointment.)

Another Hoosier representative, Senator Birch Bayh, has functioned in the same manner during his many years in office. A good-looking and also likeable guy, Senator Bayh has been able to exhibit a Jeckyll-and-Hyde legislative existence, saying one thing at home and doing the opposite when in Washington. However, Senator Bayh is also a past master at the art of evading a question. Sometimes he is able to give the impression that he said something agreeable to a voter when he actually has said nothing to indicate either his opinion or his intended performance.

The Senator is, despite his youthfulness, one of the leading re-molders of the U.S. Constitution. I recently made an erroneous statement that he had been responsible to a great extent for the last four Constitutional amendments. The errror was that the number should have been "three," not four. But—the fourth one is in the making. It's the Equal Rights Amendment.

Three or four months ago, Senator Bayh was in DeKalb County. He spoke to students at DeKalb Central High School and was given free time on the local radio station for call-in questions and comments from listeners. Shortly after that broadcast, I commented in these columns about the way in which the Senator evaded the following question: do you favor extending the time in which the individual states can ratify the Equal Rights Amendment?

His answer was that he was more concerned about the involved debate over the suggested time extension than the extension itself, because such debate would tend to divert attention from the content and purpose of the Equal Rights Amendment.

The Senator's answer was hardly one which could be opposed; any conscientious citizen wants to stick to the point in debated matters. However, the Senator's answer was also representative of the very thing he feared—diverting attention from the primary question. Senator Bayh did not answer the direct question put to him. He diverted attention away from a "yes" or "no" to an answer which sounded like an answer but wasn't an answer.

I bring the matter up again because, within the past few weeks, as the Equal Rights Amendment is losing public support and state legislatures are rejecting it, word from Washington, D.C., is that a proposal to extend the 7-year ratification period for another period is being prepared — and Senator Birch Bayh of Indiana is one of the chief sponsors of the proposed extension.

Here we have an outstanding example of the deception which has characterized Senator Bayh's term in office. A few months ago, he said he feared an extension proposal would only lead to extended debate which would divert attention from the Equal Rights Amendment itself. Now he is a leading proponent of a time extension.

I wonder what would happen if a PeeWee, Little League, Pony League or Church League manager asked the umpire to forget the rules and allow another inning of play because his team was losing???

Joe Louis In Wheelchair Saddest Sight Of All

by Jim Murray, Los Angeles Times Syndicate.

(Editor's note: heavyweight professional boxing has become such a farce in recent years that the multi-million dollar championship promotions make one wonder about the mentality of those who pay to see such matches. It was refreshing to read a column recently which expressed our remembrance of and feelings toward a former world heavyweight champion.)

I always thought the saddest sight I ever saw in sports was Joe Louis hitting the ring apron with his head the night he fought Rocky Marciano.

Until I saw Joe Louis in a wheelchair the other day.

There are some things you should never see. A great stage beauty in the morning without her makeup. A stag dying in the sunset. A great ship sinking. A great warrior succumbing to great odds. A lion wounded and at bay to the jackals.

And Joe Louis in a wheelchair.

The great left hand, the one that demoralized a generation of fighters, the one that broke Schmeling's spleen and a dozen jaws, could not now pick up a Kleenex to wipe the dribble off the chin. The feared right hand lay trembling in a lap.

Joe Louis should be standing in the ring lights over a fallen foe, the heavy-lidded eyes blinking as his hand is raised, murmuring into an outthrust microphone, "Another lucky night."

Joe Louis should be riding on somebody's shoulders through the marketplace. In an open car down Broadway. The Conqueror. The Brown Bomber. The Dark Destroyer. Joe Louis should be shuffling into a panicky pugilist whose eyes are darting around wildly looking for an escape hatch.

Joe Louis shouldn't need someone to wipe his chin. Joe Louis shouldn't be sitting there, his spindly legs in carpet slippers, struggling to answer a TV man's questions. Joe Louis should be standing there with his hand raised, and a guy sweating and screaming "Winner and still Champeen!" while a crowd goes wild.

Do you remember Joe Louis 30 years ago? Two hundred pounds of tawny fury, the hands so fast they were a blur on cameras that would stop millisecands of action. Joe was the most awesome thing you ever saw in human form.

Freddy Sommers was on the phone. "Would you like to come up and see the champ?" he asked. "He has had this heart operation down in Houston."

The "champ," of course, was only one man. There's never been another who so deserved the title.

It's like looking into your own lost youth. All of a sudden, it's 1935 again and you're listening to the recreation of the Louis-Carnera fight. The announcer is awed. He has watched fights for a generation. He has never seen anything like this young panther out of Detroit. Carnera weighs 270 pounds and is 6-6 or 6-7. He is stomped like a butterfly.

Joe Louis was the greatest. It's really that simple.

But it's not what Joe Louis did in the ring that mattered. It was the devastating effect he had on society.

No one ministered to group esteem the way Joe Louis did. A whole generation of kids who learned on their daddy's knees that the white race was superior, learned to recognize the lie because of Joe Louis.

Jackie Robinson would not have been possible without Joe Louis. Neither would Sugar Ray. Neither would Muhammed Ali. Joe laid waste to the "master race" theory long before the 8th Air Force did.

Joe Louis was a simple, uneducated man. But he uttered the plain fantastic truths of the most learned scholar, because he was a plain, unaffected man as devoid of guile as a kitten with a ball of yarn. I don't think Joe Louis ever did an unworthy thing.

He was poorly advised, poorly managed, poorly treated. But America loved him. If you can find a man with a bad word to say about Joe Louis, put him on tour. He's one of a kind.

Joe Louis stands for something in this country. Joe stands for a lot in this country. In the world. Joe came along at a time when a black man couldn't play baseball in this country, or football, or basketball. With white people, that is.

Joe knocked white champions out of the way with a yawn. Without malice, without a belluva lot of interest. Joe pitied anybody who got into the ring with him - white or black. Joe liked people. White or black. The fight was nothing personal.

I know the term has come under considerable intellectual obloquy, so it's probably an infelicitous comparison, but the only person I can think of who did more for harmonious relationships between the races was Uncle Tom.

The militants can sneer all they want. But I think the hand in history will linger longer over the names of these two than it will over the haters.

But never mind. Joe Louis is in a wheelchair now. The eyes are sad, and the fingers tremble.

But Joe Louis always got up. Joe lost with the same shrug he won with. When people wept when Marciano knocked him out, Joe Louis looked at them in amazement. "I knocked lots of guys out!" he reprimanded them.

He expects to knock this guy out, too, to be "Winner and still Champeen!" again. He looks with wry amusement at a world where guys win heavyweight championships lying in bed.

"In my day," he grins, "you had to knock somebody out to win the championship." It may not have been a better day. But it produced a better man.

Humane News

—by Joyce Kuckuck, Officer/Director

The DeKalb County Humane Society now has an office. It is on the third floor of the Auburn City Hall Building. All are welcome to stop in and see us. Should you find the door locked, but the light on, stand by. Someone will be back very shortly. Our phone number is 925-1500 extension 24. All animal complaints, however, are required by law to go through the city police - for city problems; and the sheriff's department for country problems. They will in turn refer to us complaints that are legal for us to handle.

What are we? Dog catchers? NO! We are humanitarians. We are people concerned with the well-being of ALL living things, and also of the environment. Our organization is non-profit. Therefore, memberships and donations and fundings are greatly needed to build a good, adequate county shelter, and to cover operational expenses.

We are in a position now to take calls regarding pets that are lost, found, or wanted - a type of dog or cat you'd like to adopt; and also pets to be adopted - a pet you can no longer keep for some reason. There is one such dog on our books right now whose master is moving to another home. The dog is not permitted, so it needs someone to adopt it. The phone number for these four categories is 925-1500, extension 24. We can NOT guarantee results, but we will be happy to take your calls and do our best to help you.

May we also recommend that anyone losing a pet phone the Garrett Humane Officer, Nicky Bowman, at 357-5939; or the Waterloo Humane Officer, Pam Schraeder, at 837-7623 week days between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. The officer could be out cleaning animal pens, so please allow the phone to ring for a reasonable period of time. They also must go out to pick up dogs or cats at times, so if you don't get them the first time you phone - or don't find them at the pound the first time you stop by - please try again. We generally have some very nice dogs and puppies at both pounds, and also cats and/or kittens at times. They would all LOVE to be adopted.

Due to our not having a county shelter as yet, the pets can only be kept a short time, generally a week, since keeping too many would cause crowded conditions and that would not be very humane either. PLEASE help us to help you and the pets of our community. Donations may be sent to our society's President, Mrs. Dorothy Dunn, 530 South Washington Street, Waterloo, IN 46793. ALL contributions will be GREATLY APPRECIATED.

Happiness Is...

BROTHERHOOD

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

"One man is no man," is the Greek motto adopted by one of our American college fraternities. Fraternity is a necessity of life, not a mere luxury. If we find out something, we crave a confidant. If we play, we want a playfellow. If we laugh, we cannot forever laugh alone. "Man is not complete in himself. He is a social animal."

If the individual's interests are thus inextricably interwoven with the welfare of others, his self-realization is a social matter. He attains it not by sitting in self-centered fashion, looking at himself and listening to psychoanalysts report as to which of his capacities and instincts need cultivation. He finds fullness of his own life by getting out of himself and losing himself in the love and service of others, as Jesus told us nineteen centuries ago.

The men who have found life most satisfying and have fashioned their powers to the highest fulfillment are not the ones who have been concerned with developing their own talents, but the ones who have forgotten themselves in their devotion to other persons or to great causes. Man, the social animal, finds that action most satisfying which gives outlet to his social impulses.

Happiness is...brotherhood.

ORDINANCE NO. 56

An ordinance regulating fencing and gates surrounding swimming pools and other unnatural bodies of water.

BE IT ORDAINED that due to the attractive nature of swimming pools and all other types of unnatural containment facilities to small children, who are of insufficient age to appreciate the dangers associated with such confined water, the Town of St. Joe sets the following rules concerning such facilities.

SECTION I:

1. That such swimming pools or other unnatural reservoirs of water, which is three (3) feet or more in depth, shall have a fence of at least four (4) feet in height surrounding entirely said unnatural bodies of water and swimming pools.
2. That any entrance to such unnatural bodies of water or swimming pools, shall have a secure and substantial gate which is either the same height as the fence or at least four (4) feet in height.
3. That such gates or entry ways shall have a locking system which will prevent the gate from being pushed open without first having latch or lock moved by the user.

SECTION II: PENALTY:

If any resident of the Town owning such a swimming pool or unnatural body of water which fail to provide for in this ordinance, he may be fined after proper notice by the Clerk-Treasurer of the Town, not more than $500.00.

Enacted this 5th day of June, 1978.

Warning

DeKalb County Prosecuting Attorney H. Charles Winans recently warned local county residents to be on the lookout for "fast-talkers" in any clean-up, fix-up, paint-up or whatever in property improvement. Tree trimmers are also in the list.

The prosecutor is not refering to established firms but rather to the "traveling salesmen" who annually bilk the public of thousands of dollars by offering to do a certain job and then either using inferiors materials not discovered until after they have left the territory, or hiking the price after the job is finished.

Citizens should know that legitimate business operators will be acquainted with the legal requirement which allows any home improvement customer three days to cancel "home solicitation sales." The home owner should make certain they have a contract with an address to which their cancellation can be sent. Such cancellation should be in writing and there should be proof that the cancellation was in fact delivered.

Any contract agreement should be in writing and fully describe the work to be done, the quality of material to be used and the completion date, as well as the full cost with credit for monies paid in advance. Mr. Winans recommends that no money be paid in advance, and never pay more than 10% of the total cost before the work is finished.

If a homemaker has any doubts, they should consult their banker, family lawyer or the prosecutor's office.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing these rights.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

'Let's Build A Shelter....'

"Let's build a shelter."

Those words can be seen on signs in various locations in DeKalb County. One of them has been placed in front of St. Mark Lutheran Church at Saint Joe, between the sidewalk and the curb.

The "shelter" referred to is a facility which, while being promoted particularly in relation to stray dogs, is also promoted for other animals and even fowl.

These comments are not intended to be taken as criticism of personalities. They are intended as questioning of a proposed program. So, I am not saying that certain people are to be doubted; rather, it is an idea which is the subject of my doubt.

It should be understandable that any private citizen, after a prolonged exposure to "good ideas" and the need to provide the money to carry out those ideas, in time becomes somewhat "gun shy." That's my position concerning an animal shelter, especially when the sales pitch has some emotional strings tied to it.

For example, to supposedly show how an animal shelter would be for more use than just to house stray dogs until they are disposed of, an article was issued in the past couple of weeks telling the sad story of a chicken who "nearly became a family dinner instead of continuing to be a productive hen and loving pet."

At the conclusion of the article, the reader is confronted by:

"A pet has a right to a happy life the same as you. . . ."

I'm tempted to utter a crude response like "baloney" but that doesn't explain an opinion.

I am amazed at the extent to which "civil rights" can be and have been relied upon to virtually force many people into silence. I think it is absurd to be talking about human beings and chickens as if they belong in the same category within our total creation. I think it is unfair to intimidate people into silence by tugging at the heart strings and swelling the emotions to the point where one very important question is passed over or sometimes forgotten. That question is: how much is it going to cost?

The average citizen is at a disadvantage in these matters because those who are promoting social welfare programs have their official position by which they get free space in the newspapers and free time on radio and TV. While there may be a county humane society in existence with local conscienscious citizens actively involved, it is the trained "professionals" who know how to utilize every possibility to promote a program which certainly has high motivations. It just so happens that the trained professionals' jobs will continue to exist only so long as they can keep a social welfare program going.

Chances are, you the taxpayer paid for the signs seen at various spots in DeKalb County. And due to the manner of questioning by Phil Haberkorn on a WIFF-radio interview with the executive director of the county humane society, it is known as fact that CETA funds are footing the bill for the promotion of establishing and building a shelter. Two people now serving as "humane officers" in county communities are paid by CETA, plus the administrative leader.

Another striking comment in the radio interview was that tranquilizer guns, used in the past to subdue hard-to-handle strays, are not considered satisfactory. But it was not stated who considers such guns "unsatisfactory." The only qualifying comment was that it is difficult to determine how large a dose of tranquilizer to use due to varying sizes of dogs. The question arises: are such guns "unsatisfactory" because of the varying doses, or because we are becoming so "humane" as to make animals "human"?

Before anyone gets the impression that I am not particularly upset by cruel treatment of animal or fowl, I hasten to point out that of greater import is the basic question: can we afford this program?

"Let's build a shelter" is an innocent-sounding suggestion. But it involves thousands of dollars in additional tax expenditures. Think of it:

You need a shelter which will satisfy the "requirements" as stipulated by those actively promoting a shelter project; and those recommendations involve much much more than a couple of pens, a cupboard for feed and a supply of water.

You need a vehicle satisfactory to provide protection for animal and human.

You need facilities with which to dispose of unwanted animals and right now the city of Fort Wayne has a "hot potato" on that one because of the outcry against not treating animals as if they are human. "Euthanasia room" is the polite word now for the place where animals are "put to sleep."

And any time you start a program with a full-time worker, it isn't too long until an assistant is needed.

The county commissioners have made ground available to the humane society for a shelter at the county landfill site. I hope that wasn't a mistake; I hope that wasn't the "foot in the door" that leads to setting up a program which should be taken care of by the various cities and towns and CAN be taken care of at a fraction of the cost of a county program. If there aren't a few individuals in each community who are willing to participate in animal control (let's face it, mostly dogs), then perhaps we deserve the tax bill it takes to pay full-time wages and build first-class housing to solve the problem.

There is much speculation today about the overall effects of California voters' demanding property tax reduction. In the minds of some people, the mandate signals a national movement toward tax reduction.

However, there is, and always has been, a way for citizens to "mandate" less government spending. That is to examine proposals involving tax monies carefully with the first question to be asked: "How much will this cost to set up AND maintain?"

My views as expressed here should be considered with some doubts, because I admit to being "gun-shy" on social programs and my views are, therefore, somewhat prejudiced.

But what else can you expect when county residents are being pressured into "let's build a shelter" partly on the basis of protecting the rights of a chicken.

From The Editor's Desk....

The Miracle Tree

For many years, communities throughout this nation have "Vacation Bible School" sessions, sponsored by the various Christian denominations. Many hours are given by "volunteer" directors, teachers, assistants, young helpers and so on to bring exposure to Christian beliefs to the minds of youngsters of preschool age and up. Their "service in the Lord's work" is often taken for granted. You don't know what they are doing unless you have occasion to attend one of the sessions.

I put quotes around the work "volunteer" because most of the workers have "volunteered" after they were asked to serve.

I was one of those "volunteers" at my congregation's Vacation Bible School a couple of weeks ago, asked to lead the devotions for one evening session. In preparing for it, I felt inspired enough to literally volunteer for a second session. At the conclusion of the first session, I told the kids I would tell them about a miracle that happened right on our church property.

Back when the News Office was still located on the main street in what is now the east furniture showroom of Ivan and Betty Brown's store, I could look out a big window next to the Linotype and work table and see the church, its yard, the brick building across the street, Jiggs' garage, the building which now houses the Nosey Nook Gallery, the restaurant, our house, the grocery—just about everything on the corner of Third and Washington.

It must have been some 20 years ago that the miracle happened. As I recall, it was something like early March and we had several inches of snow. But one night the temperature moderated and we had a freezing rain. A crust on top of the snow was heavy enough that, if you walked carefully, you could walk on top of the snow.

I looked out the shop window the next morning and exclaimed, "Oh, no — — —!" My concern was due to the sight of the evergreen tree, standing at the side entrance, bent over horizontally. It would have been flat on the ground if there hadn't been some evergreen bushes next to the tree.

At that time, I think the tree was some 12 to 15 feet tall—or it had been that tall. In its doubled-over condition due to the burden of ice and snow, I was certain the tree was done for.

A week, maybe two or three, later, the sun and warmer weather had melted all the snow and ice. Spring was on the way.

Obviously, I had forgotten about the tree. Because on one of those bright sunny days, I looked out the window as I had done dozens of times since the ice and snow cover. But this time, when I looked out, it dawned on me—the tree—it's still there—and it's standing straight up!

That's the miracle tree. What had appeared to be a "goner" only a few weeks before was now once again reaching upward. God, in His infinite wisdom and His love, had brought a "resurrection" in the church yard.

Today that tree is 25 to 30 feet tall (you can see it as you pass by on the main street). It's twin trunks give the appearance of two arms, raised heavenward, in thanksgiving.

That's only part of the miracle. As I thought about the incident through the years (I remember it whenever I look at that tree), it occurred to me that another "miracle" was to be found, a miracle that has a lesson for people of all ages as they go through life.

That heavy coating of ice was a seemingly unbearable load for that tree. But when the ice melted, the load, the burden, was lifted. Something else was happening, too. As the ice and snow, the terrible burden, melted, the water soaked into the ground. The roots of the tree then absorbed the water and made the tree grow in size and strength.

The miracle tree thus tells us that the very burdens which at times seem unbearable and "killing" to the body and spirit —those burdens are what make us stronger. God actually BLESSES us with burdens!

Perhaps the kids were too young to understand what "burdens" are. But one day they will know. And I hope they remember "the miracle tree."

I suggested that they think of a short prayer verse when they look at the tree:

"Thank you, Lord, for saving our tree;
"Thank you, Lord, for saving me."

Your present car may be worth more than you think.
Your new car may cost less than you imagined.
Bank financing, too, could well save you additional monies.
Right now could well be the best time to purchase that new car.

See an INTERESTED banker.

ORDINANCE NO. 56

An ordinance regulating fencing and gates surrounding swimming pools and other unnatural bodies of water.

3. That such gates or entry ways shall have a locking system which will prevent the gate from being pushed open without first having latch or lock moved by the user.

Happiness Is...

DISCERNMENT

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

Go out and look at the stars. You can see or hear nothing worthy of note. You satisfy yourself that there is nothing unusual.

Then go into the house and turn on your radio. At once you hear sounds — you get a snatch of song, a word of a speech, a few notes from a piano, or the solemn tones of an organ. There is something uncanny about it. You realize that the air is filled with sounds the unaided senses know nothing of. When you look up at the sky again, you ask what else is there about us of which we are unaware.

We hear in eleven octaves, but we must go away up the scale to the forty-ninth before we come to the only octave in which we can see. If our senses were more finely adjusted so that we could hear in more octaves than eleven and see in more octaves than one, what marvelous things might be revealed to us!

I am not speaking in this manner in order that I might tell of radio, but in order that I may illustrate from this branch of human knowledge the things to which the Bible has ever given witness. The new knowledge illuminates our old beliefs. The Bible tells us of a higher sphere and of the existence of things which cannot be seen or heard with the ordinary senses. Spiritual things are spiritually discerned.

Happiness is . . discernment.

Hypertension does not just "go away"

One of the most difficult things about high blood pressure is that not only can it be there without any special symptoms, but that there is as yet no cure for the disease. Undetected, it can wreck havoc with your body, silently killing you without your knowing it.

But fortunately, high blood pressure is relatively easy to find and once found, it can be treated effectively with diet and medication. No it's not going to just go away but while it's there, you can still be comfortable and lead a normal life.

DAR Meets

The May meeting of the John Houlton Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was hosted by Mrs. Lehr Wilder, assisted by Mrs. Ernest Harter.

Announcement was made that the chapter had received the award for "Outstanding Year-book Program" and had also received the Silver Honor Roll Certificate.

Mrs. John Martin Smith installed officers for the coming year.

The business meeting closed with the American Creed. Mr. Robert Wilder then presented a film entitled "Old Glory," the story of the flag.

Through the years there have been many flags, beginning with the Cross of St. George, when the people were still British subjects.

Later came the "Pine Tree Flag," then the "Rattlesnake Flag" with the caption, "Don't Tread On Me."

The first to have 13 stripes was the "Grand Union Flag" with the Union Jack in the corner. In 1776, following the Declaration of Independence, the flag had 13 red and white stripes and 13 white stars on a field of blue, supposedly designed and made by Betsy Ross. In 1781 two more states had been added and the flag now had 15 stars and 15 stripes.

With the purchase of additional territories, new states were formed. By 1818 the flag returned to 13 stripes and added more stars. There was no fixed pattern of the stars as they had to be re-arranged every few years.

By 1917, there were 48 stars, and the flag continued this way for a half century. Then in 1949 and 1950, Alaska and Hawaii achieved statehood, changing the number of stars to 50 which now stand today.

Retired Teachers

44 members attended the June meeting of the DeKalb County Retired Teachers Association June 7 at Platner's at Garrett.

Ralph Manrow, program chairman, introduced the speaker, Gerald Goen, of the Auburn office of Uniserv-Northwest NEA-ISTA, who gave an interesting talk on the overlapping interests of the retired and active teachers.

Sam Cook, retiring president, gave a short talk on his term as president and introduced the new officers for the 1978-1980 term. They are: Harlan Moore, president; Paul Ankney, vice-president; Hildreth Sweeney, recording secretary; Winifred Peters, corresponding secretary; and Evelyn Moore, treasurer.

The next meeting will be held September 6 at Platner's.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing these rights.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Wanted: 400 'Block-heads'

One thing missing for several years at the local lighted ball diamond is a concession stand. And those who attend athletic events of any kind are known to get hungry and thirsty.

To fill the need for a concession stand, The News is promoting a campaign to get a bunch of block-heads to participate in completing the project.

Ordinarily, the term "block-head" is far from complimentary. However, in this case, it is an honorable name of distinction. The term is being used in the promotion due to the fact that a supply of cement blocks heads the list of necessities in obtaining materials to build a concession stand. Hence, the term "block-heads."

Those who help the project can do so by the purchase of a shiny, new 1978 penny affixed to a card which can be kept as a keepsake. The card reads:

"1978 Commemorative Penny. This Keepsake Award certifies that (name of donor) has contributed fifty cents for the cost of one concrete block to be used in the construction of a concession stand at the Saint Joe, Indiana, lighted ball diamond. Inasmuch as concrete blocks head the list of necessary materials, the recipient of this award is designated an "Honorary Block-head of 1978."

Those who wish to support the project with a fifty-cent donation and receive in return a 1978 Commemorative Penny Keepsake Award can do so at the various places of business at Saint Joe and Spencerville, or by mailing their donation to The News Office. All donors will receive the award.

Tentative plans call for a dedication ceremony when the stand is completed at which time each donor of the cost of a concrete block will have the opportunity to paint their name or initials on one block. The result is expected to be colorful and unusual.

So, in the future, it will be a compliment to be referred to as a "block-head" in this area.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

When I paid my "dues" to the National Federation of Independent Business recently, representative James Farrington changed the membership plaque hanging on the shop wall to show 25 years' of continuous membership. It's no big thing actually. But it does bring a feeling of satisfaction that finally, after years and years of business taking it "on the chin" legislatively, there appears to be a larger and larger number of members of Congress who are listening to the voices within the business community. And if business has problems, everybody has problems—because "business" is jobs and income.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Ted,

Sitting here reading your editorial on postage increases, I am inclined to agree with you up to a point.

I think things are getting out of hand, but on the same token the 30 times more than it was 30 years ago just goes to prove the taxpayer has been carrying someone else's load for too long. I don't necessarily mean weekly newspapers. I mean the junk mail I, and everyone else, receive every day. I don't like to help subsidize something I don't even open.

Also, it seems you think the unions are the downfall of this country. Well, Ted they take a little and give a little.

Ted, if union members have it so good, why don't you try a job in a union shop for a while, but keep in mind, you must be there promptly at starting time and stay until quitting time. You can't quit and go cut your yard or go down to the barber shop and sit for hours at a time. Ted, it's not the rose garden you have pictured in your mind.

Sincerely,
Victor L. Duke

Hospital Expands Diagnostics

(from an article by Dave Kurtz in the Auburn Evening Star)

DeKalb Memorial Hospital has a new piece of equipment which greatly improves its diagnostic services. The equipment is a "gamma camera."

While X-ray examination is useful in a certain amount of exploration and diagnosis, the "gamma camera" opens up an entire new field of examination. It can detect heart damage following a heart attack; blood flow problems in the brain and in other parts of the body; arthirtis; old bone fracture points and even some forms of cancer.

Hospital administrator L. C. Baker says the acquisition of the camera eliminates the need for patients to go to Fort Wayne for many types of examination.

The $100,000 camera does not emit radiation. It "reads" radiation resulting from an injection in the patient. Only minute amounts of radiating elements are used because the camera is so sensitive to radiation.

'All-American Jubilee' Planned By Democrats

DeKalb County Democrats are preparing for an "All-American Jubilee" to be held Saturday, July 1, at Eckhart Park in Auburn.

Chairman Charlotte Burnham announced that area organizations will participate. Included are:

The Stone Family Guild & Friends with an arts and crafts show;

Helicopter rides (weather permitting);

Sandlot softball at Carr Field directed by the YMCA;

"Games of the past" for all ages;

An ice cream social by the Jackson Jr.'s;

Lunch served by the Extension Homemakers Club;

Old-time political rally and beef roast at 5 p.m.

The DeKalb Central High School Park Band will provide music.

The entire day has been planned to promote appreciation of the American heritage and celebrate the Fourth of July.

Many of the day's events are free. Tickets for the beef roast are available from most Democrat Committee workers.

The day's events begin at 11 a.m.

School Board

Included in the business session of the DeKalb eastern school board Monday was hearing a request from the Riverdale Little League through board member Norman Kinsey. Little League secretary Jerry Vinson asked the board for permission to construct a Little League diamond on the southeastern corner of the Riverdale school property. It was stated that the project would involve no cost to the school corporation. The request was granted by the board.

The matter of selecting cheerleaders was again brought before the board. Apparently there is some dissatisfaction in the minds of some students and parents despite the efforts of principal Robert E. Williams who has acted at the direction of the school board.

The board majority said it would stand in support of Mr. Williams and the cheerleader selection committee, and that the board would give no further attention to the matter.

Outgoing board members Vaughn Billings and Lynn Fuller were presented with plaques in recognition of their service to the community as school board members.

Lois Vick and Debra Roof submitted letters of resignation which were accepted.

Elementary principal Charles Ray presented a report stating that student achievement in both elementary schools is well above the national norms in all areas tested by achievement tests.

The board will meet Wednesday, July 12, to swear in new members and organize for the 1978-79 school year.

'Vial-a-life' Aids In Emergencies

—Ruby Howard, Executive Director, Retired Senior Voluntary Program (RSVP)

"Vial-A-Life" is a kit providing elderly and disabled persons with visible medical identification for use in emergencies.

The program is developed by RSVP and is available at no cost to any senior citizen, severe diabetic, or other persons with medical problems.

The kit includes a vital information form to be placed in an unused 40-dram medical vial, stored in the refrigerator along with descriptions of medical problems; and two brightly colored stickers, one for the outside of the vial and one for the outside of the refrigerator to signify that medical information is inside.

The purpose is to assist EMS personnel, policemen and firemen when finding elderly persons or unconscious or incoherent victims.

Tornado Info

With hot and cold weather a matter of quick-change at the present time, Guy Mausteller has re-issued some tornado information for Saint Joe residents. He is public information officer for the county firemen's organization.

"This year, as in past years, the St. Joe-Concord Township Fire Department will be involved in somewhat of a tornado preparedness program for the St. Joe community.

"When DeKalb County is put under an official tornado warning, the St. Joe Fire Department is notified. When this happens, the Fire Signal will be blown on a steady tone for a three-minute period. This signal should make people aware that there are tornadoes in the area and that some safety precautions should be taken.

"The Riverdale Gym is equipped with a fallout shelter which can be used as a tornado shelter. During a tornado warning, the gym will be opened and the shelter be made available for the people of the community for their protection. This is especially a good place for trailer dwellers and/or people with houses without basements. But everyone is encouraged to make use of these facilities, it is required that if you come to the gym for protection, you must go directly into the shelter and stay there.

"During a tornado warning, St. Joe's fire trucks are stationed at several strategic locations in the town and township. This serves two purposes. It eliminates the possibility of all fire fighting equipment being destroyed by a tornado should one hit the fire hall. And it provides several viewpoints from which to watch for tornadoes.

"In the event a tornado is sighted and confirmed in the St. Joe area, the fire siren will be sounded a second time. This also will be a steady tone for a three-minute period. If the siren blows for the second three minute period, people should take cover. This means there is definitely a tornado in St. Joe's immediate area.

"The St. Joe-Concord Township Fire Department offers this protection for the people of the St. Joe community and hopes that everyone will take full advantage of this opportunity should the need arise."

ANOTHER Postage Rate Hike

In a recent issue, I pointed out the drastic increase in cost to mail this publication. Almost before the ink was dry (it really never dies on newsprint, so the expression is figurative), a rash of headlines appeared in daily newspapers all over the country. Radio and TV news reports echoed the headlines:

"Postal Unions Seek Big Raises" —. "Postal Workers Want Big Pay Hike" — and so on.

So, the recent increase in postage rates will be taken up by a new contract with higher pay, higher benefits, etc. And we will be right back where we started.

But no — — wait a minute. All is not lost. The recent rate increases (30% more per week to send you this paper) were a "special" increase. What was overlooked in all the publicity about the recent raise was that other increases are still in effect—automatically—as part of the Postal Reform Act of 19-something.

Thus, in addition to the 30% increase a month ago, this paper (and all other papers using the mail) will have ANOTHER increase in July—running from 20% to 30-plus%.

In a few weeks, therefore, it will cost almost as much PER WEEK to mail this paper as it cost PER YEAR to mail this paper 30 years ago.

There is only one reason for it—the rise in postal union members' pay and fringe benefits.

Every week, I pay to keep them comfortable and satisfied while they don't pay one cent toward my welfare!

My reaction is too strong??? I don't know about that—labor represents 85% of the operating cost of the postal system.

And anytime a group of public employees threatens not just my use of the mail but everyone else's by seeking a 14% pay increase the first year and another lesser increase the second year of a two-year contract, I am inclined to consider my alarm as justified and valid.

What is especially irritating is the public statement by a postal union spokesman that a raise is needed "to catch up with inflation." The truth is, ALL government workers' pay has increased in the past decade at a faster rate than that within private industry. The average postal worker—AVERAGE, mind you—gets over $15,000 a year right now, not including fringe benefits.

Another thing. The postal subsidy never was a matter of paying out so many dollars to newspapers, as an agricultural subsidy pays out to farmers to assist them in their operations. No check is received by the News Office. Rather, the subsidy is in paying postal workers to handle newspapers at their regular wages but charging low postage rates to the newspapers.

The important point to remember is that distribution of public information by private sources is essential to the cause of freedom. Increasing postage rates are one factor leading to the elimination of the locally-owned, locally-operated, locally-oriented weekly newspaper. For this reason, the cost of distributing the newspapers is properly borne in part by all American citizens through lower postal rates for the publications.

Fewer and fewer locally-owned, locally-operated, locally-oriented weekly newspapers has resulted in a drastic reduction in "grass roots" sources of information. Yes, you could have a stubborn, one-sided editor who refuses to publish opposing opinions. However, the history of the weekly newspaper has been dominated far more by independently-thinking but fair and open-minded editors who have allowed use of their pages for expression of public opinion for whatever reason.

The "bad" effect of higher newspaper rates, which we already have, is that public information becomes predominantly government-controlled. The News Office receives reams of public information every month from government agencies, all promoting their cause and telling a story ALWAYS favorable to the agency.

Our forefathers knew what they were doing when they allowed FREE distribution of the weekly newspaper in its home county. It prevented the "brainwashing" effect of government-controlled dissemination of public information.

If we want to protect the free press, we should restore the free distribution of weekly newspapers which are firmly established and not just "fly-by-night" publications cashing in on postal privileges.

—Don't forget the first thought —another postage increase for this paper, the second in two months, will mean my paying out PER WEEK almost as much as I paid out PER YEAR when I took over this paper.

Your present car may be worth more than you think.
Your new car may cost less than you imagined.
Bank financing, too, could well save you additional monies.
Right now could well be the best time to purchase that new car.

See an INTERESTED banker.

Public-Private Pension Abuse

You may have noticed news reports the past few weeks concerning members of Congress who not only receive their regular congressional pay, they also receive military retirement and disability pensions.

Among those mentioned are Bob Dole and Barry Goldwater, both Republicans. Several others have been named, including Democrats. But I pick out those two because they're Republicans!

Why do that? Well, if the moral responsibility exists that anyone capable of making a full-time-pay living not receive publicly financed pension funds of any type, where have the Republicans been in seeing to it that such practices not be allowed? Even though they are a minority party, they still could have made an issue of the matter long ago.

Keep in mind that Congress is not the only group having members getting pay-plus-pension income at public expense. The practice of "double-dipping" (working for government until "retirement," then taking another job outside government in order to qualify for Social Security) has been publicized to a considerable extent recently. But no one is doing anything about it. Both major political parties ought to be taking steps to correct the costly practice. What's more important, however, is that both major political parties NEVER SHOULD HAVE ALLOWED THE PRACTICE TO BEGIN.

It has been noted by columnists and poll-takers that the mood of the average citizen is changing. The permissiveness which liberals have cashed in on (in both parties) to gain the public vote is changing to a mood of restriction.

In other words, the nasty word "conservative" which has been used to embarrass the Republican party for many years is now coming to light as the word which best describes the deep-down basic philosophy of most Americans.

The fact that only a small percentage of Americans have been willing to say "I am a Republican" to pollsters was not due to faulty philosophy. Rather, the hesitant identity has been due to a successful effort by Democrat liberals to make caution, restraint, deliberation—"conservative"—sound like it's "bad" or wrong for the nation and for the people.

It is a poor approach to governmental actions to appeal to the emotions and to sentiment in order to get cooperation and support. Yet, that is what much of our government activity is based on today.

How many years does it take to experiment with supposed "benefits" from governmental intrusion into private lives before we decide such intervention makes things worse, not better?

We have had 42 of the last 46 years under the control of the Democrat party, with assistance from a few liberal Republicans. But we don't have any better society. It isn't safe to walk the streets of large cities at night; you didn't have that condition even in the "depression '30's." You can't plan on your own any more; government either prevents it or regulates it. Property owners must even PAY to get permission to make improvements. The elderly can't accumulate personal wealth for their own keep in retirement years because of heavy taxation during productive years. And when a person dies, what resources HAVE been accumulated are taxed again, with legal requirements setting up a guaranteed income of a sort for the legal profession. Instead of the family receiving all an inheritance, it is first subject to taxation, then the legal fees. In other words, inheritance tax laws have become a form of "redistribution of wealth." This is an idea that simply cannot be carried out because of man's instinctive desire for personal profit.

The fact that two or three special elections in the past few months have brought Republicans into office in districts which had been strongly Democrat before indicates two things: one, people ARE doing something about the situation in certain areas; and two, Republicans DO stand for those things which John Q. Public believes in—if they don't back off and "water-down" their positions, as did Republican Senator Howard Baker in the Panama treaty matter. Two out of three Americans opposed the Panama treaties, yet our members of Congress IGNORED their constituents—a majority did, that is, including some Republicans.

Scare tactics have influenced voters time after time, with liberals doing the scaring. As a result, we have a mass of government programs and agencies which have been set up to supposedly eliminate poverty, eliminate discrimination, eliminate all the ills of our society. Little attention has been paid to the very important question, "Can we afford it?"

The matter of pensions being collected by members of Congress is only the tip of the iceberg, so to speak. The amount of money involved is not small when you consider that thousands of other Americans are doing the same thing—collecting a publicly financed pension while still enjoying full-time employment. One of the main factors in the financial troubles of Social Security is the expansion of the program down through the years bringing an increasing number of eligible recipients who don't really need the money.

I mean, isn't it rather puzzling—and unfair—to be considering a tax credit for families paying college tuition, when the Social Security program already provides for tuition assistance for certain dependent children? Isn't it unfair to pay a disability benefit to a serviceman who is still able to hold a full-time job?

"30 and out" sounds like a good idea for retirement in private business—you work 30 years and then retire on a pension. Ideally, this opens the job market to younger workers.

However, the financial result is that the consumer ends up paying two people instead of one when it comes to business and industry budgets—the one working and the one not working but getting a pension.

President Kennedy is remembered for his thought that we should not ask what our country can do for us, but rather what we can do for our country.

We're doing the opposite.

The fact that some Congressmen donate their pensions to charity or use it in some other way does not justify the present setup. Such noteworthy efforts still involve money collected from the taxpayer. And we are not supposed to be handing out money in pay or pensions to be used at the discretion of the recipient. If we are going to support charity, then do it at the outset. But don't give someone a wad of money and, in effect say, "Here—do what you want with it."

These are TAX dollars, and the American taxpayer should not be intimidated into silence in the matter due to fear of criticism for protesting.

Happiness Is...

A HELPER

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

A friend of mine took a small daughter for a climb in the Smoky Mountains. Choosing a difficult trail, he suggested that she go first. He would follow. Right zestifully she began to climb. She was glad to show her father how strong and capable she was. But the trail grew steeper and more difficult. She slipped and fell. The thorns cut her. Tears came on her cheeks. Still she persisted. She had a strong will, and she was determined not to fail.

But at last the task became completely impossible, and after the most cruel fall of all she turned weeping to her father. He took her tenderly in his arms, and they climbed to the top of the mountain together. He never had intended her to do it alone.

We were never intended to climb the mountain of life alone. The whole experience was meant to teach us that our life is to be supplemented by a great Invisible Friend.

Happiness is . . . a helper.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

The death of Edith Sailer is another of those occurrences where you don't know what you have until you don't have it.

For me, personally, Edith was in the past couple of years a source of helpfulness. I have had a tough time on several occasion in keeping my thinking even half-way reasonable concerning church matters. Edith knew this—and she also missed something in church—and I knew this. But Edith accepted my resignation as church organist though she didn't like it and from time to time would say, "Come back, we need you."

Her caring was a comfort for me; her acceptance of my situation showed her great understanding of what the word "burden" means.

My concern now is that she gave more for me than I gave for her. I hope that isn't the way it is—but I'm bothered by the thought.

Anyhow—my life has been richer and fuller because of one of the "little people" who come into our daily lives in one way or another.

I'll miss Edith Sailer.

After receiving a phone call from an Eastside student about my comments related to the "most valuable player" award in girls' varsity basketball, I considered that maybe another reader is correct in calling my efforts "irresponsible and hurtful."

You'll remember that I said I was sure the award went to a graduating senior even though the team's success was a team effort. Well, the phone call was to "straighten you out" about the MVP selection. It seems that the team majority voted one way and the coach decided another way, keeping for himself the final say-so.

Since I didn't ask anyone how the voting went, I suppose it was "irresponsible" to suggest the team made the decision. I was expressing a feeling which probably was influenced too much by my own personal emotions than by common sense. I was, when you boil it down, actually saying what I HOPED the team had done. My only defense is that my words were expressed as an opinion, a feeling, and not as a report of facts.

Since there has been a continuing debate about the election of cheerleaders in recent weeks, to the point that the matter has been brought before the school board a couple of times so far and will probably come up again in the near future, I wonder if the seemingly appropriate involvement of the student body as a whole or in part in elections and selections can be justified. It should be a means of learning about the elective process. But I get vibrations of jealousy in some students.

Isn't it totally inconsiderate to take school board members' time, school administrators' time and faculty members' time to air discontent about elections or selections related to student activities? I think so. If we're going to allow students to make decisions, then let THEM clear the matter up when difficulty arises in those decisions—don't go running to the school board hollering "foul."

A point to consider: I have asked three or four people about the cheerleader matter and they either don't know or won't say. Yet the matter is important enough to bring before the school board time after time.

How can there be factual information if questions go unanswered???

(Note: these comments were written before the school board did vote to drop the cheerleader matter.)

As to the MVP matter, I am disappointed that the situation was not as I suspected (or hoped). But if it is factual reporting we want, then be advised (as I was) that the student who got the MVP was not the one chosen by teammates.

Now—if that makes things "right" and "straight," so be it.

But one thing is certain; I was happier in my ignorance.

'Block-head' Response Led By 'Wanda & Shirley'

On TV, it's "LaVerne and Shirley." In Saint Joe, it's "Wanda and Shirley"—at least as far as helping this newspaper raise funds for a new concession stand at the local softball diamond. And it's no laughing matter, either.

A reassuring response has come thus far in The News' "Honorary Block-head" campaign to obtain funds for the construction of a concession stand at the local lighted ball diamond.

Though there is a long way to go before the approximately 400 needed cement blocks are obtained, immediate response was encouraging. And that response was due mainly to the efforts of Shirley Mack and Wanda Coburn at the local restaurant. The Bita General Store has also obtained a significant number of donations.

Those who give 50 cents for the purchase of a cement block receive a "1978 Commemorative Penny," a bright, new 1978 penny affixed to a card designating the donor as an "Honorary Block-head."

Business establishments at Saint Joe and Spencerville have a supply of honorary cards on hand to give to those donating fifty cents.

Years ago, when the St. Joe Valley Recreation Club was formed early in 1951, what was then the high school softball diamond became the present lighted ball diamond. Extensive grading was done at the sight,

A slogan appeared at the top of The News in following months: "Goal to be won in '51—a lighted softball diamond."

A "thermometer" was published in each issue showing the amount of money in the club treasury raised to date toward a goal of $3,500. Money was raised by outright donations, by the sale of $25 non-interest bearing bonds, and by various fund-raising activities which for a time averaged one a month. They included bake sales, an auction, a square dance and so on.

One welcomed source of financial support was the Class of 1951 at the Saint Joe high school. The kids donated $230 which paid approximately for two of the light poles. Stainless steel plates are yet visible at the diamond marking the donated poles.

The Spencerville P.T.A. (in those days, Spencer and Concord townships were separate school corporations) put on a benefit performance of two plays, proceeds of which went to the diamond lighting fund.

One play was titled, "Henry's Mail-Order Wife," and had a cast which included Dallas Zimmerman, Louise Zimmerman, Lester Anthony, Roy Sponhower, Frances Doll, Nan Vendrely and Donzella Graham.

The other play, "Kidnapping Betty," had a cast including Bill Weninger, Don Long, Dick Wilderson, Mrs. Marion Rediger, Dorothy Kimes and Harold Goldsmith.

The last $75 or so of the $3,500 goal was raised through The News which asked readers for "a buck or a half a buck." Some donations went up to $5 and at least one $25 donation came in as a result of the final plea.

The $3,500 was raised in only ten months.

Ted Haberkorn served as the first president of the Recreation Club and Frank Sechler was secretary. Between the two, the lighting project got off the ground—no pun intended.

Among the donations was an old shed from the property then owned by Lloyd and Mildren Bunten. It was small but built the way things were made in the "good old days." That building served as a concession stand at the lighted diamond for several years before it was so heavily vandalized as to be no longer useful.

A few years ago, the Little League group poured a concrete slab behind the backstop and a small building was obtained. However, the building was never fully installed on the slab and, again, vandals caused enough damage as to make it useless also.

Today there is the current drive for "Honorary Block-Heads" so that, once more, a concession stand can be in operation for all the activities going on at the diamond.

So, the current "Block-Head" project has much in common with the original efforts to install a lighted diamond in that a lot of people contributing a little as their share can do wonders in carrying out community projects.

Spencerville Prepares For 150th 'Birthday Party'

Residents of Spencerville are preparing for another big "shindig", according to Charlotte Hudson, publicity chairman.

On Saturday and Sunday, July 22 and 23, Spencerville will celebrate 150 years of existence at a big "birthday party." It is the oldest settlement in DeKalb County and has the only remaining covered bridge still in use at its original site.

The Saturday, July 22, activities include a parade; games and contests for children; old-timers' baseball and basketball; Little League games; bingo; a historic presentation; a chicken barbecue; and dancing to live music.

Sunday will begin with an outdoor community church service, followed by a potluck dinner at noon; rides for children; and the Spencerville School reunion.

The community had a Covered Bridge Centennial in 1973 and held a Covered Bridge Festival in 1974.

The Story Of A Life-Saver

Forrest Bevington has a long record of community service including teacher, recreation director, active church member and Sunday School teacher, and so on.

Monday Mr. Bevington became a life-saver. It has been reported that, when a woman patron at an Auburn restaurant began choking on food lodged in her throat, he immediately used the "bear hug" method of forcing the food from the victim's throat

The technique involves reaching around the victim's body from the back, clenching one hand in a fist and grabbing it with the other hand, placing both hands at the bottom of the rib cage, and giving a vigorous squeeze which forces the fist into the diaphram.

Mr. Bevington followed the approved method, and out popped the food which had become lodged in the victim's throat.

The act probably saved the woman's life, as statistics show death by choking on food particles to be far from an unusual occurrence.

B'ketball Clinic

There will be a summer basketball clinic at the DeKalb Eastside gym Saturday morning, July 8. The clinic will be run by Eastside's new head basketball coach, Rick Hudson.

From 9 to 10:30 a.m., there will be a clinic for boys who enter grades 6 or 7 this coming fall. From 10:30 to noon, the clinic will be for boys who will enroll in the 8th or 9th grade.

There willl be a summer basketball tournament at Angola on July 15 for boys who will be in the 8th and 9th grades.

All boys who are interested in playing basketball in the fall, and especially in the tournament July 15, are strongly encouraged to attend the clinic on July 8.

Coach Hudson states that all boys participating in the clinic should bring shoes, trunks, etc., with them.

CL Schedule

(Due to the July 4 holidays, a light schedule is set for next week.)

Thursday, July 6—Hicksville CC v Spencerville UM; and Mt. Pleasant UM v Coburntown I.

'Do It Yourself' Wins Again

(Note: the following was set for publication three weeks ago but space limitations prevented its appearance.)

If you haven't noticed, an outstanding example of people working together for community betterment is found in the two recreation lighting projects now under way.

It is often easy to "bad mouth" the community as a whole, because the community doesn't "have everything." But the fault is not in the community; the fault is in the people. (However, it must be recognized that you can't "have everything" in the first place. You CAN have what you deserve and work for.)

It's the same as politics. It is not so much a matter of "crooked politicians" as it is a matter of "crooked people," in that they are always willing to "take" for themselves and justify their corruption by saying they're "entitled to it" or they "have a right to it."

But let someone else be on the "take" and it is "crooked."

The real gut message in the current community projects is that tremendous headway can be made by "do-it-yourself" methods. Just think of it—there are no government planners involved in Saint Joe's projects. We don't have any "leeches" sucking off the nation's life's blood in fulltime busybody "experts" sent out by some governmental agency.

What we do have is average citizens, businessmen, farmers —our own people—making decisions on the basis of their own intelligence. Certainly, some advice and suggestions have been sought. But the decisions have been made by "our people." And "our people" are running the whole show.

I think it's terrific. And I also think that many people are to be thanked, especially Frank Sechler, the Lions Club, the management at Vulcraft, the congregations comprising the church league and Jerry Storer and Terry Doub, the Booster Club, the Little League, and Knisely National Bank for making the challenge "we can do it" come true.

I think I can—I think I can—I think I can—I think I can —.

The $2,000 Question

In answer to questions put to him by The News this week, Concord Township Trustee Merlin Simanton said he had received a communication from the humane society suggesting a "levy" of $2.00 per person in Concord Township as the township's share of the cost of constructing a humane shelter. Apparently the society has broken construction costs down on a per capita basis and Concord Township's share is computed at the $2.00 per person figure.

The county council has made available to the society one acre of ground on the county landfill site. The humane society's efforts at present center on building a shelter. Signs promoting such a venture can be seen in various locations in the county.

For comparison purposes, the total amount of money to be raised by tax levy for 1978, according to the proposed budget published in August of 1977, is $1,168. The humane society is figuring on $2,000 from the township for the humane shelter, apparently estimating a population of 1,000 in the township.

An editorial is this paper two weeks ago pointed out the "back-door" approach in use to get funds for building a shelter. Sentimentality rather than dollars and cents have been used extensively in promoting the shelter idea. There have been no estimates of operating costs given. The public has no idea of the financial demands which would come with the establishment of a humane shelter and provision of full-time help.

The Concord Township trustee said $1,000 was given toward the Senior Citizen Center at Auburn as a result of a recent public meeting on the use of revenue sharing funds.

The trustee also noted that the township will receive about $2,100 in revenue sharing funds during the current year. That happens to be almost exactly the amount sought from the township for a humane shelter.

Coincidence?

Your present car may be worth more than you think.
Your new car may cost less than you imagined.
Bank financing, too, could well save you additional monies.
Right now could well be the best time to purchase that new car.

Happiness Is...

EXPERIENCE

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

A story is told of the artist Turner that one day he invited Charles Kingsley into his studio to see a picture of a storm at sea. Kingsley was wrapt in admiration: "How did you do it?" he exclaimed.

Turner answered: "I wished to paint a storm at sea, so I went to the coast of Holland and engaged a fisherman to take me out in his boat in the next storm. The storm was brewing, and I went down to his boat and had him tie me to its mast. Then he drove the boat out into the teeth of the storm. The storm was so furious that I longed to lie down in the bottom of the boat and allow it to blow over me. But I could not; I was bound to the mast. Not only did I see that storm and feel it, but it blew itself into me till I became part of the storm. And then I came back and painted that picture."

Turner's experience is a parable of life. Life is sometimes sunshine, sometimes pleasure, sometimes pain, sometimes defeat, sometimes victory. Life is a great mingling of happiness and tragic storm. He who comes out of it rich in living is he who dares to accept it all, to face it all, to let it blow its power and its mystery and its tragedy into the inmost recesses of his soul.

Happiness is . . . experience.

Patient compliance - what is it?

You visit your physician and he diagnoses an illness. Then he suggests a course of treatment and gives you a prescription to have filled. Do you heed his advice and follow his directions?

Too many people do not. Some have the prescription filled and then do not take it. Others do not even bother to have the prescription filled. In our pharmacy, we try to help you comply with your doctor's directions by counseling you about your medicine and we encourage you to ask us questions.

"A GREAT MANY PEOPLE ENTRUST US with their prescriptions, health needs and other pharmacy products. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty. May we be your personal family pharmacy?"

GOP Women

The DeKalb County Republican Women's Club met June 26 in the courthouse assembly room.

Members decided to contribute to the Ramey McCormick Scholarship Fund. The scholarship is awarded annually in the amount of $1,000 to a student of voting age and college-enrolled who majors in political science, government or journalism.

Eileen Howiler of Garrett was elected secretary. Ways and Means Committee Chairman Mable Fuller of Butler asked members' opinions about selling raffle tickets for gasoline at the DeKalb County Free Fall Fair. Committee members will decide details and distribute tickets for sale this summer.

President Marcella Fuller of Butler welcomed Prosecuting Attorney H. Charles Winans and State Representative Norman L. Gerig who are candidates in the November election. Deputy Larry E. Myers, candidate for county sheriff, made an appearance later in the meeting.

Dick Worman of Grabill, candidate for State Senator, was the evening's speaker. He stressed the citizen's responsibility in the law-making process and explained how a bill becomes a law in the state of Indiana.

Mr. Worman urged members to read about proposed legislation and to contact their state representative or senator with their thoughts and ideas.

Mr. Worman praised the Indiana General Assembly for its foresight in enacting property tax control five years ago. He cited State Chamber of Commerce figures showing Indiana 49th out of 50 in property tax increases for the past decade. He pointed out that the recent "Proposition 13" approval by California residents is an indication of taxpayers being "fed up with government spending our money so easily."

Nell Souers of Garrett told of the August 9 noon luncheon at the Scottish Rite Banquet Room in Fort Wayne for Indiana's "First Lady," Beth Bowen, wife of the governor. The luncheon is sponsored by the Young Mother Council of Indiana and will feature a style show by the Et Cetera Shop of Auburn, along with a speaker and soloist Berniece Fraction.

Club members plan an August picnic, a bean supper in September to meet the candidates and a family dinner in October.

The next meeting will be held July 24 at 7:30 p.m., the location to be announced later.

TO THE EDITOR—

Friend Ted,

First take notice to my stationery. It is some Fred printed years ago. I found it among some old papers.

I asked Curtices to phone you to stop my paper in March when it was due. I am still getting it. Sorry to stop it but I can't see to read any more. My folks took it from the time it started and I have taken it 67 years. I will miss it.

Sincerely,
Lela Northrup

The "Fred" referred to is Fred Leighty who published this paper from 1900 to 1946. —And we have reluctantly removed the name of a faithful long-time subscriber from our mailing list. —Ed

Lions 20th Year 'Hand-cranker'

The Saint Joe Lions Club is preparing for the 20th anniversary of the beginning of its hand-cranked homemade ice cream social. The club held socials before, but in 1958 the "hand-cranked" idea was instituted by the club and many other organizations followed suit in ensuing years.

This year's social will be held Saturday, July 15, at the Saint Joe conservation club grounds at the west edge of Saint Joe.

Serving will begin at 5 p.m. and continue until either the public or the cranking arms have had enough.

Profits from the social are used to support local projects as well as state and international continuing projects and programs.

A NARROW ESCAPE

William Hamilton and family figured in an auto accident Sunday evening while returning home from Defiance. A large Buick car, speeding, smashed into a Ford car which was passing Mr. Hamilton, throwing the Ford against his causing some damage to the left side of the machine.

RAIN CAUSES POOR ATTENDANCE AT 1st SERVICE

Owing to the incessant rain Sunday evening the series of union Sunday evening church services started off with rather a small crowd. However, a splendid meeting was held. The three pastors were present and took part in conducting the service. Rev. Daily preached a sermon on the topic, "The American Idea."

It was decided that the meetings be held in the grove east of the Christian Church, and steps were taken for the placing of temporary seats to be erected in the grove.

Remember that the services start at 6:00 P.M. on the dot, which makes it necessary to have Christian Endeavor at 5 o'clock.

FIRE SCARE SUNDAY MORNING

A blaze of unknown origin broke out in the basement of the H. S. Bowman home Sunday at 3:15 a.m. The fire department was called but before it reached the site the blaze had been extinguished.

No particular damage was done but had there not been such an early discovery made it is probable that the home would have been destroyed.

WALTER KEESLER WEDS ALABAMA GIRL

Walter Keesler and wife arrived here Saturday noon from Bellewood, Alabama, for an indefinite visit with the former's parents, Sam Keesler and wife. Mr. and Mrs. Keesler were married at Bellewood, Saturday, June 24. The latter was formerly Miss Eva King of that place.

JUST A SUGGESTION

Would you believe that there are some folks in St. Joe who borrow the St. Joe News from their neighbor to read each week. Some of these borrowers really can't afford to subscribe; others are sore on the management for little misunderstanding which happened years ago, and want to let on that they don't care for the paper, yet they slip around to the back door of some poor good neighbor and ask if they can't read the News this week; others are so tight with their money hoarded in farms and bonds that they can't afford to support the News or any other forward booster.

The first type mentioned we could excuse in good spirit. When we have a special feature published we send those folks a copy just for them to read. The second class should be exposed in their little sneaking ways. And the third class should have life made so miserable around them that they would get out of town, giving room for someone who will boost the home town. Better not let such people locate here.

Now you folks who are guilty of this offense please be kind to the poor neighbor from whom you are now borrowing the St. Joe news. Find out when their subscription expires and then just come in and sign up for them for one year and for yourself for one year. That is the only way of redeeming your good will with us.

Testament To A Town And Its Citizens

(Editor's note: oftentimes we become so involved with "what's wrong with the community" that the overwhelming "what's right" is forgotten. And often, it takes an outsider to re-open our eyes to the blessings found in a small community. Such is the case as provided by the following letter given to The News last week.)

One of the things that made America great was the unity of its people in times of stress. It has been my privilege to have observed this same greatness over the past few weeks.

Among the finest of memories I'll ever have to treasure is that of the way the residents of this small rural community of St. Joe, Indiana, rallied around two of its older citizens, Edith and Zay Sailer, my beloved Aunt and Uncle. The people of this quiet, little town did not hide behind such old cliches as "I didn't know," or "no one told me," or "they did not ask for my help," etc. etc. Not at all. They did not wait until it was advantageous or convenient. And what they did had none of the stigma of "duty" or "performance." There was no question of excuses or self interest, just LOVE OF ONE'S FELLOW MAN. They made a POINT of keeping in touch, of KNOWING and did not wait to be asked. Indeed not. What it amounts to, I believe, is the age old story of indifference as opposed to concern.

In this particular case, the people of St. Joe cared. They cared so much that all during Mrs. Sailer's illness, these two old people lacked nothing. Friends and neighbors called on them frequently, bringing food and good cheer. Why? Because they CARED. They gave of their time, their pocketbooks and their talents unwaveringly. With their visits and gifts of food they made the pain and loneliness and, ultimately, loss of a loved one much easier to bear.

Although my loss is great, I feel my gain is also great. For, I've never, in all of my life, experienced such generosity from so many. I'm truly grateful to have such a memory to cherish along with the memory of a merry little lady who made my life the better for having known her - my Aunt Edie.

The entire Nation, if not World, could gain much in taking a lesson from the people in this small community, people whose greatness is made up of their simple goodness and graciousness. GOD BLESS YOU ONE AND ALL.

Zay Sailer

From The Editor's Desk....

I Forgot I&M!

I overlooked one very important source of help last week in telling about the individuals and groups giving so much help to local projects.

I forgot I&M!

Though the projects have been progressing through private business channels, it is important to remember that, if or when we got stuck, I&M was there to help.

With all the criticism thrown at the electric company during the energy crisis (which seems to be a "permanent" crisis), a pat on the back or a bouquet is appropriate for I&M in recognition of the utility's willingness to help out in every possible way.

It is close to the straight truth that, when no one else would take the job of installing the tennis court lights, I&M said, "We'll do it."

The project isn't finished yet; the fixtures haven't arrived. But it is "mean old, dirty old, rate-hiking old I&M" who will help us out.

Welcome, Butler 'Blockhead'!

What is gratifying about living in a small town?.

Well, if anyone were to ask me I would be compelled to say "the response from people in a community project, regardless of its magnitude."

The number of "Honorary Block-heads" is considerable—those who are donating 50 cents for one cement block to be used in building a new concession stand at the ball diamond.

There are others who are making outright donations to give a helping hand, and that support is essential.

And then there are the surprises—such as occurred this week when I answered the telephone and heard Wilbur Johnson's voice coming from Butler (he has an automobile service and repair shop in his garage). He asked, "How's your block project going?" I told him we were getting good support.

Then he said, "Well, I want to give $50 for your project."

— — — — — — Those dashes represent my speechless moments as I didn't know what to say. Wilbur said he had sponsored athletic teams in Butler in the past but hadn't done anything to support projects in the Riverdale area.

As far as gratifying is concerned, that's an example kin to The News' concession stand project. In another instance related to the Church League and it's installation of new light fixtures, we faced an unexpected expense for a new master switch box. When I picked one up, through Ivan Brown at the hardware, he had told me approximately what the cost would be (it wasn't the listed price). But later when I stopped in to find out what we owed him for the switch box, he said, "Oh, let's just forget about it. We haven't done to much for the diamond." That observation is not true, really; he and Betty HAVE helped out in the past.

But—this time they really gave a boost because they donated a switch box which probably cost around $150!

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Contributor:

I want to thank you for your generous $10.00 contribution to help defeat S. 1883 (also known as S. 2467), Big Labor's so-called labor law "reform" bill.

As you know, union lobbyists were sure at the beginning of 1978 that they could push this vicious bill through the Senate just as they did in the House of Representatives.

But your efforts, and those of other concerned citizens, have slowed their steamroller.

The massive outpouring of protest from Right To Work supporters across the country has made one thing clear to the Senate — the American people strongly oppose the compulsory unionism S. 1883 would promote.

But union bosses are angry at the growing number of Senators who question their orders on S. 1883. They're still determined to ramrod the phony labor law "reform" bill through the Senate, and it's vital that we continue our campaign against this union power grab.

Working together, I'm confident that we will meet this challenge and continue to move forward in the effort to protect the freedom of choice for America's workers.

Again, many thanks.

Sincerely,
Reed Larson
President, National Right To Work Committee (A Coalition of Employees and Employers)

Should any reader wish to contribute, the address of the National Right To Work Committee is 8316 Arlington Boulevard, (U.S. 50), Suite 600, Fairfax, Virginia 22038. The slogan of the committee is, "Americans must have the right but not be compelled to join labor unions." Indiana's Senator Richard Lugar is among those leading the fight in the Senate to prevent passage of the "reform" bill. However, Indiana's other Senator, Birch Bayh, supports the "reform" measure, saying that it would "equalize" the positions of labor and management in the national economic structure.

The bill would require employers to allow union organizers to meet with workers on company time but would place limitations on employers' efforts to counter union-organizer efforts.

A little-publicized fact in today's daily newspapers is that labor unions have lost more elections than they have won in the past year or so in plants where workers vote "yes" or "no" on unionizing. Less than 25% of the nation's total working force belongs to a union.

In practical terms, that means one person decides what inconveniences three other persons will be subjected to in case a strike is voted. Such a condition is properly referred to as "minority rule." —Ed.

Lights Ready To Be Installed

Unless a "hitch" develops in the meantime, installation of the new metal halide lights will be made Sunday and Monday at the local softball diamond.

Jerry Storer and Terry Doub have made arrangements for a private contractor to install the 18 units of 1500 watts each.

The 26 fixtures which now light the diamond, and have done so for 27 years, will be removed before the new lights are installed. It is tentatively planned to speed the installation process by removal of the old units by local volunteers.

If anyone wants to buy one of the old units, they should contact Jerry, Terry, Lavon Hart Roger Cook or Ted Haberkorn. There have been some who have already indicated the desire to obtain one of the fixtures for use as a security light or yard light.

The units have 1500-watt incandescent bulbs. The price is $10 per unit.

May is gone, but hypertension is not!

Back in May, a great deal was said and done about calling people's attention to hypertension. There were articles, screenings, posters, talks and many other special activities to make the public aware of the high blood pressure problem. It's all very traditional for May.

But, here it is July and while all the "hoopla" is gone, hypertension is still here. The important purpose of this ad is to remind you that high blood pressure is a year round problem and that if you have it, you must keep on taking your medication.

Humane News

—by Joyce Kuckuck, Officer/Director

A woman who visited both the Garrett and Waterloo pounds recently was very surprised at not only the assortment and number of dogs and puppies in the two pounds, but also that the majority appeared to be very good ones. She said she'd always thought of the dogs in pounds as being scraggy, mangy, sickly mutts. Instead, she found that the majority of them looked to be good, healthy animals. Unfortunately, many real good dogs are dumped for whatever reasons, as well as many dogs being let loose and thus causing problems which necessitates their being picked up. Also, they are given the best care possible, considering our very limited facilities, equipment, supplies and funds at this time. But the care is still such that any dog that is a good healthy one when it is brought in should continue to be so.

However, unless the humane society obtains safe, reliable vehicles from some source to use for transporting the animals, it is hard to say how long they will be able to continue that service. It would then be up to anyone knowing of a stray or a loose dog, for instance, to take it to one of the two pounds themselves. It is pointed out that the humane officers from the two pounds were driving the two Civil Defense vehicles. However, the person driving the station wagon has refused to drive it any more as she feels it is too unsafe. Consequently, it has been driven by someone else.

Many people seem to feel that all that is needed for a pound to operate is the provision of a bit of fencing to hold them inside of, some food and water. There is a LOT more to it than that. An adequate, healthy pound provision is very similar in its needs to a shelter, but on a smaller scale.

An animal pound needs to provide protection from the sun, wind, rain and snow. It should provide suitable runs that are easy to keep clean and disinfected. There are various supplies needed for caring for the dogs and their cleanliness and well being such as dog dip, shampoo, brushes, collars and chains — as well as food. There are the grounds to be maintained and the equipment for maintaining them, as well as the equipment needed for caring for the kennels and the office and other areas. Office equipment and supplies are also a necessity, plus storage space for dog food, various types of equipment and supplies. There needs to be heat, electricity, water and a phone; and money to pay the much needed employees to do the work. So, providing a suitable pound is no small thing. In thinking about the overall expense, vehicles for doing the necessary getting around throughout the county on all types of "animal business" is doubtless one of the largest of the expenditures. Not only is good transportation expensive, but so is the insurance coverage for it, gas and maintenance.

We have laws and ordinances for good reasons, but unless they are enforced, we might as well not have them. All types of law enforcement costs money and animal protection and control is no different. Until everyone who owns any kind of animals becomes a REALLY responsible, kind law abiding owner, there will be need for folks to look out for the welfare of the animals since they have no way of protecting themselves from the atrocities of so-called human beings, or even from just plain ignorant or other mistreatment. It would be the greatest thing if all humane societies could be put out of business from the sheer lack of need for anyone to have to be concerned about the treatment of animals. How about YOU of DeKalb County making this community the first in the country to be able to earn such a reputation - and - to KEEP IT.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I had a pleasant conversation last week with Ted and Helen Strouse of Camden, Michigan. Her maiden name is Tustison and she was born in the house now owned by Gilbert Ortiz and located just north of town. Ted operated the "Three Star" store in Saint Joe years ago, located on what is now a vacant lot across from the hardware and on the east side of the alley.

They were in town visiting and stopped in to renew their subscription.

Mt. Pleasant was up to bat against Hicksville the other night when I stopped to watch some Church League action. A long flyball to left-center made me to take a second look at the batter, but I wasn't sure of his identity—but I had a suspicion.

The next time he came up to bat he put one over the fence in left-center. Then I was fairly certain.

The next time he came up, he put it over the fence again, at just about the same spot. Then I was certain.

It was good to see Bill Farmer in action again. He played for Mt. Pleasant years ago, then was out of action for some time.

After the game, a few of us were talking about Bill's power and Lavon Hart noted that "you can't give him anything good." Larry Blosser, who was pitching for Hicksville, replied with, "Even if it's bad, he'll hit it. That second homer was on a bad pitch."

It is interesting to note that a few of the other "old-timers" are playing again — "Blackie" Baughman, Pete Storer, Bud Shockley come to mind right off-hand.

That's what make the Church League more enjoyable—the youngsters and the oldsters together. And while the league is not designed to be competitive, there is in addition to the fellowship enough competitiveness to make it interesting.

CHURCH LEAGUE

Monday, July 17—Newville U-M v Hicksville CC; and Norris Chapel UM v Newville CC.

Tuesday—Mt. Pleasant UM v St. Joe CC; and Coburntown II-Lutheran v Spencerville UM.

Thursday—Newville CC v Coburntown I; and Mt. Pleasant v Newville UM.

Friday—Hicksville v St. Joe CC; and Spencerville v Norris Chapel.

With the Little League requesting time for a game July 24 and 25 in a local tourney for the 9 and 10-year-olds, plus a rained-out game to be made up, the Church League schedule has two games Friday of this week. Norris Chapel faces the Hicksville team at 7:15 and Newville CC meets Mt. Pleasant at 9:00.

The Spencerville-Mt. Pleasant game scheduled for 7:15 Monday, July 24, has been re-scheduled for 7:15 Monday, July 31.

The band participated in the World Music Contest under the direction of Gladys Wright and received a second in first-class music rating competition. The rating is according to the demands made on the ability of performing musicians by the various compositions.

Rex Bolinger To Be EHS A-D

At Mondaly's meeting of the DeKalb eastern school board, one of the items of business will be the announcement of the hiring of Rex Bolinger as Director of Athletics. In addition to academic duties, he now serves as head coach of baseball.

Other board business Monday includes consideration of salary increases for cooks, clerks, custodians and school bus drivers; consideration of the 1979 budget as recommended by Superintendent Kenneth Cole; consider adoption of the junior-senior high school faculty handbook for 1978-79; sign contracts as necessary; and any other business that may come before the board.

Esther Bowman

Esther Mary Bowman, 95, a former long-time resident of Saint Joe, died Monday at the Meadowhaven Nursing Home in Butler. She had resided at the home since 1973.

Mrs. Bowman was born April 14, 1883, in Keswick, Iowa, the daughter of Daniel and Emma Baker. On June 16, 1901, she and Frank "Deac" Bowman were united in marriage in the Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. Mr. Bowman died in 1971.

The Bowmans resided in a home located where the Knisely Branch Bank now stands in Saint Joe. The home was the center of many social activities "in the good old days," according to some of the old-timers. Mr. Bowman operated a drug store at Saint Joe. In his later years, he worked at Geddes Drug Store in Butler.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Eloise Chapman, of Lakeside, California, and one grandchild.

'Openness' - Not Always Good

One of the most noticeable changes in today's living is in the openness with which certain previous "no-no's" are discussed on radio and television and in the printed media. Even church groups are discussing some of these subjects and are making the headlines with their statements.

The "homosexual matter" is one of those subjects talked about in hushed tones in the past. But now it is a wide-open subject. Some may say it is a good sign that we have such openness about it. I not so sure it is a good thing.

Anita Bryant is the first name that comes to mind when efforts to counteract homoosexuality are mentioned. She has been highly praised for her efforts to "protect the children" and she has also been highly criticized for depriving an abnormal group of its so-called rights.

The recent Indiana-Kentucky Synod convention asked a committee to study the matter. To some, this was "taking action." To me, it was passing the buck.

I think it was the Southern Baptist denomination which in the past few days issued a statement condemning homosexuality as a sin. But it also said that those who find themselves with homsexual tendencies should be treated with love and concern.

I think one of the main errors committed by those who are homosexual or those who "take sides" with the homosexual is the notion that there are "homosexual rights." This implies that they are a legitimate segment of society. And the dangerous part of open discussion about the matter is that such discussion sounds as if a homosexual IS a member of a legitimate group in society.

It bothered me a few years ago when either "Dear Abbie" or "Dear Annie" would on occasion seem to support homesexuals who wrote to her and expressed their "satisfactory" lifestyle or complained about the persecution they suffered.

What she was saying was that homosexuals should be treated like human beings, but this was misinterpreted by certain people to mean they should be recognized and respected BECAUSE they were homosexuals.

The colmunist eventually did set the record straight as to her meaning, stating that homosexuals are mentally maladjusted and do not lead a normal lifestyle.

I think a majority of people know that homosexuality is a deviation from normal. True, some people treat these maladjusted individuals like something less than human. But there are hopefully a majority of people who condemn the sin but forgive the sinner.

In my book, the Baptist pronouncement was truly representative of a Christian outlook. I hope my own denominational spokesmen come out with a similar statement reflecting a view compatible with Scripture text about the subject.

Your present car may be worth more than you think.
Your new car may cost less than you imagined.
Bank financing, too, could well save you additional monies.

ERA Mother 'Uses' Child

One of the saddest items I have seen in reports from national news services relates to current efforts to extend ratification time for the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA). A "march" in Washington, D.C., Sunday had crowds estimated by different sources from 55,000 up to 90,000 or 100,000.

Here is the sad part as reported by wire services:

"There was also a tiny young girl named Era McCarthey perched on the shoulders of her mother, Judy McCarthey. The child was named for the proposed amendment because she was born during the ERA Houston convention last November."

You know, us older folks get criticized by the younger parental generation because we "inflicted our will" on our children and that's bad, they say. We stunted the growth of our children, generally, by not giving them their "children's rights," by having the final say-so in matters related to our offspring, they say.

What do you call it when a child's name is selected because of a convention, because of a somewhat politically-motivated movement?

I think it's a shame that children are used in such activities because their impressionable minds recall these activities in later years as a normal part of American society's activities.

I don't condemn all demonstrations. All of us have the basic right to "peaceably assemble." What I do not like is exposure of tots to such gatherings as occurred in Washington Sunday. Children have the right to be left out of their parents' demonstration activities.

What that young mother overlooked is that she practiced with her child the same thing that she objected to as a demonstrator for the ERA—using another human being as a "thing" rather than respecting the other person as a human being.

Tuition Tax Credit Is Wrong

Recent public opinion polls, including those taken by Indiana Senator Dick Lugar and Fourth District Congressman Dan Quayle, show that the public supports the idea of a tuition tax credit for families with students at the college and university level. I'm not certain whether the question covers tuition paid to private and parochial schools or not, but that is not an essential factor in my opposition to such a tax credit.

This type of "solution" to the increasing cost of living is, in my opinion, treating the symptoms and not the disease.

If there is any "right" basic to our concept of education, it is the right of a family to be able to provide a college or university education for its deserving offspring without being put into a "special class" group, as would be the case with a tuition tax credit. Such a credit would mean lower tax revenues, and the only way to make up for that lost revenue is by placing a heavier tax burden on someone else.

There is another point to be made in my opposition to a tuition tax credit for the cost of higher education. It is generally recognized that achievement requirements have been lowered in elementary, junior and senior high school, and college and university levels. The college graduate of today has less demands made on his or her time and effort than comparable students of 10, 15, 20 and more years ago. Getting a degree is not the 'mark of distinction" today that it was in years past. The number of enrollees at the college and university level is higher percentagewise today because higher education standards have been lowered. We do not have "smarter" college graduates; we just have more of them.

It is true that you still see a condition of employment stated "must have college degree" in many help-wanted ads. But the overall picture of occupations shows that two-year business and technical schools provide the training needed for a so-called "better job."

I don't think a tuition tax credit is right in principle. And I don't think the amount involved per family makes all that difference. And it makes another division in our society based on special interests—and isn't that what we think is all wrong already—too many "special interest" groups who are too powerful???

The Privacy Jumble

Add another chapter to the story of contradictions coming from Indiana's Senator Birch Bayh. Among other duties, he is chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee.

The Senator was among those who recently expressed fear at the intrusion of the CIA and the FBI into the private lives of well-known and lesser-known citizens of this nation. The Senator issued one of his many mailings to the news media on the matter and attempted to set at ease the minds of his constituents who fear invasion of privacy—an understandable and a logical fear.

The Senator declared the virtues of proposed legislation that would protect you and me from invasion of privacy. It is called the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act proposed by Representative Peter Rodino.

National columnist William Safire comments as follows on the bill's shortcomings:

". . . the bill slips in an 'exception' that makes a mockery of the purported purpose of the bill: it authorizes the president and attorney general to tap WITHOUT COURT ORDER provided the executive branch reports the action to the House and Senate Intelligence Committees. Thus, the check on abuse is not judicial but congressional — and Democratic committee chairmen tend not to complain about abuses of Democrat presidents.

"Next, Rodino's way of protecting us against future abuses of power authorizes 'officers, employees or agents of the United States . . . in the normal course of their official duties" to test the wiretapping equipment and to train wiretappers on unsuspecting people — without a court order. This is a loophole wide enough to drive a truckload of plumbers through, and the excuse, if caught, would be 'sorry, just testing'.

"Finally, the Rodino bill — and the Kennedy-Bayh companion bill in the Senate — turns the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a private company, into an active participant in both court-ordered and unwarranted tapping."

Mr. Safire's concluding comments are thought-provoking:

"Huey Long once said that if fascism ever came to America, it would come in Democratic form; in this bill, Big Brother is on the way, and he is cloaked in the mantle of civil liberties.

"The irony is rich on the personal level, too. Here we have Democrat Peter Rodino (once embarrassed by an FBI wiretap of a New Jersey racketeer who claimed to have politician Rodino in his pocket) putting his name on a bill giving emergency authority over espionage wiretaps to a Senate Intelligence Committee chaired by Democrat Birch Bayh, who last week was revealed to be the longtime friend of — and recipient of thousands of dollars from — Korean Congress-corrupter Tongsun Park."

As is frequently the case, those whose voices are heard the most to protest outrageous activities are those who participate the most in outrageous activities.

May is gone, but hypertension is not!

Back in May, a great deal was said and done about calling people's attention to hypertension. There were articles, screenings, posters, talks and many other special activities to make the public aware of the high blood pressure problem. It's all very traditional for May.

But, here it is July and while all the "hoopla" is gone, hypertension is still here. The important purpose of this ad is to remind you that high blood pressure is a year round problem and that if you have it, you must keep on taking your medication.

Happiness Is...

DISCIPLINE

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

There is a favorite emblem with a Latin motto that has always stirred my imagination and strengthened my loyalty.

It is a picture of a cross gripped by a human hand, with the inscription, "Teneo et Tenor" ("I hold and I am held"). The hand clings to the cross, but the cross also magnetizes the hand. It is a sturdy idea and full of suggestiveness.

It illustrates the great quality of tenacity which all men can exercise and which is the very essence of genius. "I hold and I am held" — in the darkness of unexplained circumstances, the strain of toil, and the comparative disillusionment of unrealized hopes. Daylight reveals near things, but the night reveals the stars.

Not long ago, an acquaintance was relating an unfortunate experience, and ended with the trite commonplace, "I tell you I came out of that experience a sadder and a wiser man." That oft-repeated saying should be revised. Experience should make us wiser men and better men.

Happiness is . . . discipline.

Spencerville Sesquicentennial - July 22-23

The Saint Joe News

Established March 7, 1883, as free paper—as subscription January 28, 1887 July 20, 1978 Vol. 96—28

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

You know the old saying that time flies? Well, I made it go even faster last week—and on the front page, too.

The "sesquicentennial" banner at the top of the page (for the Spencerville shindig) became a "bicentennial" just a couple of inches away in a headline and story about Nan Vendrely's feature in the News-Sentinel.

That's a boo-boo that really made time fly!

When Dave Hagar stopped in last week to put a "thank you" ad in this issue, he said someone had asked, "Isn't this kinda sad—moving away?" Dave has been here 11 years—which I just can't believe. But he has.

Anyhow, about the sadness—he said he does feel it, more this time in going back to Fort Wayne than when he left Fort Wayne to barber at Saint Joe.

I told him I'd miss the "bull sessions." But time heals all wounds, as the saying goes. And Phil Cleveland can become as much a part of our business community as did Dave—plus the personal relationships which go along with business.

I really appreciated Dave's presence. He was a "good listener" and that helped me let off some steam on occasion.

I'll miss him.

When I commented about the quick delivery of engravings from Owosso, Michigan, George Armstrong suggested I say something about it, since I usually am criticizing the postal system.

I think it's a good idea. So, here's noting that mail service from Saint Joe to Owosso and back is so good that, on occasion, I have sent photos on Monday to get engravings, and have received the engravings on Wednesday of the same week. That's good service.

Of course, I shouldn't overlook the fact that the good folks at "OGA" (the engraving company) process my photos the day they receive them and get them in the return mail.

They do top-notch work and their service is terrific.

P.S. I wonder why it takes three days sometimes for this paper to get to readers in Fort Wayne???

(I just HAD to get that in, George!)

There are a lot of new faces (and figures, pleasant to say) in this community in the past year or two. It's difficult to keep track of them and make them feel welcome.

Two additions to Saint Joe come to mind in particular because of the manner in which they have kept their property physically attractive. Both are in the same block—across from the cemetery and the old-school site.

I'm talking about the Ron Hensleys and the Mike Cearbaughs.

In past years, much of that block-square area has been mud and weeds. But Mike has cleared his land remarkably and an attractive grassy area is now seen where an unsightly expanse existed before.

Ron has also made all his open land (the former home of Lela Northrup) an asset to the community, keeping grass cut to go along with Mike's efforts.

I guess this is the only way to acknowledge the contribution made by two newcomer families to Saint Joe—unless some other local residents have already said "thanks" to the two families.

Anyway, "thanks" Hensleys and Cearbaughs for setting an example some of us "natives" should imitate.

I know — — I know — — — some of our long-time residents HAVE been keeping their property ship-shape for years. But with the influx of so many new families, we need to let them know their presence is recognized and their efforts appreciated.

Spencerville Readies For Big Weekend Celebration

A parade Saturday at 2:00 p.m., a chicken barbeque at 4:30 p.m. that afternoon, an outdoor worship service Sunday morning at 9:00 a.m. and a Spencerville School Reunion that afternoon are highlights of the sesquicentennial celebration planned by residents of that community.

Spencerville is reported to be the first settlement in what is now DeKalb County. As with the majority of early settlements, a dam and mill are part of that early history. Covered wagons are thought of usually as the primary means of reaching into the wilderness in pioneer days. However, water travel provided a more convenient and quicker way for transporting material goods to early wilderness settlements. Establishment of settlements along a river was a predecessor of establishment of towns along railroads in later years. Spencerville was originally a "river settlement" as Saint Joe was originally a "railroad settlement."

With the Spencerville Covered Bridge as an attraction of historic note, the 1978 sesquicentennial follows two previous observances: "The Covered Bridge Centennial" in 1973 and a "Covered Bridge Festival" in 1974.

SATURDAY, JULY 22

9:00 and 11:00 a.m.—boys and girls Little League and softball games.

2:00 p.m.—parade.

4:30 p.m.—chicken barbecue.

7:30 p.m.—Auburn's Act I group minstrel show.

9:00 or 9:30—bingo and dance with live music.

There wil be slides of Spencerville shown and games conducted for kids.

SUNDAY, JULY 23

9:00 a.m.—community outdoor church service.

Noon—pot luck dinner.

About 1:30 p.m.—slides and history of Spencerville.

Also during the afternoon there will be a Spencerville School reunion, rides for the kids, old-time ball games, and wagon rides.

Riverdale Hosts 'PeeWees'

The Riverdale Little League will host a PeeWee Tournament next week at the local softball and Little League diamond. Players will be age 10 and under.

The draw for the tourney is as follows:

Monday, July 24—Leo v Butler at 5:15 p.m., and Harlan v Garrett.

Tuesday—Riverdale v Jackson Township at 5:15 p.m., and Edgerton v Woodburn.

Wednesday at 5:15—winner of game 1 v winner game 2; and winner game three v winner game 4.

Friday at 5:15—championship game between winners of games 5 and 6.

The Riverdale squad will include M Miller, T Emenhiser, M Krieg, M Myers, T Marcus, B Beard, T Bosserman, J Baker, M Powell, C Ramer, M Holmes, M Coburn, M Johnson, T Diehl and C Baker.

From the Editor's Desk....

Vandalism Is Stupid, Selfish

Pranks may be irritating at times but generally are tolerable. But vandalism and property damage never are funny, never are jokes.

It's a shame that all the time and effort given by adults who manage and coach the local Little League and Pony League teams get such a slap in the face as represented by an incident this week.

The little trailer used by the Little and Pony leagues to sell concessions was broken into before. But this week the break-in brought with it property damage.

Many volunteer hours were put in to pour a slab, lay cement block and put plank in place for a section of bleachers at the ball diamond in back of the Riverdale School building.

Someone, however, apparently looks with contempt on such labors, because two sections of plank were pulled loose and stolen.

I find it difficult to show any mercy toward selfish individuals who think it's "fun" to break into places where they do not belong and take those things which are not theirs to take.

If anyone is so hard-up that they must steal a 10-foot section of plank or steal bubble gum or whatever from the mobile concession stand, please get in touch with the township trustee or the county welfare office. Certainly they can help you out.

It's even possible that those adults who work so hard to keep summer athletics going (and this includes the Moms who help out, too), would chip in enough cash to buy a plank for the destitute individual.

The people in this community have provided a lot of time and a lot of facilities for young people's activities. If there is one thing that discourages volunteer efforts, it is the inexcusable abuse of property used in those activities.

Of course, the kids aren't totally to blame. There are those parents who allow their sons and daughters to wander the streets, long after ball games are over. I even saw a Little League uniform mid-block one night at 10:30, waiting for three young girls as they approached.

The Good Book says "beware the darkness," and that's good enough reason for parents to say to their kids, "When it gets dark, you get home!"

The kids themselves can help to control the "fun" vandalism, if they know who is involved. Just tell the culprits "that's dumb!" when they hear someone boasting of what they did the night before — because it IS dumb—stupid—idiotic— to destroy good things which have been provided for the community by volunteer men and women for the benefit of all kids in the community.

All of us—young and old—are responsible for seeing that local facilities are protected from damage. It isn't someone else's job—it's everyone's. And that job includes seeing to it that the refuse cans are used to keep from having litter strewn about the diamonds. It means stepping in to stop rowdiness, abuse of facilities, littering the area. After some ball games, the diamond is a disgrace. Those who use the diamond on Sunday afternoons are especially disrespectful in their use of the area. But abundant litter is found on other evenings, too.

Is it asking too much that a person take a few steps to throw a paper wrapper or a pop can in the trash can? Is it asking too much that everyone pick up piece of litter and throw it in the trash can when someone else has been careless? Is it asking too much that everyone —players and spectators—stop those who abuse the facilities, like trying to climb the fence, or riding bikes and motorcycles on the fields when it is wet?

The answer appears to be no—we're all in this together, we've all made a contribution of some sort—time, talent, money. And it's awfully stupid to destroy what we have worked to build.

'Alley Garden' Brings Dispute

There is a dispute going on at the present time involving the use of an alley right-of-way.

One resident has planted a garden in the right-of-way; another seeks to use the alley but is stymied because of threats.

The right-of-way was used to some extent last year, but not as much since the first of this year. It is reported by the would-be user that a letter was sent by the town attorney for which the local resident paid a fee. The letter was reportedly torn to bits and given to one of the children of the would-be user and a threat made to the children of the would-be user by the garden-planter.

The town board recently enacted an ordinance concerning the erection of a fence around certain defined bodies of water within the town limits, including swimming pools. The ordinance was enacted due to complaints about the hazardous condition related to a certain swimming pool in Saint Joe. The owner of the pool is also the individual who has planted a garden in an alley right-of-way. The same individual has installed curb with no permission from the town board and has removed a public sidewalk.

Certain points stand out and should be recognized and remembered by all local residents in this and similar matters:

A right-of-way is not vacated and "given over to" adjacent property owners unless official action is taken by the town board to do so.

The use of any right-of-way in town for private purposes is at the risk of those who make use of public property for private purposes. In this case, when a garden was planted in an alley-right-of-way, it was at the risk of having the garden damaged by use as an alley. In no way does public property come under control of private interests except by official action.

The resident who paid a fee to have a letter sent by the town attorney should not have been charged a fee. This matter involves misuse of public property and falls under the jurisdiction of the town board. Any grievance involving a resident of the town is a responsibility of the town, not the citizen, in resolving disputes about public property, such as town streets, alleys and sidewalks.

The removal of a public sidewalk despite a board member's direct statement that a new sidewalk must be put in by the property owner if an old one is removed, violates established practice concerning such matters. And, once again, the resolution of the matter is the RESPONSIBILITY AND DUTY of the town board.

Part of the difficulty in this matter lies in that it has not been presented to the full board at a meeting of the full board. (It undoubtedly will be presented, however, at the August 7 meeting).

The placing of boards with nails upright, causing tire punctures in the alley right-of-way under question, represents an outright violation of the law and is a deliberate harassment of an aggrieved party.

Threats to minor children, regardless of which adults are "right" or "wrong" in this matter, or any other matter, represent the lowest form of citizenship. Any violence now or in the future in this matter serves no useful purpose.

The failure to install a fence around a swimming pool, the placing of a garden in an alley right-of-way and the installation of curbing and sidewalk in such a manner as to alter the use of a street, all are indications of a lack of respect for the town and its people as a whole, especially since the curb was installed without permission and approval of the town board.

The use of public property for private purposes is possible only so long as such use does not interfere with the use of that property by others. Illustration: the alley right-of-way CAN be used as a garden so long as it does not interefere with the use of the alley by others. Such private use DOES NOT bring automatic possession of the property after a period of time. Such a garden is planted AT THE RISK OF THE PLANTER. If someone else drives through the garden and destroys it partially IN NORMAL USE of the alley right-of-way many times in a year or comparatively few times in a year, they are not liable for the damage.

To illustrate further, the local park is public property. Anyone can use its facilities any time. BUT — a schedule is set up for the use of the pavilion to avoid disputes over the right to use the pavilion. However, no individual or group can reserve several Sundays to use or not use as they see fit. Scheduled use of the pavilion provides an orderly use of public property by private individuals and groups. It should be noted, however, that "scheduling" a garden for the same time each year in an alley right-of-way does not fall into the same category because it totally prevents use of the alley for a long period of time in addition to preventing the use of the alley in total.

One difficulty in the matter is that the harassed party plans to move. The question logically arises: "Why make such a fuss about it if they're leaving the community?" The answer is in another question: "What about the party who buys the harassed resident's home and THEY want to use the alley?"

BS Troop 170

—Tom Hoffer, scribe

12 members of Butler Boy Scout Troop 170 attended summer camp at Camp Little Turtle July 2-8. Those participating this year were Stan Kurtz as senior patrol leader, Tom Hoffer, Craig Underhill, Keith Likes,, Tim Greuter, Chris Schmidt, Chuck Austin, Eric Surfus, Mike Hullinger, Andy Bowyer, Terry Berndt and Jeff Parker.

Wednesday evening was visitors night for family and friends of the Scouts. Tom Hoffer and Joel Surfus were the boys from the Butler troop who were among the Scouts tapped out in the "Order of the Arrow" during the campfire. The Butler troop was in charge of the flag lowering ceremony that evening.

Merit badges earned during the week by the boys were as follows:

Craig Underhill and Tom Hoffer—Reptile Study.

Eric Surfus and Mike Hullinger—Leatherworking.

Chris Schmidt, Andy Bowyer and Keith Likes—First Aid.

Our special thanks to Mike Sebert, Tim Mershon, Bill Kurtz, Gary Flood and DuWayne Likes. These men stayed with us at different times during the week and helped because Frank O'Hare was unable to be there all the time. Our summer camp would have been cancelled this week had they not given us their time.

Transportation to and from camp was provided by the Underhills, Kurtzs, Greuters, O'Hare and Mike Sebert.

Any boys interested in joining our troop may do so if they are 11 years of age or have completed the fifth grade. Meetings are on Monday evening at 7 p. m. at the old gym in Butler.

Physicians prescribe vacations
Most physicians feel that a change from the usual strain of everyday living conditions is very beneficial to a person's health. A vacation is usually suggested to allow your body to have physical and mental relaxation.
To insure a happy and healthy vacation, you should see your physician for a health check-up. Don't let a possible illness spoil an enjoyable time. Remember to have a sufficient supply of any medicine which you may need for regular or emergency purposes.

Happiness Is..

PROPER DESTINY

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

Some people are fond of telling us how much alike the embryonic man is to the embryonic monkey. One cannot tell the one from the other. But there is a difference, and it is far wider than the spaces between the stars.

This difference is in what they are becoming. It is in the vastly divergent directions in which they are traveling. One is traveling out to a life that is essentially of the earth and is, therefore, earthy. The other is traveling toward a destiny as deathless as that of God.

The baby mocking bird is little more handsome than the baby vulture. But one is facing out toward the life of a scavenger, the other toward green boughs, toward a choir loft in the magnolia trees, toward a concert tour that will lift the soul of the listener and set his heart to dreaming.

What is the direction of our lives? That is the big question. If we keep on traveling as we are traveling now, where are we going to park when the sundown comes?

Happiness is—proper destiny.

Law Day Award To Bar Assoc.

DeKalb County attorneys have received a national award from their largest professional organization as a result of the local bar association's annual "Law Day" activities.

DeKalb Circuit Court Judge Harold Stump has announced that the DeKalb County Bar Association will be honored August 6 with an American Bar Association Award of Merit

Judge Stump is chairman of the local Law Day Committee.

The award is presented in recognition of outstanding service to the general public and to the legal profession.

The award will be presented during the ABA annual meeting in New York City.

The DeKalb County Bar Association was the only one in its division (fewer than 100 members) to receive the honor and one of only five in the entire nation.

Auburn attorney Jeffrey L. Turner was coordinator of the Law Day program presented in May. The bar association sponsored a Law Day Quiz and participated in a Senior Citizens Law Day featuring topics of interest to the elderly.

Auburn Boy Scout Troop 165 posted American flags around Auburn for Law Day. The Auburn "Evening Star" and radio station WIFF disseminated the Law Day Quiz to the general public. Local attorneys went to elementary and high schools in the county for lectures.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

EHS Supt. Kenneth Cole Suffers Fatal Heart Attack

Kenneth Cole, 58, superintendent of the DeKalb County Eastern Community School District, died Sunday of a heart attack as he and his wife, Alice, prepared to enjoy a fishing trip in Canada. He was stricken as he put a boat in the water at White Lake, Ontario, Canada.

Taken by ambulance to Wilson Memorial Hospital at Marathon, Ontario, Mr. Cole was dead on arrival. He was 58 years old.

Other survivors include a daughter, Sue Oterness, of East Moline, Illinois, and a son Stephen, who resides at Butler with his wife, Linda, and is currently serving a two-year residency in Fort Wayne hospitals as an MD.

Mr. Cole took over as superintendent of the eastern distric April 1, of 1966. Previously, he had been a principal elsewhere in Indiana.

As superintendent Mr. Cole had the duty of carrying out administrative directives of the school's governing body, the school board. He was on occasion blamed for administrative efforts which were not of his making. He had the additional pressure in recent years of serving with the school board legal counsel in teacher-contract negotiations. He planned to retire in 1979 and looked forward to relief from the demands on him as chief school administrator.

Funeral services will be held Friday at the Williamsport Christian Church at 2 p.m. Military rites will be held at graveside. Masonic rites were set for Thursday evening at the funeral home.

Two Local 'Cycle Accidents

Two motorcycle accidents were reported last week, one involving a helmetless rider.

Police reported that Randall J. Fisher, 18, of rural Spencerville, suffered massive head injuries and a possible skull fracture. He was reported in fair condition last Friday at Parkview Memorial Hospital in Fort Wayne.

Police said Fisher was eastbound on County Road 68 Saturday at 9:40 p.m., when a buggy driven by Amos A. Schmucker, 38, of R2 Auburn, turned west onto the road from County Road 45.

Fisher apparently went left of center and struck the right side of the buggy. Fisher was thrown from the bike onto the pavement. He reportedly was driving with no lights.

Police said that, had he been wearing a helmet, he might have been able to walk away with only minor injuries.

In another area accident, 15-year-old Karl Goldsmith of R1 Butler was driving a Suzuki motorcycle south on County Road 59 at about 8:20 a.m. last Thursday when he was struck by a car driven by Helen S. Rainier of R1 Auburn, who was headed north on the same road. Goldsmith apparently had begun to turn onto County Road 56 when the car struck him in the intersection.

Rainier said she did not see Goldsmith, whose injuries were listed as abrasions to the left shoulder, fractured left and right legs, a possible fractured ankle and injury to the left eye.

Old Photos Show Leightys Of 1910

Eloise (Draggoo) Morr of Springfield, Ohio, attended the News' Open House this spring and brought two old photos with her. She is the daughter of the late Marie Draggoo Meese.

In the top photo, Eloise's grandfather, Ed Leighty, is shown standing in front of his store which was located in the building across from today's Yeiser's Standard Service and now owned by MM Herb Miller.

The house at the right was a hotel in the good old days. It was torn down several years ago by Mose Yeiser who bought it to remove a community eyesore.

Eloise estimates the year at about 1910.

Superintendent - 'Enemy' - Friend

I would imagine there are those who anticipate some comments here about the death of Kenneth Cole, those remarks perhaps anticipated as critical or slanted to "get even" for some circumsances in the past.

However, I am saddened by his death because I know he left this worldly existence wondering what people thought of him—I mean people overall. He certainly knew what SOME people thought of him.

There are a lot of things going through my mind about the last 12 years, the time during which Mr. Cole was our superintendent. I remember having him at our house for a steak dinner when he was still looking for housing at Butler. I have wondered if he thought it was friendship or politics which prompted the dinner invitation, in view of later circumstances related to the "site fight" of several years ago.

These columns were giving information and asking questions at that time which challenged the ultimate board decision to build in Butler. But I think those efforts were objective, not personal. At least my efforts were intended to be that way. But Mr. Cole saw it otherwise, as did others, and responded in his own way after the school board "turned me loose," as he put it.

Thereafter, the functioning of the school district was the important thing. With a new school built, our attention was directed to other matters. In some of these, Mr. Cole incurred the wrath of various people. He was blamed for seemingly unkind and inconsiderate actions when he was actually acting according to directives given him by the school board. Many matters were left to him to resolve in the best way possible after discussion by the board with him and other administrators in the school system.

The most frustrating time of his career as superintendent, I would imagine, came in the negotiating duty. Incorrect or incomplete information given to the public by representatives of those on the opposite side of the negotiating table led to public anger. I especially remember October 4, 1976, when a large group attended a school board meeting and many of them were angered by what they had heard about school board reluctance to grant a higher pay increase to teachers than what was offered. It was the superintendent who was in the line of fire, however, because he prepares budgets and makes budget recommendations. What some people do not realize is: that's part of a superintendent's job, to prepare budgets. But the decision on approval comes from the school board.

At that meeting a couple of years ago, the inaccuracy of information given to the public by other sources was shown in a presentation of facts from the superintendent, the school's legal counsel, and the board itself. There were at least a few who left that meeting with a better understanding of actual facts, counteracting the misinformation given the public before.

I recall that there were instances when the school board was forced to request Mr. Cole's silence at a meeting, his frustration showing itself in a "short fuse." He blurted out on occasion when he really knew he shouldn't—but the accusations, innuendoes and misinformation momentarily became too much.

I remember a board meeting one time when Mr. Cole and Joe Parshall (then a school board member and, in my opinion, one of the most conscientious board members we have had in academic concerns) had a difference of opinion as to how many studs there are on the wheel of a truck. school bus specifications were being discussed. The difference became more heated and the climax was reached when both offered to bet a month's pay in the matter.

Both men realized the pettiness of their argument and immediately apologized to other members of the board.

I remember that there have been school board members who ran for office to "get rid of Cole." But, strangely, those same people voted to renew Mr. Cole's contract, or enough of them did to cancel the "get Cole out" motivation.

In the past couple of years, I have pointed this out to a few individuals who have become angered at "Cole's dictatorship." I pointed out to them that the original anti-Cole electees probably found out what they THOUGHT was going on wasn't. They found out that the role of our superintendent in school matters was part of his duty. And they also came to rely on him for information and recommendation because they did not have time to investigate every matter on their own.

No, Mr. Cole wasn't always right. His recommendations were not always accepted. But he was functioning as he was supposed to as superintendent.

I point these things out not to embarrass anyone but to indicate that Mr. Cole was a human being just like you and me. He had his "hangups," just like you and me. I point them out to hopefully challenge others to think a little more of personal relationships and recognize how much alike human beings are.

My concluding thought is the hope that somehow I was able to bring comforting support to Mr. Cole in recent years in the columns of this paper to soften the rough spots in the road a school administrator must travel. He didn't receive much, if any, recognition elsewhere in the news media while he was living. And the compliments which may come his way now, after he is gone, are instances of "too little too late."

I hope Mr. Cole thought of me as a friend despite our differences on occasion. I considered him one of mine.

- In memory of a dedicated public servant.

'Reform' Catches 'Reformers'

Senator Herman Talmadge, Democrat Georgia millionaire, admits failing to report $27,000 for campaign expenditures.

Senator Birch Bayh denies he solicited a campaign contribution from Tongson Park, Korean wheeler-dealer who is being questioned about campaign contributions for special interests. The investigating committee is not certain who is telling the truth.

Marvella Bayh, the Senator's wife, is quoted in a note she sent to Park in December of 1974:

"What a fabulous party you gave for us all to honor Tip O'Neill. You honored me so by giving me the best seat in the house between you and Tip. What a lucky gal I was. You are such a marvelous friend to so many, you make the world a happier place."

But Senator Bayh calls Park just a social friend.

Park says he gave Mrs. Bayh a tray which he says was worth $10, following an Interparliamentary Union Conference in New Delhi in November of 1969. The Bayhs stopped in Korea on the way home.

Does someone who throws lavish parties in a foreign country give out $10 gifts to visiting dignitaries?

The Senator denies that he, his family and his staff ever received gifts of any consequence from Park.

How much does a "gift of any consequence" represent to the Senator? To you?

Remember now, we're talking about one of the biggest users of the "selfish interest" label placed on the Republican Party for many, many years.

Of special interest, because you aren't quite sure what he is saying, is the news services quote of Senator Bayh: "....(we) were, and I suppose one could say, still are, social friends, although I must say I am deeply distressed and perplexed at some of the things that I have heard."

—About as distressed and perplexed as the kid caught with his hand in the cookie jar.

The chairman of the Senate Ethics Committee, Senator Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, has stated publicly that Senator Bayh, the late Senator Hubert Humphrey and John L. McClellan have violated campaign contribution laws. All are Democrats.

In the House of Representatives, Special Counsel Leon Jaworski has listed possible violations by four Democrats. Another Democrat, former Representative Richard Hanna of California, has pleaded guilty in the Korean influence-buying scandal. Another Democrat, former Representative Otto Passman of Louisiana, has been indicted on bribery-taking charges.

The political bias of the national news media is obvious in the comparatively small attention being given "Korea-gate."

However, when it is a Republican, the story is front-page for days. Republican Senator Brooke of Massachusetts has been given more attention than the others in his "misstatements" in the past about his financial affairs.

I point these instances out to emphasize that the political party which hollered its head off at Watergate shenannigans, the party which for years has used the terms "special interests" and "selfish interests" to describe the GOP and thus gain votes in the ballot box, that party is riddled with Congressmen who can be bought.

But it isn't so much "Democrat" that is significant as it is the fact that LIBERALS (those who know best what is best for you and know best how to spend your money) are the ones being shown in their true light—hypocrites.

Republican Brooke of Massachusetts does not, and never has, represent the basic principles of the Republican Party. It is a laugh that, a couple of days after the revelation of Brooke's financial misstatements, a nation GOP publication was received by those on the mailing list of the publication with a photo of Senator Brooke on the cover, indicating an interview inside, and a short descriptive phrase about the Senator including the word "integrity."

Senator Brooke no more belongs on the cover of a GOP publication than does Senator Bayh. But the national leadership of the Republican Party just doesn't seem to get the message; it insists on a "moderate" approach when indications show the public is not liberal or moderate-minded. Longtime Congressman Clifford Case lost a primary to a young conservative a couple of weeks ago. The voters in California voted in "Proposition 13," a proposal which will drastically cut property taxes. Republican candidates have won two or three seats in Congress in recent months in areas which had been strongly Democrat for years.

These are indications that the public wants a change—a drastic change, if you please. Yet, the GOP policymakers insist on backing away from conservative policies, apparently out of fear that such a move would be labeled "radical" by Democrats and the public would again be scared to vote its mind.

Labor unions are losing more elections than they are winning. Liberals (the spenders of today) are being defeated. The public wants a say-so in what is done with their money. They have had second thoughts about the Equal Rights Amendment, they opposed 2-1 the Panama Canal treaties, they are afraid of what is happening to the purchasing power of the dollar.

We have had 48 years of spending more than we take in in the process of government and the public is at last opening its eyes to reality. But the GOP just doesn't seem to get the message—and so we have a liberal sprinkling of liberals STILL held up before the public eye.

It is interesting to note how Hoosier Republicans reacted to the "Proposition 13" vote in California. Almost immediately we had Republicans pointing out that we don't need tax reform because property taxes have been reduced.

That may be true; property taxes HAVE been reduced when you talk about May and November. But EXPENDITURES have not been reduced, and the vacuum left by lower property taxes was made up for by an increase in the sales tax. PLUS—owners of automobiles pay an excise tax in order to get their car license, regardless of what the property tax rate may be in their taxing unit. Cars formerly were included in "property taxes" but not any more.

Have you figured how much you have paid in auto excise taxes the past five years?

Don't get me wrong; I'm all for the reduction of property taxes and the increased sales tax. Such a set-up has more people helping to pay the cost of state government. My concern is over the idea that we in Indiana have no need for tax reform. That's like saying we don't have too much state government. And THAT I don't "buy."

Speaking Of Coverups---

At the same time, others are carrying out their own "coverups" without penalty.

Just a few weeks ago, the Postmaster-General said that the postal system offered the best buy for the money of any public service endeavor. He made the statement in seeking to sooth the unrest caused by the proposed postage rate increases (which have now gone into effect). It was a way of telling the public the postal system is better than what the public thinks.

Just a couple of weeks ago the same individual said that postal system users can now expect better service due to the postage rate increase.

To me, that kind of talk is as much a "coverup" as the actions of Mr. Nixon in the Watergate matter. If it is too strong to call it a "coverup," then it can at least be classified as "double-talk."

But the Postmaster-General isn't being pressured into leaving his position. The President condones the double-talk (he must—the Postmaster-General is an administration appointee), the Congress condones the double-talk (it must—it condones the pay increase and the automatic cost-of-living pay increases of all governmental employees including the members of Congress themselves), and the public condones the double-talk because that's what it expects from politicians.

If you're wondering why the type size varies from this small to the regular 9 point size in current issues, it's because we are setting budget legals and the school annual report along with regular reading matter. The linotype must be changed and the matrix magazines changed. Sometimes we're caught in the middle of both legal and regular items and time is a factor.

So, that's why this and a few other portions are 'smaller than normal.

A couple of requests for obituaries brought some interesting reading as far as comparing the wording of such notices years ago with wording of today. The following two are illustrative of wording and of the way of life in horse and buggy days.

(Obituary from the Thursday, August 22, 1929, issue of "The St. Joe News")

SPENCERVILLE PIONEER HAS PASSED ON

Nancy C. (Boyle) Rummell was born near Spencerville, Indiana, May 22, 1842. She departed this life August 15, 1929, at the age of 87 years, 2 months and 24 days.

She was married January 5, 1862, to Owen Williams Rummell and has resided in Spencerville since that time. To this union was born five children, Elizabeth, Nancy Lucretia, Jonathon W., Hulbert N. and Owen W., having preceded her to the life beyond.

She was an active member of the Spencerville M.E. Church and up to the time of her death was often seen in her place in the worship services. Her chair is vacant, time and place will know her no more, except in hope of the resurrection beyond the grave.

She has borne her trials with a fortitude possible because she knew God in whom she could always lay her trust.

Now unto Him that is able to keep us from falling and to present you faultless before the presence of His glory with exceeding joy. To the only wise God our Saviour be glory and majesty, dominion and power both now and ever, amen.

Funeral services at M.E. Church Saturday, August 17, in charge of Rev. T. J. Cotton, assisted by Rev. R. S. Brown, of Ray. Burial in White City Cemetery. Mr. Walter, funeral director.

(from the Thursday, January 7, 1909, issue of "The St. Joe News"):

ANOTHER ACCIDENT

Mrs. Mary Topper, of Butler, was struck by a west-bound B. & O. train at 1:30 o'clock last Wednesday afternoon and instantly killed. The entire train passed over her body and when found she was hardly recognizable. The woman and her sister came to St. Joe, Tuesday, and Mrs. Topper intended to catch a train for Fort Wayne. Her husband was awaiting her at the Wabash crossing. Her sister let her out of the buggy at the B&O crossing, and she started to walk up the B. & O. track to the Wabash depot. When she reached Culbertson's crossing, she attempted to go off the track and caught her foot between the cattle guards and was unable to release herself.

In an instant B. & O. train No. 7 west bound, rounded a curve at this point going at a rate of sixty miles an hour. The woman screamed frantically for help and motioned the engineer with a handkerchief to stop. Her efforts were of no avail and the train was upon her before the engineer could stop it. Every car passed over her body and when she was picked up she was crushed severely. Nearly every bone in her body was broken.

The engineer says: "We were going sixty miles an hour," he said, "and, owing to the sharp curve, I was unable to see her signal in time to stop. I applied the emergency brakes and shut the throttle as quickly as I could, but we were too close to her to do any good. It was a horrible sight to hear her cries for help and knowing that I could not help her. She made one loud scream just before the engine struck her."

The train was stopped and backed down to where the body lay. The remains were taken to the depot and kept there until the coroner came. Undertaker Kinsey attended. The funeral was held last Saturday.

Charles Benjamin of New Haven, who has been going through old issues for information about his family tree, found the following item in connection with the Topper matter:

(from the St. Joe News of Thursday, February 4, 1900)

"FOUND HIS MATE

Simon Topper, whose wife was killed about a month ago by a B. & O. train at St. Joe, has chosen a companion to solace him and relieve his loneliness. He has secured a license to wed Mrs. Nancy Buzzard of Wilmington township. Both the parties told the clerk they had been married twice before, in each case one mating having been cancelled by divorce and the other by death. They were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. A. J. Collins of St. Joe at the home of the bride in Butler."

"Congress should give up its Social Security exemption."

Such a statement could hardly be expected from Indiana's Senior Senator, Birch Bayh. — And it's true—he didn't make that statement.

But Indiana's Senator Richard Lugar did! And in doing so, the "freshman" Senator pointed out the inequities prevailing in the Social Security system.

In a news release last week, Senator Lugar said:

"The most recent increases in Social Security taxes has been met with a phenomenal, and justified, public outcry. Last fall, substantial majorities in both houses of Congress seriously underestimated public opposition to these oppressive taxes, and voted for massive increases BEYOND the latest jump, so that bigger and bigger deductions will be showing up on future paychecks.

"The serious impact of the recent tax increase, both on individual taxpayers and on the economy in general, is already abundantly clear. I voted against the increases passed last fall, and argued that we must take a different approach to resolving the financial crisis in Social Security. Our responsibilities to working people and to retirees demand that we take adequate measures to bring Social Security promises for the future into line with with a reasonable level of revenue.

"Many Congressmen now sense that the tax increases which were passed last fall, and which will begin to take effect NEXT year, are a political time bomb. They are scrambling to roll back those increases. How did Congress so drastically misjudge the willingness of American working people to pay even higher Social Security taxes?.

"Ironically, Congressmen who voted last year to impose a massive Social Security tax increase on millions of workers were unaffected by their own action. Currently, Congressmen contribute—AT THEIR OPTION —to the Civil Service Retirement System, and do not participate in Social Security.

"Senators Robert Morgan and Mark Hatfield have introduced an amendment to pending Social Security legislation which would require that Congressmen and all legislative branch employees be covered by the Social Security system. This long-overdue reform would eliminate the obvious inequity in the present arrangement. Congress has given workers in private industry no choice about paying Social Security taxes, but has given itself a special break.

"The measure would take effect after two years. By that time, a study will be completed on how equitably to bring federal workers into the Social Security system. If the measure is enacted, the employees' retirement plan would be coordinated with Social Security, as are most private pension plans.

"There are currently 39,000 legislative branch employees in the Senate, House of Representatives, Library of Congress, General Accounting Office and Government Printing Office. In 1980, their total contribution to the Social Security trust fund, half of which would come from the federal government as their employer (which means 'the taxpayer'—Ed.), would be $99 million, according to Congressional Budget Office estimates.

"By 1983, CBO estimates that the total contribution of legislative branch employees would be $152 million. All trust fund revenues will total over $211. billion in 1983, but that does not change the fact that $152 million is a very great sum of money and a significant contribution to the Social Security system.

"Congress can affirm its own confidence in the beleaguered Social Security system and demonstrate its willingness to participate. Most importantly, 535 Congressmen who vote on Social Security legislation will face the same staggering payroll deductions as the people they represent. Social Security taxes will become a very real and meaningful issue. Then, perhaps, we will see Congress take the difficult steps necessary to bring trust fund finances under control."

There is a flaw, however, in the Senator's proposal. His colleagues have shown a remarkable inclination to vote themselves more money for salaries, staff, office expenses, mailing privileges, and so on. What is there to prevent them from voting a "cost of living" increase in pay for themselves to cover their obligations toward the Social Security system, if the Morgan-Hatfield Amendment is passed???—leaving it up to the privately employed taxpayer to foot the bill.

I don't question Senator Lugar's sincerity or intent. Had we had him and more like him in Washington for the past 40 years or so, our pension structure would undoubtedly be quite different—and more sound.

But we haven't—and the inclination of the Congressional majority for 42 of the past 46 years has been to sooth the potential public ire with "bread and games" while setting up a very comfortable and secure place for itself through an unmanageable bureaucracy.

The fact that Nazis are making the headlines in recent weeks points out the major fault of seeking out minority groups by news media so that "equality" is maintained in reporting the news. Sensational headlines is just what these offbeat groups want.

A Nazi rally in a Chicago park brought the strange circumstance that one man and a dozen of his followers were protected by 1,500 policemen. The Nazis showed how shrewd their methods are by announcing weeks ago that they would stage a rally in nearby Skokie. Such a furor arose, due to, the fact that Skokie has a large percentage of members of the Jewish faith, that the Chicago park rally was allowed as a substitute. The little group thus manipulated public officials in such a way as to gain a "compromise" in the Nazis favor. And news media gave the matter nationwide coverage.

This incident is a good example of how far off course we have gone in the civil rights movement. Freedom of speech as established by the First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States was never intended to protect those whose political ideas would destroy freedom of speech.

The high courts of the land have weakened the foundation of free speech by interpreting the amendment in a technical way.

Justice is not served by legalistic approaches to the laws of the land. Laws are intended to protect, not punish. And justice is served only when court and jury decisions are rendered with the guide of "fairness to all involved" rather than fulfilling legal technicalities.

How any judge can uphold the "right" of Nazis to stage a rally in a public place is beyond me. But then we allow the Communist Party to function in the open despite its emphasis on state control of the individual.

Any time an individual can publicly state that Jews deserve to be wiped out in a new holocaust and that individual has 1,500 policemen on hand to protect him points to the fact that there is something drastically wrong in our modern approach to justice and the protection of individual freedom.

New Fire Truck 'Surprise' At Sp'ville Sesquicentennial

Though township residents knew that a new fire truck was coming their way, the appearance of the truck in Saturday's parade at the Spencerville Sesquicentennial celebration over the weekend brought smiles and comments of approval and assurance of better fire protection for the township.

Trustee Harold Murphy is shown above as he spoke to the crowd after officially receiving the keys to the truck from a representative of the fire equipment firm.

The truck was on display at the Community Club following the parade. The control panel is visible above as spectators look over the contents of storage compartments.

Glen Moore reports that some 200 people attended Sunday's Spencerville School reunion. And the Saturday evening chicken barbecue ran out of chicken and then served ham, according to Ethelyn Miller.

Why no pictures of the other activities — two reasons: one, the roll of film "jelled" in Ye Ed's camera. —and personal matters needed attention.

If anyone has some good, distinct photos of the other activities, The News will be happy to publish them —courtesy of the sponsors whose names appear weekly in a "photo-sponsor" ad.

Lugar Opposes New Building For Senate

U.S. Sen. Dick Lugar (R-IN) has announced his support of an amendment to cease construction of the multi-million dollar Philip A. Hart Senate Office Building.

The cost of the building was estimated at $48 million when the money was first appropriated in 1972. In the intervening years, the cost has escalated to over $122 million, with the prospect of costs passing the $200 million mark before completion. Under the amendment, introduced by Sen. John Chafee (R-Rhode Island), construction would be halted and changes made to convert the site into a street-level public park with underground parking for the public.

In announcing his support of the Chafee amendment, Lugar called the lavish new building "an irrational expenditure which would serve only to assure the continued growth of Senate staffs and legislative budgets." The cost of operating the Congressional offices exceeded the $1 billion mark in 1977.

"With the money expected to be spent on the Hart building, we could build another Merchants Plaza ($50 million), the Convention Center ($27 million), and Market Square Arena ($19 million) in Indianapolis, the Evansville Government complex ($20 million), the 5-building Century Convention Center ($14 million) in South Bend, and the 27-story Summit Square Project ($30 million) which is under construction in Fort Wayne and still have $40 million remaining. I intend to vote to end this extravagance before any greater damage is done."

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing these rights.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

On rare occasions (once or twice a contract year) the school authorities reserve the right to order a transport quantity and split the load by dumping a portion at the Riverdale School in Saint Joe, Indiana, a portion at the Butler Elementary School in Butler, Indiana, or a portion at the old high school gymnasium in Butler, Indiana.

The bidder is expected to give a single competitive bid price based on his terminal source price with the understanding on the part of both parties having potential in the contract that the price as quoted can be adjusted both upwards and downwards upon written proof of cost variation. The successful bidder will be responsible by contract for delivering number 2 fuel oil from September 20, 1978, through September 20, 1979. The school will measure all tanks and notify the successful bidder twenty four (24) hours in advance of the real need for oil. The estimated consumption of fuel in round numbers for the year described would be approximately 50,000 gallons plus or minus.

2. Leaded regular gasoline having a 91.5 octane rating or greater to be delivered to the 12,000 gallon underground storage tank on school property near the Eastside Jr.-Sr. High School in Butler, Indiana.

The school authorities will stick the gasoline tank and keep the successful bidder advised of the need for gasoline when the need is equal to a full tanker load, and the successful bidder must agree to make absolutely every legitimate effort to deliver a transport lot to this one site within 48 hours of said reporting of the need for gasoline.

The bidder is expected to give a single competitive price based on his terminal source price with the understanding on the part of both parties having potential in the contract that the price as quoted can be adjusted both upwards and downwards upon written proof of cost variation. The successful bidder will be responsible by contract for delivering gasoline as stipulated September 20, 1978 through September 20, 1979.

The estimated consumption of gasoline in gallons in round numbers for the contract period would be approximately 30,000 gallons plus or minus.

All bids for both the fuel oil and the gasoline must be properly submitted on Revised Form No. 35, and the Board of School Trustees reserves the right to waive any and all formalities of the bidding and to accept or reject any and all bids.

Physicians prescribe vacations

Most physicians feel that a change from the usual strain of everyday living conditions is very beneficial to a person's health. A vacation is usually suggested to allow your body to have physical and mental relaxation.

To insure a happy and healthy vacation, you should see your physician for a health check-up. Don't let a possible illness spoil an enjoyable time. Remember to have a sufficient supply of any medicine which you may need for regular or emergency purposes.

The Electoral College
Is It Bad Or Good---

The representative form of government established by the United States' forefathers provided a system which gave this nation's citizens the right to elect public officials. The Presidency was given a special treatment due to the fear of control of elections by geographic areas containing concentrations of population. The "Electoral College" was established to provide a system of allocating popular vote state by state. This was chosen in preference to election by direct popular vote.

One of the critics of the historic Electoral College has been an Indiana Senator. His views are presented herewith. Views in support of the Electoral College will be presented next week. —Ed.

—by U.S. Senator Birch Bayh (D-IN)

The American people's long-sought effort to achieve a direct voice in the election of their President and Vice President is moving a step nearer accomplishment. The chances are brightening day-by-day for Senate and House passage in 1978 of Senate Joint Resolution 1 - the proposed Constitutional amendment calling for election of the President and Vice President by direct popular vote.

If at least two-thirds of the Senate indicate their support by early summer, the Senate leadership is expected to call the direct election amendment to the floor for consideration and action. The proposal, which Iintroduced in January 1977 with the cosponsorship of 45 of my Senate colleagues from both sides of the aisle, has already cleared the Senate Judiciary Committee. I expect a filibuster aattempt on the Senate floor. Under Senate rules, at least 60 votes are needed to cut off a filibuster, and we have them.

At the same time, I have indications from more than 60 Senators that they will vote for direct election. But that is not quite enough. On a Constitutional amendment, at least 67 favorable votes are needed for passage if all Senators are present and voting. At this writing we are short a handful of votes, but there is an excellent prospect of getting the remaining few necessary votes from among the fifteen or so uncommitted Senators.

Support in government cuts across all political and philosophical lines. Direct election is endorsed by President Carter, Vice President Walter Mondale, former President Ford, the 1976 Republican nominee for Vice President Senator Bob Dole of Kansas, as well as the Democratic and Republican leaders in both the House and Senate. Moreover, they are joined by many other members of Congress from both parties and representing small, medium, and large states.

The proposal continues to enjoy the support of an overwhelming percentage of the American people and a broad coalition of organizations including the American Bar Association, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the AFL-CIO, the League of Women Voters, the United Auto Workers and Common Cause.In a recent radio program Dr. Richard L. Lesher, President of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce pledged the full support of the Chamber, while Rep. John J. Rhodes (R-AZ), the House Minority Leader, confidently predicted the House would repeat its overwhelming 1969 approval of the plan.

It is abudantly clear that the public favors direct popular election of the President. According to the Gallup poll, 75 percent of the people approve doing away with the electoral college while only 11 percent oppose it. Of particular interest, every region of the country and persons of all ages, types of work, races, income and political philosophy favor direct election by overwhelming percentages. The Gallup poll showed that 79 percent of Republicans, 71 percent of Democrats, and 82 percent of independent voters favor popular election.

Direct popular election is the only system that guarantees that every vote cast for President and Vice President will count; that each vote will count equally regardless of where it is cast; and that the pair of candidates receiving the greatest number of votes will be the winners. Under the present system, it is possible for a Presidential candidate to be elected with fewer votes than his opponent (in fact, this has happened three times in our history). Unknown can, if they so choose, vote contrary to the wishes of the people of theiir states. Further, if no candidate receives a majority in the electoral college, the new President and Vice President must be chosen by the Congress, subject to political whims or other factors. The direct election amendment will eliminate these three frightening possibilities.

In earlier years, some criticism was aimed at direct election by small state residents who thought they had an advantage under the present system. The facts are that small and medium sized states operate at a decided disadvantage in the electoral college. the eleven largest states now control enough electoral votes to elect a President even thought his opponent may win the other 39 states by sizeable popular vote majorities. Since the large state votes are cast in blocs of as many as 45, they more than offset the two additional electors in small states. More and more Senators and Congressmen from small and medium-sized states are coming forward to support direct election. These states will not be hurt, but rather their citizens will benefit with all Americans by a system where all votes count the same.

I urge all Americans to join in this vital effort so that each and every vote is counted, and with equal weight, in the important process of choosing our nation's leader.

Happiness Is..

TRUTH

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

One day on a train a mother and boy were traveling. The conductor had punched the mother's ticket, and as a ticket had not been provided for the boy, the conductor, looking at the boy, politely asked, "Is your boy under five, madam?"

"Yes," was the prompt reply.

The conductor moved on, and the youngster said, "Why, mamma, I am past six."

Instantly, with frowning face and a countenance blazing with wrath, the mother said, "Don't ever contradict me again. I know what I am saying. If the conductor had heard you say that, he would have made me pay half-fare for you. Don't ever say again on the train that you are past six. If you do, I'll whip you when you get home."

The boy was still for amoment. Then he said, "But, mamma, I am past six."A slap followed; the child cried; the mother looked like a tempest.

It was just an incident on a train, yet possibly one that will be more harmful to a boy morally than anything else. One such experience in a boy's life may mar his whole career. Think of the mother's personal sins. She lied to the conductor; the she lied to her own boy; she cheated the railroad; she abused the child. And all to save little money. May God pity the boy and forgive the mother.

Happiness is...truth.

Help For Choking Victims

(from the Journal of the American Medical Association)

About ten people die needlessly in the United States every day while eating, because they choke on a piece fo food. Their lives could be saved by a simple first aid maneuver, called the Heimlich maneuver after its developer.

The real tip-off that someone is choking on a piece of food is that he cannot speak and shows great distress. To release the bolus the rescuer stands behind the victim, holding him with both arms around the victim, at or just above the belt line. The rescuer grasps one of his own wrists firmly, then squeezes hard while allowing the victim to slump forward, head and arms dangling. There is always some residual air trapped in the lungs, and the pressure below the diaphragm compresses this air. The bolus pops out "like a champagne cork."

If the victim has already collapsed, the rescuer need not pick him up. If the victim is face down the rescuer can straddle the buttocks; if he is face up straddle the thighs. The rescuer places both hands, one on top of the other, just below the diaphragm and pushes sharply toward the victim's head. The procedure is repeated if necessary.

If you live alone and are choking on a piece of food, try anything that applies sharp force just below the diaphragm - falling into the edge of a table or sink, for instance - whatever might compress the abdomen enough to pop the obstruction loose.

It should be noted that mouth-to-mouth resuscitation in such cases can drive the bolus in more firmly.

The Electoral College Is It Bad Or Good---

(Editor's note: an article in the previous issue of the News gave the comments of Senator Birch Bayh who favors changing the U.S. Constitution to make the election of the President through direct popular vote. The following article gives reasons why NOT to make such a change. Both articles were written by members of the Democrat party.)

by Paul M. Perkins, Democrat senior judge on the Ohio Common-Pleas Court.

It's open season again on the Electoral College. Reformist politicians and editorial writers are dreaming up disastrous election results that never happened and crying for its elimination. But before we rush toward abolishing the college, we should take a closer look at its reliability and at some of its overlooked benefits.

After the two elections of George Washington in 1789 and 1792, the College has never operated as originally intended (the electors were supposed to make their presidential selection independent of the voters); still, it has survived 48 elections and has produced 48 peaceful successions of government, a record that few modern nations can claim. There are good reasons why it has worked so well and why, if its function is kept in existence, it will continue to work.

The Electoral College works because it expresses the will of the people in a way that tends to widen the margin of the winner and thus diffuse the disruptive potential of the transition of power.

This widening of the margin of victory happens because of the feature of the College that is most widely criticized: the winner in each state gets all the electoral votes of that state, no matter how small his majority there. Thus in all elections since 1824 the winner has had a higher percentage of the electoral vote than of the popular vote. In 15 of those elections, he has turned a popular plurality of less than 50 percent into a clear electoral majority. This weighted edge of the College has also turned razor-thin popular majorities into decisive electoral majorities. For 152 years, the Electoral College has kept the Presidential election out of the House—fortunately, because a grossly unfair one-state-one-vote system is the rule there.

The presidential elections in the twentieth century clearly show the stabilizing effect of the College. Woodrow Wilson in 1912 and 1916, Harry Truman in 1948, John Kennedy in 1960, and Richard Nixon in 1968 were all elected with a plurality but less than a majority of the popular vote, but all got a decisive majority in the College. In 1960 Kennedy had 49.9 per cent of the popular vote to Nixon's 49.7 per cent; this was tranlated into 56.4 per cent of electoral vote for Kennedy. In 1968 Nixon's uncertain 43.4 per cent of the popular vote became a solid 55.9 per cent of the electoral vote.

If, by comparison, the electoral vote in each state had been cast in exact proportion to its popu- been without a majority and gone to the House for a resolular tove, as reformers sometimes suggest, 40 per cent of the elections since 1824 would have tion. It is staggering to imagine what uncertainties, backroom deals ,special-interest pressures, and volatile passions would have actually decided all those elections.

The three times Congress had a direct hand in determining the outcome of a presidential election(1800, 1824, and 1876) the result was temporary chaos. Once, under such a system, people realized how often elections could go to Congress, far less power would be vested in the majority and far more in special-interest groups. The likelihood of a clear majority in any election might evaporate, and our presidential selection process might turn into a quadrennial battle between political fragments in the Capitol.

There are analogous problems with the other popular reform proposal, direct popular election of the President. Elections for other offices are direct, of course, and they are often close and the Republic survives. But the presidency is of such overriding importance that it's worth having a special device for widening the margins in its elections. When other elections are extremely close, they are often followed by months of recounts and protests, and the seating of the person elected is frequently delayed.

The best-known recent case is the New Hampshire senatorial election last year, but on lower levels it happens all the time. For most offices, we can endure the controversy; for the presidency, we very likely could not.

This is not to say the Electoral College is perfect; in fact, a couple of changes are in order. The College now reflects the size and state-by-state distribution of Congress as a whole - every state, no matter how small, has two electoral votes corresponding to its membership in the House. Thus the smallest states have dis-proportionate power. The college ought to reflect only the membership of the House, so it would have 438 electors instead of the present 538.

This would tend to widen the margin of victory even further. The 20 states that have fewer than seven electoral votes in 1976 produced 16 per cent of the total electoral vote; in a system based strictly on population, they would produce only ten per cent. Ford's near-miss last year was the result of the exaggerated weight the College now gives these 20 states. A smaller, population-based Electoral College would have given Carter 57.8 per cent of its vote, instead of the 55.2 per cent that he got.

It also seems pointless to keep on the books the completely ignored rule that allows electors to vote as they please regardless of the popular vote in their states. It is a tribute to the strength of our political parties that so few electors have actually bolted, but if they ever did the results could be disastrous.

We're lucky to have an Electoral College filled with the obedient machine politicians the editorialists are always warning us about.

These changes could take place without meddling with the basic function of the Electoral College. We need not, in the name of reform, throw out the baby with the bath. If we do, we'll be abolishing a system that, however strange it may sound, has a great overriding virtue: it works.

Farm Center Celebrates Tenth Anniversary

Crow's Rainbow Farm Center is preparing to observe its 10th anniversary with a dinner for its customers and spouses at the Spencerville Community Club Building August 17. Invitations have been sent to the "valued customers" of the firm and an evening of relaxation and entertainment is in store for the invited guests.

Though the plant facilities have actually been in use for more than ten years, it was the assumption of its management by Dick Crow, prominent Concord Township farmer, which brought a really total and complete fertilizer and seed facility. Two sons, Pat and Andy Crow, now have assumed most of the management chores and the plant continues to thrive.

With a farm background, the two young men, aided by occasional "counseling" by Father Crow, offer those in agriculture in this area the benefit of first-hand knowledge of farm operations.

To keep pace with the demands of today's farming, the Farm Center has shown continuous expansion. Several spreader units are available for area farmers. And the firm has truck units set up for custom application for farmers.

With Crow's Rainbow Farm Center and its growth, plus Bob Beerbower's greatly-expanded grain elevator facilities and feed and seed supplies at the Saint Joe Elevator, farmers in the area have facilities available to them which are not often found in a small-town community.

Teamsters Win Local Tourney

The Sechler team was eliminated in its first game in the tourney. However, the team finished the season with a 9-2 won-lost record. The Teamsters had an 8-3 record.

Sechlers were tied with the Antwerp Yankees for first place.

12 teams participated in the local tourney.

Your dry cows are crying for attention

It's easy to treat dry cows like second-class citizens. And it's not hard to figure out why. You take care of your milking herd first. And probably think the dry cows are on vacation.

But you can't afford to treat them that way. Because a dry cow is on the world's busiest holiday. It's tune-up time for the next lactation. It's the finishing period for her unborn calf. It's preparation for the stress of calving. Plus the heavy milk production ahead.

Your dry cows need all the help you can give. Don't let 'em down. That's why Wayne has invested so much research on dry cow care.

Let us show you today's best tune-up for hard-working tired udders, with the special Wayne dry-cow health and feeding program. Also, the precise steps to take to prevent most freshening-time problems.

It all helps you become one of the smart dairymen who have so little trouble with their cows.

WAYNE CARES. SO DO WE. THAT'S WHAT MAKES THE DIFFERENCE.

Are You Photosensitive?

No, we do not mean allergic to taking pictures but rather a person who reacts severely to even a short exposure to strong sunlight. If you are fair-skinned, you should be aware of this particular danger. It could result in a rash, in the form of tiny blisters, commonly called sun poisoning.

More lotions and potions are sold for the treatment of sunburn than all other summer hazards combined. So be careful, take precautions and enjoy the sun without the consequences.

LEGAL NOTICE

The DeKalb County Eastern Community School District, 300 E. Washington St., Butler, Indiana, by and through the Board of School Trustees will receive sealed bids in the Office of the Superintendent of Schools until 8:00 p.m. on August 31, 1978. The bids will be for: 1. Number 2 fuel oil to be delivered to the tank at Riverdale School, Saint Joe, Indiana, to the tank at the Butler Elementary School, Butler, Indiana, and to the tank at the old high school gymnasium, Butler, Indiana.

The fuel oil bidder will agree to make absolutely every legitimate effort to deliver transport lots to either tank site within 24 hours of his being notified by telephone by the school authorities of the need for oil. All of the tanks involved are eight thousand (8,000) gallon capacity.

On rare occasions (once or twice a contract year) the school authorities reserve the right to order a transport quantity and split the load by dumping a portion at the Riverdale School in Saint Joe, Indiana, a portion at the Butler Elementary School in Butler, Indiana, or a portion at the old high school gymnasium in Butler, Indiana.

The bidder is expected to give a single competitive bid price based on his terminal source price with the understanding on the part of both parties having potential in the contract that the price as quoted can be adjusted both upwards and downwards upon written proof of cost variation. The successful bidder will be responsible by contract for delivering number 2 fuel oil from September 20, 1978, through September 20, 1979. The school will measure all tanks and notify the successful bidder twenty four (24) hours in advance of the real need for oil. The estimated consumption of fuel in round numbers for the year described would be approximately 50,000 gallons plus or minus.

2. Leaded regular gasoline having a 91.5 octane rating or greater to be delivered to the 12,000 gallon underground storage tank on school property near the Eastside Jr.-Sr. High School in Butler, Indiana.

The school authorities will stick the gasoline tank and keep the successful bidder advised of the need for gasoline when the need is equal to a full tanker load, and the successful bidder must agree to make absolutely every legitimate effort to deliver a transport lot to this one site within 48 hours of said reporting of the need for gasoline.

The bidder is expected to give a single competitive price based on his terminal source price with the understanding on the part of both parties having potential in the contract that the price as quoted can be adjusted both upwards and downwards upon written proof of cost variation. The successful bidder will be responsible by contract for delivering gasoline as stipulated September 20, 1978 through September 20, 1979.

The estimated consumption of gasoline in gallons in round numbers for the contract period would be approximately 30,000 gallons plus or minus.

All bids for both the fuel oil and the gasoline must be properly submitted on Revised Form No. 96, and the Board of School Trustees reserves the right to waive any and all formalities of the bidding and to accept or reject any and all bids.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I can't help noticing car drivers, bike riders and motorcyclists as they approach the stop sign next to the News Office. As often as not, they are looking in the shop windaw to see if I'm looking as they frequently just can't seem to find time to stop.

I know I sound like an old bear about it, but one of these days someone is going to "get it" at the corner. On Tuesday a motorcyclist headed west ran the stop sign at 20 or 25 miles perhour, I would say (sometimes the speed is even higher). Fortunately, a motorist who came to the intersection from the south stopped before the motorcyclist came into view. Otherwise that young man would have been splattered all over the car and pavement.

The kids also use the adjacent Chessie railroad right-of-way for their speedy runs. I wonder if the kids' parents realize that, if their offspring did get hurt in a spill along the railroad tracks, their hospitalization coverage might be jeopardized because the kids are actually trespassing.

I'm not trying to spoil anyone's fun. I'm trying to point out the hazards and the possible consequences — especially when the kids are riding double. Helmets prevent a certain amount of head injuries, but they don't prevent broken bodies.

Town Board

The town board is taking legal action against a local resident for failure to comply with town ordinances and regulations.

According to information relayed to The News this week, the town attorney is preparing documents charging the local resident with several violations. Among these are:

Failure to comply with an ordinance requiring a fence surrounding a swimming pool;

Removal of a public sidewalk without replacing it with new sidewalk, despite the information given the resident by at least one town board member;

Blocking public use of an alley right-of-way with the planting of a garden in the right-of-way;

Installation of curb without board approval and permission.

The alley-garden matter has been an item of contention for several weeks. An adjacent property owner, Don Noragon, reported to The News recently that the resident who faces official action made threats of physical violence against the Noragon children.

Part of the dispute appears to be the resident's belief that, after a period of time during which little if any use is made of an alley right-of-way in town, the right-of-way automatically goes to the adjacent property owner or owners.

PARENTS W-OUT PARTNERS

"Parents Without Partners" is forming a chapter in DeKalb County.

At the present time the organization is holding meetings in the Kruse Building in Auburn at 7 p.m. Wednesdays until further notice.

All single parents are welcome to attend. Those who work the second or third shifts are to keep watching for further news about future meetings.

For more information, call Virginia Nelson 925-3176 or Marilyn Nelson 868-2909.

Information is being broadcast on radio station WIFF.

The group plans a potluck dinner at Pokagon Park at Angola August 20. All single parents and children are invited to attend. Bring a covered dish.

Signs will give directions at the park.

3-Way Tie In Church League Brings Playoff

Church League softball competition ended this week as far regular scheduling is concerned.

However, two teams are tied for first place and a third will join them in a three-way tie after the makeup of a rained out game. The makeup pits Saint Joe Church of Christ against Norris Chapel August 14. Both have 11-4 won-lost records. After the makeup game, one will have a 12-4 record to tie Hicksville Church of Christ and Newville United Methodist. The loser will come in second at 11-5

Tuesday at 8 p.m. the winner of Monday's game faces Hicksville. Wednesday at 8 p.m., the winner of the Tuesday game plays Newville UM. The winner of the Wednesday game will be the 1978 league champion.

Friday night, the annual All-Star game puts the league champion against a team of All-Stars representing all the other participating teams.

Though the All-Star game is an "exhibition" game, it is one which both sides do their best to win. If the champion beats the All-Stars, it shows how talented they are. If the All-Stars beat the champions, the talents of all the other teams is evident.

The championship trophy will be presented to the league champions Friday night. And the sportsmanship trophy will be presented to the team selected by the teams themselves as an outstanding example of good sportsmanship.

School Starts Aug. 24

Principal Charles Ray has announced that school bells will be ringing for the DeKalb eastern elementary students Thursday, August 24.

Riverdale Elementary hours will be 8:00 a.m. to 2:37 p.m. daily. At Butler, hours will be 8:30 a.m. to 3:15 p.m.

There will be a full day of school August 24 with bus schedules remaining the same as last year for the most part.

Insurance that covers individual school children is again available this year. A packet containing this information will be sent home with the kids on the first day of school.

All elementary children must complete state immunization requirements. According to state law, all students are required to have the following immunizations: 4 DPT (diphtheria pertussin), 4 polio, 1 mealses and 1 rubella. Any immunizations not completed and on file in the school offices should be turned in by the first day of school.

The eastern elementary principals' offices are now open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

New residents in the community who have children of kindergarten through sixth grade age are urged to enroll the children at the earliest possible date.

Any child eligible for kindergarten who missed the spring registration should be enrolled before the starting of school.

To be eligible, a child must be 5 years of age on or before September 1, 1978, and must furnish a birth certificate at the time of registration.

Workbook packets and school supplies are available at the Riverdale School office and at Hook's Drugstore in Butler.

JUNIOR-SENIOR HIGH—

At the upper grade level, students who will be new to the junior-senior high school should register at the high school office in Butler as soon as possible.

Classes will begin August 24 for a full day of school. Students should have textbooks and supplies for opening day.

Rental textbooks for junior-senior high school students may be picked up weekdays at the high school bookstore starting Thursday, August 17. Hours are 9 a.m. to noon and 1:00 to 4:00 p.m.

Textbook rental for the year is to be paid at the time the first semester books are picked up. Second semester books will be issued at the start of the second semester. All rental is to be paid at one time. Books will not be issued one or two at a time. Students schedules will available at the bookstore when books are picked up.

The rental fee does not include workbooks, practice sets, etc. Workbooks may be purchased at Hooks Drugstore in Butler. But students should get their textbooks and check their schedules before purchasing workbooks to be certain they are scheduled for all the classes requested.

FACULTY—

The first day of the 1978-79 school year for all teaching personnel will be Tuesday, August 22. Teachers are to report to their respective buildings in the morning for meetings.

The Riverdale elementary staff will get together at about 10:30 a.m. with the Butler elementary faculty scheduled to meet at 8:30 a.m.

On Wednesday, August 23, a handwriting representative from Zaner-Bloser will present a program to all elementary teaches at 9:00 a.m. in the Butler Elementary School library. At 10:30 a representative from Houghton-Mifflin will instruct the teachers in the new reading textbook series which has just been adopted.

A meeting for all teachers in the corporation will take place Wednesday afternoon.

Charles Hampel Named Sup't; Bus Drivers Get Pay Raise

NEW SUPERINTENDENT—

In a special session held Monday, August 7, the DeKalb eastern school board named Charles Hampel as superintendent of schools in the corporation on a three-year contract. He has been an elementary teacher in the system two years, teaching the sixth grade at Riverdale a year and fifth grade at Butler a year. Prior to that, he had been professor and student teacher supervisor at IU-Fort Wayne.

The emergency situation arose with the death of Superintendent Kenneth Cole July 23. Robert Howe of Union City had been hired starting the 1979-80 school year. However, he could not assume responsibilities here this year due to current commitments.

Mr. Hampel received a bachelor's degree from Indiana Central College and his masters and doctorate degrees from Ball State University.

The Hampel family resides on R1 Butler.

BUS DRIVER PAY HIKE—

The school board gave a 60-cent raise on base pay of school bus drivers. Drivers will now get $18 for regular runs and $7.60 for express or. non-stop runs.

A second pay raise for drivers raises their hourly rate for for all extracurricularr bus trips, except sports, from $2.25 to $3.25 with a $10 minimum. The rate for athletic trips will be only 50 cents higher or $2.75 an hour. The exception for the athletic department was due to the "bad shape" athletic finances are in, according to Ricard Meek, spokesman for the bus drivers.

Drivers are paid by the group which sponsors the extra-curricular activities and it was noted by the school board that negotiations must be carried out with those groups by the drivers. The board pays driver fees only for field trips it approves.

The driver spokesman said his group wants the board to set up guidelines in driver fees.

Drivers may now accumulate 24 sick days over a period of four years. They had asked for a 30-day accumulation over five years. In the past they were allowed to accumulate 18 days in three years.

Mr. Hampel suggested that the drivers be allowed to pool their sick days, as teachers are now allowed to do. A driver could thus use coworkers' sick days in case of prolonged illness or injury. However, school legal counselor H. Charles Winans said such pooling would be more difficult because of the difference in contracts of bus drivers and teachers.

Tabled were bus driver retirement fund matters, the use of CBs on buses and the number of stops which extra-curricular buses make.

TEACHER CONTRACT OK'd

Teacher spokesman Nelson Cairl said the local union has ratified an agreement between the board and the union on a new salary schedule for the 1978-79 school year. The board also approved the agreement but no details were given.

RESIGNATIONS—

Three resignations were accepted, from Guy Mausteller who has been head custodian, Bill Peden who has been athletic director and coach, and Phil Tavalache who has been vocal music teacher.

Trustees Meet

The Trustees of DeKalb County held a picnic Sunday, July 30 at Maxton Park in Butler. At 12:30 p.m. the eleven trustees and friends enjoyed a delicious potluck dinner. After eating, President Francis Nelson called the group to order. All introduced themselves and made any remarks they deemed of importance. President Nelson called on Ray Miller to contrast the differences in the office in 1942 and at present. Mr. Miller recalled the trustees had ditches and local country schools back then, plus the duties of present day trustees, at a much lower salary.

The trustees' picnic was restarted in 1971 when Francis Nelson became President and and has become an annual affair since. All present expressed the hope that when new officers are elected next year the event will be continued.

Those present included MM Wayne Benninghoff, MM Loren King, Marcile Watson and Marie Schulthess, Glen Jennings, MM Charles Mayne, Madeline Zumbaugh and son John, MM Ralph Myers, MM Harold Murphy, Jay and Pauline Wallace, Willard Stonebraker, MM Merlin Simanton, James and Marjorie Carr, Edson Shippy and Beverly Hauser, Wilma Wilhelm, Francis and Irene Nelson, MM Ray Miller, MM Gilbert Willibey, and MM Kester Cather.

Did you know-

—that Spencer Township Trustee Harold Murphy reports the revenue sharing funds from the township will go to the Spencer Township Fire Department ($2,100) and the Council On Aging ($500).

—that John Esquivel, 45, of Hicksville died August 6 at Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne. The survivors include Mrs. Delores Zunica of Newville, a sister, and Pete Esquivel of Newville, a brother.

Your dry cows are crying for attention

It's easy to treat dry cows like second-class citizens. And it's not hard to figure out why. You take care of your milking herd first. And probably think the dry cows are on vacation.

But you can't afford to treat them that way. Because a dry cow is on the world's busiest holiday. It's tune-up time for the next lactation. It's the finising period for her unborn calf. It's preparation for the stress of calving. Plus the heavy milk production ahead.

Your dry cows need all the help you can give. Don't let 'em down. That's why Wayne has invested so much research on dry cow care.

Let us show you today's best tune-up for hard-working tired udders, with the special Wayne dry-cow health and feeding program. Also, the precise steps to take to prevent most freshening-time problems.

It all helps you become one of the smart dairymen who have so little trouble with their cows.

WAYNE CARES. SO DO WE. THAT'S WHAT MAKES THE DIFFERENCE.

You should choose one pharmacy

Because today's medicines are so much more potent and so much more specific, it has become very important that a family choose one pharmacy to fill all their drug needs for both prescription and non - prescription drugs. A family should "shop" for a pharmacy they feel comfertable with in much the same manner they "shop" for a physician or dentist.

We hope you will choose our pharmacy for your family. We are dedicated to your better health and concentrate our efforts toward achieving this goal.

"A GREAT MANY PEOPLE ENTRUST US with their prescriptions, health needs and other pharmacy products. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty. May we be your personal family pharmacy?"

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Town Board Seeks 333% Increase In Self-Pay For 1979

The proposed budget for the town of Saint Joe contains significant changes. The budget appeared in last week's issue of this paper and in this issue.

Following a pattern established at the national level by members of Congress, the local town trustees will increase their own pay 3 1/3 times. The pay for the past several years has been $150 per year per person on the three-member board for a total of $450 per year.

For 1979, the trustees have raised their per-member pay to $500, or a total of $1,500 per year for town administration, an increase of 333%.

Also increased is the clerk-treasurer's pay, from $500 to $650. "Compensation of firemen" will go from $200 up to $500 under the proposed budget.

Before the published proposed budget was completed, the board had to "cut" some $3,500 from it in order to meet expected revenues. However, the reduction was not in terms of reducing current budget items. It was a reduction in budget increases which the board had written in during review of the proposed spending for 1979.

Thus, the $3,500 "cut" represents proposed increased spending. A town official reported to The News in answer to questions about the budget that the trustees had "added $500 here and $500 there."

The increase in the clerk-treasurer's pay, from $500, to $650, is proportionately much smaller than the increase the trustees voted for themselves. However, the work load of the clerk-treasurer is much higher inasmuch as the clerk is responsible for all bookkeeping of town finances, keeping minutes of meetings, carrying out cordespondence as ordered by the board and so on. The clerk receives additional pay from the waterworks division and is responsible for its bookkeeping also.

The News was informed that a "public meeting" was held recently on the use of federal revenue sharing funds and the board reportedly voted $1,000 to the Area Council On Aging. However, no notice was given for publication in The News, notices being posted in business establishments.

An inquiry by The News to several townspeople indicated that none knew of the revenue sharing meeting. Such meetings are required by federal law to allow the public to express its views on the use of revenue sharing funds, but the meeting was not announced in this paper.

Area township trustees have all published public notices of their revenue sharing meetings in the local paper.

Also required by law is the publication of an annual report of receipts and expenditures by the town. Such a report is to be published in January in a paper "published in the town." However no such report has been published in this paper for two years. The reports were published in the county daily, thus violating state law.

As advertised in the proposed budget notice, the town board will meet Monday, August 28, at the fire hall for the purpose of approving the proposed budget. That is the time when town residents may express their views on the increased administrative costs and any other budget items, if they so desire.

Newville UM Wins Church League Title

It was a thriller—Monday night's Church League softball game between Saint Joe Church of Christ and Norris Chapel United Methodist. And it took an extra innings before Norris Chapel came out with a one-run 6-5 win to place them in a three-way tie for first place with a 12-4 won-lost record. The other two teams ending in the tie were Hicksville Church of Christ and Newville United Methodist.

Tuesday night, Norris Chapel took an 8-0 win from Hicksville in the first playoff game to determine the league champion.

Hicksville found themselves in a tough situation, what with some five or six regulars missing from their squad due to vacations. The three-way tie was not anticipated, league champions usually determined by the regular season schedule.

The win put Norris into the Wednesday night game against Newville UM and this game was won by Newville 10-0 to make them the 1978 champions.

Charlie Cole's backspin pitching held Norris Chapel in check.

Norris Chapel just "ran out of gas" in the championship game. It was the third game in three nights for the team. However, it should be noted that Newville played errorless ball to back up their pitcher, and this brought an obvious advantage to the 1978 champs. Newville was "up" for this one.

Friday night finds a team of All-Stars composed of players from the other teams facing the league champions. The championship trophy will be presented to Newville UM during the evening and the sportsmanship trophy will also be presented.

Mr. Haberkorn,

Just a note to say thanks for printing our Butler Days tickets and donating them to us. We appreciate your helping us on our money-making projects. We feel we put the money to good use. Thanks again.

Dear Ted,

I read with interest your brief editorial on the vandalism done to the local concession stand and bleachers at the ball diamond. Your remarks were appropriate and well placed. You know, as I work with dozens of young people I often find them relating a story of their impishness, as they call it. They chuckle with glee how they blew up a toilet at the high school or "soaped" somebody's car or destroyed a mailbox. The shock comes when few young people respond with disdain over this 'impishness.' When it comes down to it, all this impishness is just plain criminal. If you or any other adult committed this type of crime against property we would not only have to make restitution, we'd probably be put in jail. The way our legal system protects the juvenile felon from the public scrutiny is the real travesty.

What is the answer? Well, maybe the publishing of the names of those doing the damage in your paper would deter future destruction. Maybe young people would think twice before destroying something others had labored in love to build for the community good. But better still would be for the parents of these young felons to drag them over to the ball diamond and make them rebuild what they had so gleefully destroyed.

In our own community we are doing just that through a lay probation program in cooperation with the juvenile services offices and county probation department. These young people meet with a competent adult weekly who enables the young person to make restitution for his crime. When young people are presented with the responsibilities and obligations of being an adult rather than just its privileges, things do change. Vandalism will continue St. Joe until interested citizens make an effort to work with the sheriff's department to set up a workable system for restitution. Until that happens, you can talk yourself blue in the face, but it won't make one iota of difference.

I write this from two hundred miles away, in hope that something will be done. You see, I still love li'l ole St. Joe too!

Sincerely yours,
D. James Kuchera,
Pastor
(First Lutheran Church, Columbus, Indiana)

Cong. Quayle Inspects Deteriorated Local RR Siding

Fourth District Representative Dan Quayle was in the area last weekend, participating in the Butler Days celebration and conversing with certain people in the area. Saturday afternoon he made a stop at Crow's Rainbow Farm Center in Saint Joe to learn about the plant's problems in getting rail service and improvement of the railroad siding which serves the plant.

Above, Congressman Quayle at left holds a piece of rotted railroad tie which he was able to break off with no difficulty to show the deteriorated condition of the siding. Pat Crow, at right, also told the Congressman of delays experienced in getting delivery of fertilizer.

Pat illustrated rising costs by noting that, when he began working at the Farm Center ten years ago, the price of a certain fertilizer was $38 a ton, including freight. Today, the same fertilizer has $35 in freight charges alone.

Congressman Quayle was escorted in his county visits by DeKalb County Republican Central Committee Chairman Bob Wilder.

There will also be tours of the Court House.

The event is sponsored by the LaGrange County Historical Society.

'Tax Reform' - Less Spending

There is a lot of publicity today about a "taxpayers revolution," what with California voters recently passing a resolution drastically cutting property taxes. It's a good thing—this getting up in arms about big government, big taxes, big indebtedness. Yet, there is still a lot of room for "revolution" in state and federal government, a revolution to go back to the old ways, in a sense. But it will take a lot of doing, to get the average man, woman, boy and girl to give up some things which have been around so long that some of them don't know any other atmosphere.

While the current effort to reduce the roll of government in private lives by reducing taxes is commendable, there are a few other things which must be considered—and some of these are "sacred cows" stemming from the 1930's and the switch to "left of center" in our national policies. I'm talking about the socialistic programs like "30 and out" in private industry in pension programs, pension programs for public officeholders at taxpayers' expense both in civilian and military areas reaching right down into our individual communities. I'm talking about the big, new socialistic monster called "CETA" (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) which has the effect of turning independent citizens into bureaucrats on the idea that what they are doing is good and worthwhile and should be continued. The continuation is accomplished by turning the bill for financing over to local government after the CETA grant period expires.

Former Secretary of Agriculture and former Purdue University Dean Earl Butz hits the nail on the head frequently in his near-noon commentary carried by WIFF radio of Auburn.

A few days ago Mr. Butz noted that HEW (the Department of Health, Education and Welfare) was celebrating its 25th anniversary. He noted that the bureau began in 1953 under President Dwight D. Eisenhower with a budget of some $1.5 billion and some 37,000 government employees in the department. Today, 25 years later, HEW has a budget of $160 billion and has a work force of some 143,000 people.

Thus, the staff has increased four-fold in 25 years and the amount of taxpayers' money spent by that one department has increased ONE HUNDRED-FOLD!

Put it all together and you come up with—while HEW has been growing by leaps and bounds in 25 years, while CETA has gotten its own foothold in the budgetary responsibilties of the federal government and is fast becoming ANOTHER government bureaucracy to contend with, local communities are intimidated into silence because to criticize such programs or to speak out against such programs SOUNDS like criticism of the local people who are being paid full-time salaries to fill these government-created jobs.

Auburn Garrett and Butler city council members find themselves confronted—as do the county commissioners and county council members—with the decision of whether or not to continue this or that program or service AT LOCAL TAXPAYERS' EXPENSE when the federal money stops flowing.

The county is now paying for a "coordinator" for the senior citizens' nutrition program because of intimidation more than because of real need.

It sounds "anti-senior citizen" to speak this way; it sounds inhuman, cold, unsympathetic.

But the fact is that, while there ARE some folks who need the nutritional and social program, the vast majority of those who enjoy the subsidized noon dinners don't need a subsidized handout represented by the low-cost meals. All over America the majority of retired senior citizens are being treated like children who can't take care of themselves financially. Why? Well, if you keep a program going and growing, you perpetuate the need for coordinators, supervisors, planners and so on who are on the full-time payroll of federal, state and local government.

While in office, President Gerald Ford proposed a reduction in appropriations for school lunch programs. Indiana's Senator Birch Bayh immediately replied in a news release, and took Mr. Ford to task for proposing to "deny" adequate nutrition to school children. He made no reference to actual NEED for government nutrition programs for students; he only generalized and thus appealed to the emotions and made Mr. Ford out to be some sort of unspeakable character.

Just a few months ago, current Agriculture Secretary Bob Berglund made the announcement that HE proposed to cut the school lunch appropriation and anticipated a big howl over tampering with the school lunch "sacred cow." Remember, this is President Jimmy Carter's ag secretary — —, and Senator Bayh didn't say a word.

Mr. Butz is a controversial figure. However, through the years, he has consistently been more sensible in his logic and reasoning than many who have served in agricultural positions of responsibility. He is in the same class as WOWO's Jay Gould. Though of somewhat different temperatments, both have served agriculture, the nation and the people well by constantly challenging government interference in the lives of the American people.

GOP Promotes Voter Registration

"Now is the time to make sure that everyone who wishes to vote is registered," Bob Wilder, DeKalb County Republican chairman, said as he kicked off the DeKalb County portion of a grassroots statewide voter registration drive.

Governor Otis R. Bowen is chairman of the Republican registration effort.

Wilder said in Auburn, "It is our hope that more and more people will involve themselves in the conduct of government by excercising their right to vote. The election is three months away, but those who want to vote can register now. For those who forget, we intend to have volunteers knocking on their doors to remind them.

"Indiana Republicans have four outstanding candidates for state office this year," Wilder continued. "Ed Simcox heads the ticket as Secretary of State. Julian Ridlen will make an outstanding Treasurer. Charlie Loos is running for Auditor and Marge O'Laughlin is the candidate for Clerk of State Courts. Together, they are running as 'The Bowen Team' because they support Governor Bowen's outstanding record of performance in tax reduction, crime fighting, and energy related matters."

In announcing the statewide registration drive in Indianapolis, Governor Bowen said, "Figures compiled by the campaign staff indicate that as many as 479,000 Hoosiers over the age of 18 are not now eligible to vote. At a time when Americans are demanding a greater voice in their government, we as a party have dedicated ourselves to encouraging and assisting everyone to register and participate in the electoral process. No one should be denied the right to express their will in the voting booth because they failed to register."

"1978 is a significant election year for Indiana residents," the governor explained. "I need Ed Simcox, Julian Ridlen, Charles Loos and Marge O'Laughlin on my team in the State House. To preserve the property tax relief that we all worked so hard to obtain back in 1973, we need a majority in the Indiana General Assembly dedicated to making property tax relief a lasting thing. The future well being of our state is in the hands of the people, and each and every vote counts."

The final day for door-to-door registration in Indiana is September 23.

Clifton Bush is the campaign staff director of the voter registration drive. Any Indiana resident wishing to register to vote may call, toll free, 1-800-622-4926.

In DeKalb County the Republican Party has registration officers in each precinct. If you are not registered to vote and wish to be, call Republican Headquarters–925-4016. Republican Registration Officers will come to your home and register you. Voters may also register to vote in the Clerk's Office in the DeKalb County Courthouse.

You should choose one pharmacy

Because today's medicines are so much more potent and so much more specific, it has become very important that a family choose one pharmacy to fill all their drug needs for both prescription and non - prescription drugs. A family should "shop" for a pharmacy they feel comfortable with in much the same manner they "shop" for a physician or dentist.

We hope you will choose our pharmacy for your family. We are dedicated to your better health and concentrate our efforts toward achieving this goal.

"A GREAT MANY PEOPLE ENTRUST US with their prescriptions, health needs and other pharmacy products. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty. May we be your personal family pharmacy?"

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Happiness Is..

GIVING THE RIGHT WAY

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

A rich, Boston woman, so the story goes, was dragged very unwillingly one day to see a poor widow who was sick. The rich woman was shocked. She did not care for the widow, but she did not like to see suffering.

She said to the widow, "I shall order the Charity Organization to come up and help you." But the widow spoke up, "Thank you, Ma'am, but although I am poor, I cannot take charity."

"But," said the rich woman, "you have just told me that your neighbors help you; you take things from them."

"Yes, but that is not charity. They are friends. They care. They know that if they needed help, I would do the same for them."

This woman, poor as she was, measured giving by the heart of the giver.

Gifts from a loving heart are welcome; from a cold heart they mean nothing.

Happiness is . . . giving the right way.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

My disposition is upset almost daily as I open my mail, a large segment of which—or maybe even a majority—is from government agencies, federally and state funded organizations and members of Congress. Every so often I start stacking them just to see what a pile there is in a month's time. But after a couple of days, I think "what's the use" and toss it all in the wastebasket.

Here are some samples of the upsetting mail (the printing, handling and mailing paid for by you, the taxpayer):

Vol. III No. 7 of "Coming of Age," put out by the Northeast Area III Council On Aging, contains an item about the resignation of Henrietta Martin who served as office manager since July 1977. She resigned because her hubby has accepted a new position in Dallas, Texas.

There's nothing wrong there. Even having Henrietta's picture accompanying the article, there is nothing wrong about it.

—Except that the picture is not a head and shoulders photo as is usually used. It's a full-length photo taking almost one-fourth of the page, with Henrietta standing on plush carpet in front of a velour couch with satin drapes in the background and Henrietta attired in a fur-trimmed cape over a matching skirt accented by fashion boots.

The photograph is more appropriate for a fashion magazine than a publication devoted (?) to senior citizens' matters.

Another news release from Indiana Senator Birch Bayh in which he states his support of a bill to require a balanced budget by 1981. He says it is "essential that the cost of government be brought under control." He notes that the first major appropriations bill passed by Congress for 1979 is "nearly 520 million below the Administration's original budget request."

It's a wonder he didn't use the word "slashed" in referring to the appropriation reduction.

Let's put things in perspectfive. $500 million is a lot of money. But with the federal budget for 1979 to be over $500 billion, the reduction in the appropriation, which Senator Bayh boasts about, IS ONLY ONE ONE-THOUSANDTH of the total budget. You don't balance budgets with such piddling amounts.

The irritating thing is that the Senator is one of those responsible for increased federal spending, an unbalanced budget and a monstrous bureaucracy. Where was he right at the beginning when the word should have been "NO" to federal intrusion into our private lives by increasing taxation.

In another news release (he puts out dozens of them in a month's time and has done so for years and years), the Senator boasts that he authored the 26th Amendment to the Constitution which gave 18-year-olds the privilege of voting.

He also says "young people are showing a greater awareness of the responsibilities of citizenship and are entering the business world at earlier ages."

Where has the Senator been? Statistics show that the 18-to-21 age group had the worst voting record at the last Presidential election. As for entering the business world at an early age, what can you expect when the pitch is "you have a right to have what you want" and the name of the game is "material possessions" these days.

What is particularly upsetting is that this deceptive individual has authored or pushed for the last two Constitutional Amendments and now wants to destroy the Electoral College system of determining the election of a President.

"One man, one vote" sounds good—until you find your own less-populated area overwhelmed by the vote from a heavily-populated area.

He also supports "ERA"—the "Equal Rights Atrocity."

Still another release from the Senator (I told you they come thick and fast) boasts of his authoring the "Consumer Privacy Protection Act." The need for such legislation is due to invasion of privacy but it is associated much of the time by refence to the "cloak and dagger" image given in recent years to the FBI, wiretaps, etc.

Also referred to are the private businesses which store millions of bits of information in computer banks. So, your private matters may not remain private.

But what about invasion of privacy by the government? It is said that the 1980 census will have a certain number of citizens filling out a 20-PAGE REPORT.

If that isn't invasion of privacy, I don't know what is. And it is the federal government, the bureaucracy, which is doing the invading.

Where was the Senator when the Census Bureau mapped out its 1980 census plans???

And what about the invasion of privacy when legislation supported by Senator Bayh deprives a property owner of the privilege of deciding who will rent his or her apartment or house, the business owner of the privilege of determining what qualifications expected from someone to fill a job vacancy? What privacy is there when a rural resident must get permission from and pay a fee to a planning commission before making any improvements to property?

Another irritating bit of mail was the announcement from the Indiana Department of Public Instruction of a summer workshop July 26-28 in Brown County on the subject "Why Kids Don't Come To School."

I think a more appropriate theme would have been, "Why Don't Kids Learn As Much As They Did 20 Years Ago When They DO Come To School?"

The 1978 Church League softball season ended Friday night with the annual champions v. All-Stars game and presentation of championship and sportsmanship trophies.

The All-Stars downed the champion Newville United Methodist team 12-4.

In pre-game ceremonies, the starting lineups were announced. As each player was introduced, he took a position along the infield. John Paul Hill, minister of Coburn Corners Church of Christ and a former participant in church league competition, led a prayer. The teams shook hands and the game was under way.

Between inning music was provided, along with announcing of the progress of the game, by Ted Haberkorn who set up his electric piano not only for the All-Star game but also for the two playoff games at the first of the week.

Between the fifth and sixth innings, the championship trophy was presented to manager Danny Helbert of the Newville United Methodist team by league president Ted Haberkorn. League secretary Lavon Hart presented the sportsmanship trophy after giving appropriate remarks and noting that the sportsmanship award is as valuable a recognition as that given to league champions—and more valuable in the minds of many participants and supporters.

The president noted that the presentation of the championship trophy was especially gratifying in view of the complete new set of light fixtures during the past summer. The cost of over $5,000 was met by use of church league treasury funds augmented by a $100 donation from each participating team and a bank note signed by league officers for $1,000; and donations of $750 from the Saint Joe Lions Club and the Saint Joe Booster Club, $500 from the Vulcraft plant at Saint Joe, and $200 from the Riverdale Little League. Brown Furniture & Hardware donated a costly main switch for the lights.

Another boost was given last week in meeting lighting obligations when it was revealed that the board of directors of Knisely National Bank had voted to donate $250, thus reducing the Church League's note obligation from $1,000 down to $750.

The 18 new metal halide fixtures at the local diamond replace 26 incandescent fixtures which were used for 27 years. The fewer new fixtures give much more light and reportedly will use less electricity.

1978 marks the 27th year of Saint Joe Church League competition. It is the oldest continuous softball league in the area and has had up to ten teams participating each year since 1952. It has provided virtually all the improvements in recent years, plus annual sets of bases and occasional new home plate and pitcher's rubber installations.

Several years ago, when Little League activity was not allowed nation-wide under lights, Church League games were preceeded by Little League prelims at 5:15. This past summer, the Church League honored a request from the local Little League organization for use of Wednesday nights through the Little League season which ended in July.

The Church League is not and never has been a "strictly adults only" type of activity. The age range runs from school students on up to veteran Bob Camp who, at age 60, is the oldest participating player.

'Blockheads' Respond With $216.55

A few weeks ago, The News announced its project to raise funds for the concession stand. Shiny, new 1978 pennies were affixed to printed cards which identified the donor of 50 cents as an "Honorary Blockhead." The "catch" title was arrived at from the fact that concrete blocks head the list of needed materials—hence the term "Blockhead."

Posters were placed in business establishments at Saint Joe and Spencerville announcing the project. Merchants for the most part kept a record of those who donated toward the purchase of cement blocks.

The fund was given a big boost when Wilbur Johnson of Johnson Auto Service in Butler contributed $50.

The "honor roll' of those who donated includes the following, as turned in to The News by the various merchants:

The Budget - And Town Character

It isn't easy to comment in these columns on occasion, because my views and opinions are often related to personal friends who are also in positions of responsibility. To "lay off" and not comment would be to shirk my responsibility as editor. To express my views is to run the risk of losing a friend or antagonizing a local business in its relationship with this paper.

It is no "picnic," therefore, to find it necessary to comment about our town's proposed budget for 1979. But the raise in pay which the town board proposes for itself "just ain't right," in my mind.

Yes, $150 a year (a board member's pay for the past several years) is not much money considering the time that is devoted to the job if the job is done right. However, officeholders in small communities don't serve the public for the money; they serve the public out of a feeling of responsibility to the community, a way to help improve the place where they live. $500 (the proposed annual pay for each board member) also is not adequate to pay for the time required in the job if the job is done right. However, once again it is necessary to remember that officeholders in small communities have traditionally accepted responsibilities without regard for the pay involved.

It seems to me that, if the pay raise goes through, we will have destroyed part of that small town character reflecting the desire to serve others and help build the community. We have lost so much of the good qualities of character already due to money that to have our town fall in step with other communities in raising town officials' pay is very disappointing and saddening, to say the least.

Times have changed, I know. When town board members received $10 a year, prices were lower for groceries and everything else. The dollar was worth more than it is today, but the $10 annual pay for a town board member still was a token payment for services rendered.

When I served on the town board in the early 1960's, the pay was $100 per member. In the fourth year of that board's term (Roy Bowser was board president and Bud Shockley was the third board member), we prepared the budget for the coming year (which would be under a newly-elected board) with a salary of $150 per member. When the new board (composed of Maurice Kline, Ralph "Jiggs' " Keeler and the late Clifford Billow) took over, they cut their own pay back to $100 per member for the remainder of their term in office.

However, when it came to budget-making time in their fourth year (preparing a budget for a new town board), they reinstituted the $150 salary schedule. Apparently they recognized from their own experience that the $150 was not out of line. It was a raise of 50%, not 333%.

So, someone might say, "Well, $500 isn't out of line today; look how prices and costs have gone up." I'm inclined to agree with that observation—up to a point. First, the higher costs and prices of today are up by leaps and bounds compared to a dozen years ago. We are reaching a point where it should be obvious that increasing pay (whether it's a town official or the man on the production line) means less purchasing power. Every person who demands and gets a raise these days automatically guarantees a lower standard of living for themselves.

Second, it is one thing to propose a pay raise for someone else. It is quite another to propose a pay raise for one's self at public expense.

I am somewhat puzzled at the proposed budget which had to be reduced by some $3500 because of a lack of revenue. Preliminary budget discussions resulted in adding $500 here and there. That means the town board wanted to raise the budget by $3500 over the current budget. But they had to remove the additions. However, the increase in their own pay remained.

I am puzzled because there has been an explanation that "we don't have any money" given when a citizen suggests this or that action by the board. "We don't have any money"—yet $3500 was going to be added to the budget for next year.

The town never has been short of money, as I see it. No, there isn't a pile of it lying around waiting to be spent. But if there was a real need, there have been funds available to take care of those situations in many instances.

In my second term on the board, my answer to anyone who said, "I know you don't have any money, but — —" and a want or supposed need was pointed out — my reply was, "We've got plenty of money, to take care of our needs. But it must be a real need."

I don't see any reason to add $300 to the budget item "pay of firemen." The firemen don't actually get paid; they're volunteers. What occurs is the turning over of that money to the fire department's treasury to use as they see fit.

However, with township revenue sharing funds being given almost totally to the fire department in recent years, an increase in "pay of firemen" in the town's budget seems unnecessary. And there are other appropriations in the budget (materials, equipment) which can be used by the town for fire department purposes when the need arises. In addition, the fire department can raise funds by barbecues and auctions as it is now doing in the past few years. Other rural departments have financed themselves to a great extent by such activities for many, many years.

And though there is no law requiring it, I think fire department ought to publish an annual report of receipts and expenditures. If they are using tax dollars, the taxpayer ought to be informed how tax money is spent. If it is money from public support of department fund-raising activities, the public ought to be informed of the manner in which their money is being used.

I'm not accusing the department of mis-using funds. I'm only saying that those who provide funds ought to know how those funds are used. Such reports are a big help in public relations.

The American public appears to be clamoring for a reduction in government spending. While the Saint Joe town budget is but a grain of sand on the beach compared to state and federal budgets, it's the principle of the thing that is important. We should hold the line on spending starting at the grass roots level —rather than become "like everyone else" in the way we handle money matters in government spending.

Monday night, August 28, the town board meets. This meeting is for use by the public in expressing its views on budget matters. If no townspeople attend to express their views, the budget undoubtedly will be approved by the town board. If this happens, it will mean that local residents approve of "self pay raises." It will also mean that some of the glitter has gone from our bright little town.

Farm Center's Birthday A Happy Occasion For 250

"Cap'n Stubby" held some 250 spellbound and in tears of laughter for over an hour last Thursday at the 10th anniversary dinner given by Crow's Rainbow Farm Center in Saint Joe. The dinner meeting was held at the Spencerville Community Building.

"Cap'n Stubby" is the name used by Tommy Foust in his good-will ambassador visits to various farming communities in behalf of International Mineral & Chemical Company and other agriculture-related enterprises. Foust's folksy, rural-oriented routine was full of jokes, humorous observations and references to local community happenings.

Foust comes from Young America, Indiana, as does Omer Hansen of Saint Joe. And both shared fond recollections of the days of their youth. The humorist also has been acquainted with Dick Crow for some 50 years, both participating in 4-H activities in the area which includes Dick's hometown of Royal Center.

Pat Crow and Andy Crow led the meeting which included the awarding of attendance prizes. Winners included Ann Slentz of Butler, Mary Jane Farmer of Grabill, Jeanine Arnett of Auburn, Joan Mills of Spencerville, Evelyn Ridge of Butler, Marcia Cook of Saint Joe, Bill Sipe of Butler, Susan Armstrong of Auburn, Debbie Graham of Auburn, Aaron Holman of Saint Joe, Kevin Farmer of Grabill, Frank Sechler of Saint Joe, Darlene McDonald of Saint Joe, Mrs. Max Doub of Butler, Leanna Friend of Auburn, James Graham of Auburn, Vern Peterson of Decatur, Ron Holmes, Sr., of Auburn, Nancy Haines of Saint Joe and Evan Farmer of Grabill.

The dinner was prepared and served by the Ladies of the Spencerville United Methodist Church.

Happiness Is..

FORMING CHARACTER

by Don Bullock, Minister of the West Village Christian Church in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and a former Minister of the Saint Joe Church of Christ.

The forming of character is most important in a growing child. One must be molded in the right direction in order that he may continue to grow that way. The old maxim is still true: the way the twig is bent, so grows the tree.

Have you ever noticed how an icicle is formed? If you have you noticed how it froze one drop at a time until it was a foot or more long. If the water was clear, the icicle remained clear, and sparkled almost as brightly as diamonds in the sun. But if the water was a bit muddy, the icicle looked foul and its beauty was spoiled.

Just so our characters are forming — one little thought or feeling at a time.

If each thought be pure and bright, the soul will be lovely and sparkle with happiness. But if impure and wrong, there will be deformity and wretchedness.

Isn't it important, therefore, that the young lives that have been entrusted to us should be formed with the right character? Shouldn't they be taught the best in order that they may grow the finest? Of course they should. And only you can do this. No one can take your place in developing character in your children and those around you. And don't forget yourself, as well.

Happiness is . . . forming character.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

Dave and Margaret Miller have purchased the former Dunten property on Widney Avenue. She stopped by this week to say that a small Pomeranian of theirs evidently strayed away from home. The dog was just acquired by the Millers for their kids and they would appreciate any information as to its whereabouts. Call 337-5170. The dog is red with black markings.

Jay Loy was out doing his "good deed for the day" last Friday, patching holes in the town streets.

Somehow the list of "blockhead" donors from the Bita General Store has come up missing. Ila Coburn called to inform me that her name was omitted. And she added Leatrice, Bill, Cal and Leah, since she gave $5. I hope we can locate the list because the store had a lot of donors.

I'll bet there's a certain minister in these parts who is a bit "heady" now that the Roman Catholic Church has appointed John Paul as its Pope.

Historic Property To Be Restored

Lloyd and Marie Noel, who operate Noel Auction Sales and the Nosey Nook Gallery of antiques and collectables in Saint Joe, have purchased an old house in Saint Joe and plan to restore it.

Originally the residence of "Doc" and Mrs. Sheffer years ago, the house later became the property of Walter Whitehurst American Legion Post 283 of Saint Joe. In recent years, the post has been virtually inactive and it was decided to dispose of the home.

Structurally, the home provides a break from generally traditional types of floor plans. Located on a high lot at the northwest corner of Third and Jefferson streets, the home has a basement which actually becomes the ground level floor at the rear, due to a marked downhill slope on the lot.

Mrs. Noel said plans for renovating include restoring two porches which have deteriorated through recent years.

Evelyn Hamman of Auburn, granddaughter of the Sheffers, provided the above photo which first appeared in these pages in the April 26, 1973, issue.

"Doc" Barton Sheffer had his office in the home, later moving his office to a building on the main street which is now the west half of Bita General Store.

Senator Lugar Meets With Students

Senator Richard Lugar appeared at an Eastside convocation Thursday morning this week. Scheduled for 9 a.m., the meeting actually began after 10 a.m. due to heavy fog in the Angola area where the Senator had stayed overnight Wednesday.

Student Council president Brian Powell led those attending in the pledge of allegiance after which Merle Wagner, a member of Eastside's faculty and county liaison contact for Senator Lugar, gave brief remarks about the guest speaker before introducing him.

Senator Lugar confined his short talk to the matter of energy and the conflicts of ideas on solutions to the energy problem. He summarized by stating that he felt the problem is not that the nation is running out of energy. The problem is in deciding how to utilize the other available sources and methods of producing energy. He noted that experimenting with the use of old corn in combination with coal has shown the idea to be workable. He was instrumental in getting an Indiana city to try the method and it worked. He pointed out that the use of solar energy is part of that energy-producing process because the sun is needed to grow corn.

After his brief talk, the Senator devoted a longer period to answering questions from the student body. Those questions ranged from energy to freedom to abortion to lowering the "drinking age" to the Equal Rights Amendment. He said he has suported the ERA in the past but there is a constitutional question involved in extending the period allowed in which individual states may ratify the amendment. He said he is against "legalized abortion."

The Senator stated he thought granting certain privileges to young Americans should be done at the same age level. Thus, he thought the age for legal consumption of alcohlic beverages should be 18, since the voting age was lowered to 18. A round of applause brought a word of warning from the Senator, in that the teen-through 25 age bracket is involved in more accidents percentagewise. Those states which have lowered the drinking age have experienced an increase in teen-age accidents.

Senator Lugar answered a question about the performance of President Jimmy Carter thus far with the observation that the President is a hard worker and is sincere in his attempts to follow his ideals in leading the nation. However, the Senator said, President Carter is handicapped in not having previous contacts with the Congress and the many federal agencies, to any great extent.

The convocation ended with Brian thanking the Senator for coming to Eastside and for answering the many questions put to the Senator.

From the editor's desk. . . .

Senator Lugar's Forthrightness

Whenever I hear a politician answer questions, I listen for a "yes," "no," "I'm for" or "I'm against," or an explanation of why a definite answer is not given. If you don't get a direct answer or an explanation, the politician is avoiding the question and is subject to suspicion, in my book.

With that standard, Senator Richard Lugar came out with an "A" for excellence in his meeting with Eastside students Thursday morning. A few of the questions were obviously "loaded" (legalize marijuana?, legalize abortion?, lower drinking age?). But most of the questions were indicative of some serious thinking and a search for answers by many students.

It is sometimes said that the Senator often "goes over the heads" of the average citizen in his manner of expressing himself; being a Rhodes Scholar becomes a burden rather than an asset, in the minds of some people.

If he spoke "over the heads" of the students Thursday, it is partly due to the fact that some of them were talking among themselves rather than listening. A definite—and impolite—murmur could be heard for the final half of the question-and-answer period. Senator Lugar used no "big words"; if any student didn't understand what he was saying, the fault lies elsewhere, not in the Senator. The trouble is, people are in too much of a hurry, there must be something "happening" all the time. However, good government and good citizenship does not come that way; it takes time—time to listen and time to think—or mistakes will be made, as the Senator noted.

The Senator was forthright in his answers, even when he replied that he had not made up his mind on one or two matters.

You may not agree with him, but you know—and the students know—that he is against legalized abortions. (Personally, I partially disagree.) You may not agree with him, but you know that he supports, and has supported in the past, the Equal Rights Amendment. (Personally, I totally disagree.)

Senator Lugar got a round of applause when he said he believes lowering the age for certain privileges ought to mean lowering the age for all privileges. This was in answer to a question about lowering the age to 18 for the legal purchase and consumption of alcoholic beverages.

However, he was honest with the kids and said something like, "Now before you get all enthused about my answer, remember that lowering the age for legal drinking adds to the frequency of automobile accidents, in particular"—or something like that. He could have remained silent and enjoyed the support of those seemingly so interested in being able to buy and consume alcoholic beverages.

But he didn't.

No one took it from there and asked, "Well, then, do you think the voting age should be put back up to 21?" THAT is a logical and reasonable question in view of the auto accident statistics and the differential between "legally" voting and "legally" drinking.

But the question wasn't asked and Senator Lugar did answer the question put to him and added a little warning. In other words, he in effect put a question back to the students, whether they realized it or not. He thus challenged them to do THEIR OWN thinking—which is quite unusual for a politician. But Mr. Lugar is no ordinary politician.

Those who attended the convocation heard some straightforward answers from Senator Lugar. They also heard a man admit that he is like all the other concerned citizens in some matters—no answer because there are many circumstances to be considered.

Early in his brief remarks before the question-and-answer period, he noted that there is need to be careful in making decisions, lest in haste the wrong decision is made. Senator Lugar, by his manner, his easy "chatty" exchange with the students and his frankness in answering questions showed Thursday morning that his approach to representing the people of Indiana is built on deliberate, unhurried, searching thought.

And that's the kind of stuff of which good politicians are made.

—that a "do-it-yourself" kit is available for those couples who want a divorce. Elkhart County Circuit Court Judge David P. Redding compiled a package of blank forms needed to dissolve a marriage. The Indiana state legislature made do-it-yourself divorce possible, and the use of the kit eliminates the need to hire attorneys, provided the separating couple can agree on how to divide the property involved. The judge said the first week the kit was available, 19 persons used the packet and it took only an hour and a half to dispose of all but two cases. A lot of people can't afford $500 in legal fees, the judge said. Attorneys are usually hired when there is a fight over custody of children. Otherwise, 75 to 90 percent of the people have already divided up everything and agree on settlement terms, he said.

—that Navy Seaman Recruit Leonard L. Kinzer of R1 Auburn has completed recruit training at Great Lakes.

The exemption would apply to about 3 million small businesses in low-risk industries, employing about 10 million workers. Indiana's Senator Birch Bayh voted against the relief for small business. Others who voted along with Senator Bayh against small business include such familiar names as Brooke, Byrd, Case, Eagleton, Glenn, Hatfield, Humphrey, Jackson, Javits, Kennedy, McGovern, Metzenbaum, Moynihan, Muskie, Percy, Proxmire, Ribicoff and Talmadge. —that final regulations to ban the sale of candy, soda water, frozen desserts and chewing gum in school cafeterias until after the last lunch period will not be implemented at the beginning of the school year, according to Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman. More than 2,100 comments were received on the proposed regulation. However, the delay is not because the public opposes the idea. The delay is because the public wants the ban to be effected throughout the entire school day and apply to other low nutrient-high calorie foods as well. Those who support the ban far outnumber those who oppose it.

—that Indiana's Governor Otis Bowen has expressed his opposition to Senator Ted Kennedy's proposed national health insurance plan. The cost of the plan would run into tens of billions of dollars, in addition to present federal expenditures.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

If anyone wants one of the old light fixtures from the ball diamond for a yard or security light, I have them at the News Office. The church league is selling them for $10 each, including a 1500-watt bulb. The bulbs have the large screw-in base and if 1500 watts is too much, you can buy lower-watt bulbs at the local hardware. Crow's Rainbow Farm Center already bought a dozen of the units.

I also have several of the cardboard boxes the new units were packed in. The dimensions are 24 x 24 x 27. It's an awkward size to handle, but good for storage. They're free while they last.

Last Sunday's church bulletin put out by Fortress Press, had a particularly appropriate message. It reads:

"DELIGHTFUL JOURNEY

"The Psalmist speaks of delight in the path of the Lord's commandments: 'Lead me in the path of Thy commandments, for I delight in it. Incline my heart to Thy testimonies.'

"But where is the delight in 'Do this!' and 'Don't do that!'? How can a person delight in such rigorous control of behavior, risking judgment for every action? When we stand before God's expectations and measure our lives by His law, we stand condemned, no matter how hard and how honestly we try to obey.

"Yet we, as Christ's people, 'march to a different drummer' down the commandment pathway. Jesus has summarized the law in a love of life—love for God, love for others.

"We find, as we walk this way of love, that life is filled with delightful surprises. We discover that we are not traveling alone. The risen, living Christ walks with us. He has traveled this path before, and He is with us even now.

"We learn that life is built on right relationships rather than on personal striving. Life is more than things. The 'how' of living becomes important. The quantity and quality of our love enriches us and ennobles others. And we sense that it is not so much our love that we share as it is Christ's love being shared through us.

"We discover that the path is not always easy. Love is not always returned in the measure which we give. Sometimes the path of love becomes unbearably painful. So it was with the path of love that led to Calvary-can we expect anything different in our lives?

"And we experience the love of others. God's love comes to us through friends and neighbors and strangers in ways that often surprise us. God's love can be known in the fellowship of believers - in all times and in all places.

"The pathway of law becomes the roadway of love. The commandments are not changed by the law of love, but they are fulfilled by love. And the journey is truly, as the Psalmist says, 'delightful!'"

In case you're interested, the cut used in Auburn Motor Sales' ad this issue is one I found in one of the drawers of an old cabinet in the News Office. I'd guess the cut is 75 years old or more.

Random thoughts—

If a 16-year-old 4-H'er can build a 6½-foot car powered by solar energy cells in the roof (as reported by the National 4-H Council), why can't the auto industry come up with a solar-powered vehicle able to accommodate large loads? Why must there be a government grant for every potential solution to a problem???

If teacher salaries have been increasing about 9% each year (their union spokesmen never include the increment raise included in every salary schedule amounting to around $250 a year increase in pay for each additional year of teaching), why can the Indiana State Teachers Association executive director Ron Jensen put out public statements such as: the beginning salary for Indiana teachers is over $2,000 behind the cost of living over the past 10 years (August 16, 1978)???

Why is it that our state legislators allow teachers the extra "vacation" in winter months when bad weather closes schools, not requiring that the lost days be even partially made up???

If independence and self-reliance are American virtues, why does Indiana Senator Birch Bayh talk about "voters are saying they are sick and tired of government wasting their tax dollars by not effectively utilizing the resources available"—and two paragraph later in the news release say "let's not forget that because of the present state administration, Hoosier taxpayers are only getting back $1 for every $1.77 sent to Washington to fund vital agriculture programs"? Is he not one of those who leap to the fore with some kind of legislation for every little bump on the rocky road of life??? Is he not, therefore, responsible for the waste of tax dollars???

With government agencies holding "public" meetings on wastewater soil conservation, flood control, etc., etc., etc., and with the average citizen (1) not having the ability to attend these meetings because of employment obligations and (2) not having the time to study EVERY facet of daily living subjected to government study, have we not now become a society dominated by government employees whose practical experience is more often than not negligible but they make far-reaching decisions? Have we not then become a vast bureaucracy of bureaucracies???

If honesty is the best policy, how can we explain the following paragraph from a news release of August 21, 1978, from Senator Bayh, one of the most spend-minded members of Congress you could find for the past 15 or 16 years or so:

"As a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, I am acutely aware of the need to keep federal spending at managable proportions, and to be sure that the monies we do spend are spent wisely. We were able to pass a transportation appropriations bill that is more than a half-billion dollars below the Administration's original budget request. As the other funding bills move through the Senate, I will be looking for similar responsible and meaningful ways to guarantee that the taxpayer's get their money's worth."

Note: that half-billion "cut" in the budget is ONE TENTH OF ONE PERCENT — chicken feed, so to speak.

That's a good example of how your tax dollars have been "protected" for lo these many years of liberal leadership in the Congress.

If Ray Gfeller's parents had named him after movie star Rock Hudson, he would be known as Rock Gfeller.

—Ha — that's rich!

— No — that's Ray . . . . Rich is his dad.

Town Directory To Be Published Soon

A "Saint Joe Directory" is in the near future.

For several months, a directory has been in the planning stage at the News Office for distribution to every household in town, plus possible listing of rural residences. The book will contain information on home locations, who to contact for various services, general information about the functions of local government and the responsibilities of citizens, listing of town ordinances of immediate and everyday situations and more.

With the influx of many new people in this area, the need for such a directory has been recognized by various citizens.

Preliminary solicitation of information was begun early this summer by The News. When the local town board completes its current project to number all residences in town, this information will be incorporated into the directory listings.

Not all questions or situations will be solved or answered by the directory. However, its use should help to inform the public about public responsibilties and obligations—and privileges— as well as the responsibilties and obligations of town officials.

The directory will also include some historic information and appropriate photos.

Advertising space will be available to town, area and county businesses who wish to have their products and services known in every home.

Orders can be placed now by calling 868-2891, 337-5171 or 925-3407.

New Member On Elevator Staff

Bob Beerbower of the Saint Joe Elevator has announced the creation of a new position at the local firm and the man who will fill that position.

Charlie Mack, formerly of Alexandria, Indiana, is the elevator's field service manager. He is a former biology teacher, having taught at Rensselaer and Hamilton schools. He has also been a sales representative for an animal health products firm and was employed for a time at an elevator in Elwood.

Charlie began at the local firm Tuesday of this week and is looking for a place to reside in this community. He is not married. He says he needs an apartment or room.

Town Board

The town board of Saint Joe met Wednesday this week at the fire hall.

Present at the meeting were board president Floyd Coburn, board members Loretta Loy and Fred Rayle, clerk-treasurer Emma Frank, town attorney Brad Thomas, dog warden Betty Baker and residents Margaret Miller, Wanda Coburn, Chuck Rosenbury and Ted Haberkorn.

Mrs. Miller reported that a dog which she and her family had recently obtained strayed from home. It was picked up by Mrs. Baker, who is now serving as dog warden. When the owners did not pick the dog up after four days, the dog was sold to another town resident for $22.50, the charges for housing and holding the dog for three days.

Mrs. Miller said she had inquired of several people about a dog warden and no one knew an appointment had been made. Larry Mason was dog warden until last spring when personal activities did not allow enough time to continue to serve.

Mrs. Miller said no one she talked to knew that a new dog warden had been appointed.

Mr. Coburn asked the editor of the paper if any notice had been published in the paper about the new dog warden. The answer was no, nothing had been given to the paper.

Mrs. Frank read the ordinance passed by the board several months ago about control of animals in the town. The ordinance provides for fines if town residents do not control their animals. It was not stated when the board changed the former $3 and $5 reclaiming fee to the $7.50 per day charge.

Apparently Mrs. Baker was appointed prior to the August 28 budget-approval meeting of the board but no public announcement was made of the appointment.

A discussion, was held about a house numbering plan to assist those agencies in particular which provide emergency services, such as the fire department, the EMS and county and state police.

The plan calls for numbering to begin at the east end of town for east-west streets and at the south edge for north-south streets.

A numbering plan appears on a 1929 map of the town, with north-south and east-west designations. However, house numbers were never actually placed on houses or other buildings. The new plan calls for placing of numbers on all such structures.

Lengthy discussion was held concerning a suit filed against Rick Wannemacher. The suit concerns violations of town ordinances and procedures related to curbing, alley right-of-way, fencing around pools and removal and replacement of sidewalks.

Junk cars were discussed and the board plans to take action under terms of the local junk car ordinance.

Efforts will be made also to eliminate on-street parking and burning of trash and garbage at a local damaged-goods-discount outlet in town.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Ted,

I am writing to you about our new dog catcher, and our town board.

I would think it's the town board's job to notify the people of the town who the new dog catcher is. And to do that they should tell you.

And I believe the matter of the Millers' dog should be thought of. The Millers would have come and got their dog the day she was lost. But not knowing who the dog catcher was, they couldn't.

So is it fair for them to lose a dog just because the town board didn't notify the town of the new dog catcher?.

So think of it, Ted, and of the people of this town. If it was your dog, would you think it was right?

Local MS Drive Nets $238.94

Residents of Saint Joe and Concord Township responded to the muscular dystrophy solicitation last weekend with total contributions of $238.94.

Local firemen who partici pated in soliciting included Fred Rayle, Sr., Fred Rayle, Jr., Chuck Laux, Bill Mansfield, John Sechler, Joe Robinson, Harold Yeiser, Butch Coburn and Steve Monroe.

Also helping were a bunch of boys and girls, all of whom played a big part in making the collection a success.

A special "thanks" goes to all who contributed.

The department has expressed its appreciation through Steve Monroe for assistance given by Krafft Gravel Pit at Spencerville and the Mako sport shop of Gary Norton. The two provided materials for the preparation of sand bags to be used in certain emergency situations.

'Dog Days' - And That's No Joke

Early this year, I was pleased, and I think the town board was, too, that an open discussion about a breakdown in communications between the board and this paper had been mended. I was confident that there would be cooperation in letting residents of Saint Joe know about town affairs, that the board members would provide information without the need to be asked.

Events since that time, however, have destroyed that rosy picture. And it is difficult to understand why, after experiences in the recent past with problems due to an uninformed public, there is not a thought of "let's get it in the local paper" in matters pertaining to town residents. If only Butch or Loretta or Fred or Emma had made a phone call to tell about the appointment of a new dog warden, or had sent a note or stopped with the message, the mixed feelings of some local people probably wouldn't now exist. (In fairness, it should be noted that the clerk-treasurer stated at Wednesday's meeting that she did not know of the appointment until the August 28 meeting.)

It was stated at the board meeting Wednesday that several notices have been posted on the east door of the fire hall since the new dog warden took over. My shop is right across the street. I look at that building every day—and I haven't seen a piece of paper on the door for weeks. If I had, I could have told Margaret Miller about it when she asked to have a notice published about their lost dog. I could have told her there is a new dog warden—and so could the several other people she asked—if public announcement of the appointment had been made in the local paper.

"You should attend board meetings to know about these things" has been thrown at me several times the past few years. But that statement is full of holes because, if the clerk-treasurer doesn't know what's going on much of the time, how can an ordinary citizen know??

How is anyone to know there is a $7.50-per-day fee for board of dogs picked up in town, if no particular effort is made by the board to notify the public through the local paper? How can taxpayers say what they think about the use of revenue sharing funds when no notice is given to the local paper of a meeting REQUIRED BY LAW to allow public participation?

The meeting on revenue sharing was announced by posting of a notice in business places by the board and/or clerk-treasurer. Why no notice to this paper???

State law REQUIRES publication of ordinances and laws related to the town in newspapers (or newspaper) PUBLISHED in the town. The law does not say "circulated" in the town; it says "published." And that means The Saint Joe News.

If the board wants to post notices in public places, that's fine. But the use of the local newspaper is required because the local newspaper is the only permanent public record readily available to the public.

The annual reports for the years 1976 and 1977 were not published in this paper. Therefore, there is no knowledge in the minds of town residents of the manner in which money was actually spent these two years.

A new ordinance concerning control of pets was not published in this paper, so public knowledge of its existence is very small.

Notice of a revenue sharing meeting was not published in this paper, so townspeople had little if any knowledge of the opportunity to express themselves.

Please note that I am not saying residents WOULD attend these meetings, any more than I would say pet owners would completely obey the ordinance if they knew about it. What I am saying is that notice of meetings and actions taken at meetings is required in our free society, even if no one ever shows up. Town officials may think I am picking on them in this matter. However, the most important point is that these same officials are PROTECTED by letting the public know about meetings and proposals to be considered at meetings. They then can say, "Since no one showed up, we assumed our proposed action was acceptable to the public."

It is significant that during the town board's discussion of the house numbering project for the town, attorney Brad Thomas strongly emphasized the need to inform town residents about the program, invite them to the meeting or meetings at which the project will be discussed. That way, he said, you will get public cooperation in completing the project.

—And that's what I am saying about ALL town matters—inform the public so they know what is going on. By so doing, you remove some of the rough spots in handling town affairs. What should be added is that just getting people to the meetings is half the job. The other half is—listen to what they say and don't be afraid of making a change if a flaw is brought out. There isn't a law or ordinance yet that has been perfect with regard to civil matters.

Glasses Sought For Needy

Volunteer Optometric Services to Humanity (V.O.S.H.) is asking the citizens of this area to donate their old prescription glasses in order to help the less fortunate people of the world. V.O.S.H. is a non-profit organization consisting of approximately 200 optometrists who collect used prescription glasses and distribute them to underdeveloped countries.

Dr. S. P. Bennett of Auburn is a member of V.O.S.H.. His office will be collecting old prescription glasses in coming weeks. The glasses will then be sent to Indiana University at Bloomington where optometric students will catalog them according to prescription.

Members of V.O.S.H. have in the past traveled to the Dominican Republic, Navajo Indian Reservation, Haiti and Honduras to make professional eye health care available to less fortunate people.

Those who have prescription glasses to donate, no matter what their condition, are asked to drop them off at Dr. Bennett's office at 207 North Jackson Street in Auburn. Or, in the Riverdale area, they may be dropped off at the News Office to be delivered to Dr. Bennett.

FOUND—2 sets of keys, one on Jefferson Street, the other at the mobile home court. Owners can claim them at the News Office.

Over-the-counter medicines and drugs

It is very important for you to realize that non-prescription, over-the-counter, products are drugs. And, as such, it is very possible for one of these drugs to interfere or have an interaction with a prescription medicine you might be taking.

Always inform your doctor of any non-prescription drugs that you are taking. And, it is also a good idea to mention these to your pharmacist when you are having a prescription filled. We can help you to use needed medicines more intelligently.

Senior Citizens And 'GO'

"GO" is a not-for-profit agency providing two distinct services to seniors in a nine county service area. These services include employment opportunities and supportive services.

"GO" was established by the Northeast Area III Council on Aging which monitors the program and is the source of Title III funding. Other funding sources include Title IX, a provision of the "Older Americans Act."

Employment services are provided for persons 55 or older. "GO" matches employees with employers seeking to fulfill the needs of the older adult. As a service to employers, applicants are screened and references checked.

Employment opportunities are provided by both the public and the private sectors of the community.

Potential employers are encouraged to register job openings with specific job descriptions, hours, salary schedule, and contact person with the office. Federal guidelines involving a minimum hourly wage are required.

Supportive services for persons 60 or older are provided by "GO", and include home-chore, home repair, and lawn care. Supportive services allow for older adults to remain in their own home. People of any age will be accepted to supply such services, and volunteers are welcomed.

While "GO" was established by the Northeast Area III Council on Aging, it is now a separate entity with its own board of directors. These are volunteers from the nine county service area who are concerned with the aging process, and are representative of retired and active business and professional persons, service providers, and recipients of services.

For more information contact the "GO" agency toll free at 1-800-552-3852.

A counselor will be in Auburn Thursday of each week. Call 925-0917 for more details.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

Lynn Lake is recovering from recent back surgery. His "rehabilitation" includes walking, walking and some more walking. That's why you have seen him so often recently.

And he was the first to bring in some old glasses for the project announced in this paper in the previous issue.

I don't know—I wonder if the grand jury which indicted the Ford Motor Company for alleged criminal negligence in designing the Pinto (the gas tanks have ruptured in rear-end collisions) hasn't opened a can of worms. I don't contend that there was no design flaw. But I wonder how many manufactured items in total can be considered "flawless."

If Pinto owners can sue the company for criminal damages, why shouldn't the employees who helped build the cars also be sued for aiding and abetting? There has been considerable publicity about the matter for months, but those employees keep on building Pintos. They can't say they "didn't know." If "the company" is a "criminal," so are the employees.

—That's like buying a late model car for $500 from some individual then saying "I didn't know it was stolen" when the authorities show up.

I think somebody played a joke on a young lady who called the other night to ask if we would hold a "coffee" for John Walda who is running against incumbent Dan Quayle for Fourth District Representative. The young lady said she was somewhat unacquainted with this community, had the John Masons set for a "coffee" and wanted another such informal gathering in the Saint Joe-Spencerville area.

When I told her that I thought someone was playing a joke on her, and on us, after making a couple of suggestions about others she could contact, I said I thought it was intended as a joke because some people consider me to be pretty radical. Her gracious reply was, "I don't think you sound radical at all. You've been very helpful."

—Dirty old men usually are very helpful to sweet young things.

(No, Jane—I didn't mean "thing" literally!)

Public Input Sought For Local Directory

To assist The News in preparing for publication of a Saint Joe Directory, area residents are asked to make suggestions about the proposed content of the publication. While aimed primarily at filling the needs of town residents, such a publication can be of benefit to those living in the area surrounding the town. Perhaps the Spencerville community should be included in the directory, with a description of the community including a listing of residences and businesses and the occupants.

With a tentative guaranteed distribution of at least 500, the directory is planned as a permanent-type of publication, one to be kept in the home or business for future reference.

Contents tentatively planned include—

Listing of Saint Joe residences according to the new numbering plan being prepared by the Saint Joe town board;

Names of those owning and/or occupying those places;

A brief history of the town;

Photos to show Saint Joe, past and present;

Listing of town ordinances which are most involved in the everyday affairs of the town (stray dog and animal ordinances, junk car ordinance, weed ordinance, waterworks ordinance, trash collection ordinance);

Review of citizen responsibilities, obligations and privileges;

Listing of community organizations;

Listing of area churches;

Listing of who to call for various questions and needs (the town board, town clerk-treasurer, mental health, Red Cross, Emergency Medical Services, United Fund, etc.);

Recreation programs and facilities;

List of local township trustees and advisory boards.

Because of the scope of the directory, suggestions are being sought from the local public concerning the contents of the book. Suggestions can be made by writing or calling the News Office at Saint Joe.

The Riverdale area has not had a "population explosion." Yet it has had a significant increase in the number of new people and new residences. The need for a directory has been apparent for some time, and The News began planning the publication in 1976. A start was made early this summer in compiling information about the town. Mark Haberkorn gathered the first compilation of information. However, much remains yet to be done, and the News Office requests suggestions from area residents since those residents will benefit from the information and know first-hand what the average household requires in general information about the community.

'Letters To Ed' Help Clear Unfortunate 'Dog Situation'

Sept. 12, 1978

I would like to extend my apologies to the citizens of the town of St. Joe, to Mrs. Baker, the new dog warden, to Mrs. Miller for the loss of her dog, to the St. Joe News for not notifying him of Mrs. Baker's appointment, and to the other board members for the embarrassment caused them. It was my responsibility to advise Mr. Haberkorn of Mrs. Baker's appointment and I forgot to do it.

Mrs. Loretta Jean Loy
Trustee, Town Board

Though Mrs. Loy asked to have the letter printed "in a box and send the bill to me," we are presenting the letter in this manner. Since Ye Ed uses these columns to say what he thinks, it shouldn't cost readers anything to say what they wish to say.
—And it takes a "big woman" to say, "I'm sorry—it was my fault." —Ed.

Dear Ted

I am writing to you about your Sept. 7, 1978, "Dog Days and That's No Joke." Well, you're right, it's no joke. Did you look on the north side of the fire hall? Because there were several notices on the fire hall door. No one told me that you had to put them on the east side. The next time you write something in your paper, would you please make sure that you know what you are talking about? You sure did make me look bad and I'm not.

The only reason I took the job is because my dog got shot and I felt that if I took the job that maybe I could save the life of a dog or cat that someone loved as much as I did my dog and I don't have to tell you that it still hurts.

I think what hurt me the most is that three days before he was killed, someone blinded him and he couldn't even see who killed him and I don't want that to happen to anyone. I don't know who did it and I don't want to know. I just hope that the one that did it can live with their self because I sure couldn't.

It was unfortunate that Mrs. Miller's dog got sold. I really feel bad about it. I know how she feels but at least her dog is still alive. Would it be if we didn't have a dog warden? Maybe my dog would have still been alive today if we had a dog warden when my dog got out. I'm only supposed to keep the dogs three days and if no one claims them, I'm supposed to take them to Dr. Hornbacker and he puts them to sleep. I thank the Town Board for letting me keep the dogs longer. They don't have to let me, you know, and the people of St. Joe should think about that. So far I've found three dogs a home that no one claimed that I've kept over three days. I owe the thanks to the Town Board of St. Joe. It's just too bad that they're not appreciated more.

Your dog warden of St. Joe who loves animals,
Betty R. Baker

At the town board meeting at which this matter was discussed, board president Butch Coburn asked if notices had been posted on the door. The answer was yes. It appeared to us that he pointed to the east door, hence our comment last week about not seeing any notices for weeks. Past practice had established it as "the" door in posting notices about the pick-up of dogs. The dog warden didn't know that it was, we didn't know that it wasn't! Having had a little experience in dealing with the public, we understand fully the "hell" the new dog warden is going through.
Lack of communication—failure to use the local newspaper—has once again caused a problem situation, as has been the case for the past half dozen years. And every time, someone is hurt. —Ed.

EHS Harriers

—Charles Ray, reporter

The DeKalb Eastside cross country team dropped its first meet of the season, but raised its record to 5-1 Tuesday at Shoaff Park at Fort Wayne.

The local harriers stopped Churubusco 37-67 but lost to a strong Leo squad 26-37.

Senior Butch McBride turned in a strong performance for the Blazers as he placed second to R. Smith of Leo by only a single second. Ken Ray was next for Eastside in the fourth spot, followed by Dave Blair in the fifth position. Eugene Evans and Lance Billings rounded out Eastside's top five in the 12th and 14th spots.

Earlier this year, Eastside had posted victories over DeKalb Central, Angola, Hamilton and Prairie Heights. The Blazers nipped the Barons 27-28 due to a strong performance by Blair. They edged a much improved Angola squad 27-29 and romped over Hamilton 21-40 as well as rolled past the Panthers 15-42.

Eastside also finished ninth out of a field of 24 in the Churubusco invitation meet. McBride again led the Blazers in this meet as he placed 21st with Ray coming in 30th.

Other members of the team include Gilbert Ortiz, Dave Drake Sonny Salinas, Steve Billings, Mike Camp, Rich Timmerman and Jon Hollabaugh.

Jim White is coach of the cross country squad.

Publications' Postage Burden Due To Shunning Of History

This epistle is written under the influence of extreme agitation. It concerns a situation related to but one individual—me— and the cost of using the U. S. mail system. I intentionally refrain from using the so-called proper title "U. S. Postal Service" because the system is now more of harassment than service. "Service" means doing everything you possibly can to fulfill someone's need. The postal system no longer can rightfully lay claim to the term "service." Once mail gets beyond the small local post offices such as ours, it becomes a matter of what reason can be found for NOT delivering the mail as time passes. And even at the local level, there are times when little "picky-picky" matters are met because the local postmasters are obligated to uphold regulations. If they fail to do so, they face a reprimand.

This particular instance of anger on my part comes after having received the statement for sending The News for the month of August. The bill was just over $50.00—or $10 a week.

That's a 35% increase in but two months. The bill for June (six issues) was just over $37.-00.

It makes me burn to know that postal workers are bellyaching that a 19% pay increase and some other goodies aren't enough for a new three-year contract. Here I am busting my . . . to pay a whopping postage bill (along with other bills) and they aren't satisfied with an offer of an average pay of close to $20,000 a year with the proposed new contract—note that it is AVERAGE pay they're talking about.

It may not sound like much —$10 a week to mail over 650 newspapers. If that many first class letters were sent, it would cost $97.50!

$10 a week is peanuts compared to the postage bill of the large private publications. But relatively speaking, it is comparable to something like thousands of dollars for the larger publications.

Note - newspapers are not and never have been (until recent years) in the same category as business letters or personal correspondence. Newspapers and other subscription publications are "special." If newspapers had not been handled by the postal system at a low rate from the start, there never would have been small town weekly newspapers from the start of the era of growth and westward expansion in the 1800's and carrying over into the 1900's. When printed publications were given special low rates, it was due to the recognition of the importance of providing mass communications in a free society. It was recognized that every citizen—EVERY citizen—has a duty to help pay for the distribution of printed news matter; it's an obligation of every American.

Several years ago, the idea was implanted in the minds of the Congress that those who use the mails should "pay their own way." The postal system was made an "independent" agency and it's goal was to get the postal system "in the black," to eliminate the subsidy from general taxes which had been utilized to pay the bill for maintaining the system.

This "pay your own way" idea was applied to all classes of mail. And what is so odd is that the idea was put into practice with the support of a Congressional majority which had, in other matters, totally ignored the "pay your own way" theory. The Congress had, instead, passed bill after bill after bill TAKING AWAY the obligation of the people to pay their own way, setting up dozens of government programs and agencies to provide funds for this or that "hardship" in one sector of the public or another. "Pay your own way" has been a "no-no" for years under Congress' majority.

But when it came to the post office, suddenly it was "unfair" to have the public pay the postage in part for another user of the mails. And so we have an "independent" agency of the past several years which has not been able to stay "independent" and has had to continue to rely on general funds to cover postal deficits.

Now there is talk of putting the postal system back under the direct control of Congress. That's like closing the barn door after the horse is out.

The tremendous increase in the cost of operating the mail system is due to (1) Congress relinquishing it's authority over the postal system and (2) acceptance of the idea that every mail user should "pay his own way" regardless of the type of matter being sent through the mail. Under the "independent" system, it has been convenient for members of Congress to "pass the buck" when a complaint is registered about the postal system. I know; I've had letters from Congressmen in the past saying "as you know, the Congress no longer has jurisdiction over the postal department." Actually, that statement is false—the Congress never did relinquish its control or it couldn't be talking about taking the postal system back under its wing.

Please note—the two reasons mentioned above DID NOT include the matter of pay raises for postal workers. After all, if Congress is going to vote itself a whopping pay raise (as it did), how can we expect other government workers and those in the private sector to ask for less???

At the same time, Congress has voted for itself increases in the amount of mail each member can send under the franking privilege (mail sent "postage free"—but it's paid for by —guess who—us taxpayers).

The combination of those two actions serves to indicate that the Congressional majority believes it knows best what the public should be informed about.

Sure, the present demand for another pay raise irks me—but that's another story. Right now the important thing is that if the public wonders why there are so few small independent weekly newspapers (like this one) in the United States today, it should be remembered that in the past two decades at least, Congress has allowed the reduced cost for mailing newspapers to be eliminated because Congress has forgotten one of the basic essentials of a republic — to provide at public expense (partially through general taxation) the means for disseminating public information.

If this paper ceases publication, a prime factor will be the tremendous increase in the cost of sending it through the mail. I am going to try to keep it going; but the road is getting rougher all the time.

Just a few years ago, the "Waterloo Press" (the oldest newspaper in DeKalb County) ceased publication, due in part to harassment over postal fees.

Ten years ago, it cost less than a dollar a week to send out this "voice of independence." Thirty years ago it cost about 26 cents a week—that's right—26 cents. $10 a week is a hardship on this paper, and I don't mind telling anybody that it makes me mad!

Suggestion—why not have the government guarantee small town independent weekly newspapers something like $15,000 a year minimum (plus a built-in cost of living increase, naturally)? That way the postal department can charge what it does at present, the postal workers can have their pay raise—and everybody will be happy. And the guaranteed income will help preserve the small town "voice of independence."

Breaking the "sugar habit"

All research signs seem to indicate that sugar is an addictive and potentially destructive drug. And yet, the average person consumes about 125 pounds of sugar every year. According to accepted standards of diagnosing, our entire society is actually pre-diabetic.

You should know about the potential dangers of too much sugar in your family's diet. Discuss it with your family physician and your pharmacist. They can offer you helpful suggestions for breaking the sugar habit.

Mildred Jarrett and Nancy Coburn stopped in this week. Nancy now lives at Fort Wayne and stopped in renew her subscription. Retired Teachers Meet

—Doris Stuck, reporter

The September luncheon meeting of the DeKalb County Retired Teachers Association was held August 6 at Platners.

Harlan Moore, president, greeted 51 members, expressing his pleasure that so many were present. He commented how the strength of this organization offered an unexcelled opportunity for retired teachers to have their ideas and opinions heard and perhaps influence members of lobbying interests at the state legislature regarding policies pertaining to school programs and teacher benefits.

The group was honored to have as their guest speaker Helen Blackledge, retired vice-president of the I.R.T.A. Also present was Mildred Meese, membership chairman of the Fort Wayne association.

Miss Blackledge quoted the founders' admonition that justified the organization's purpose: be here; be here together; think things together.

Retired teachers' voices of experience need to be heard and can be a powerful force when presented as a united group. The members agreed with her statement that we all believe in the power of quality education tempered with understanding and constructive discipline. "Back to basics" was unanimously approved.

Mrs. Blackledge also discussed the problems of retirees, such as help with their financial needs, a feeling of not being needed and loneliness. As an effort to make others feel worthwhile, the group was urged to seek out non-members and encourage them to participate in the association's activities. She stressed the importance of working as a unit can be a very effective motivation to support public education in making school programs known to the public.

Her concluding remarks included: "One enjoys life when you are meeting and sharing the challenges and contributions vital to solving problems that not only face us today but will continue into the future. Retirement can be that challenge. It should be the fullest utilization of a person's talents, a fulfillment that provides a feeling of being needed in our society and a real chance to help in program planning by keeping informed. Retirement —not FROM, but TO—service."

Higher Pay Means Lower Pay-----?

One of the dangers within a free society is that adjustments are usually not made until a given situation reaches a crisis. Then drastic measures are required in order to "straighten things out" or a disaster occurs in which people are forced to adjust by the situation itself.

I wonder how long it is going to take—or how big a financial disaster must occur—before the unionized workers wake up to the fact that they are being "taken for a ride" by their own leaders. The widespread occurrence of strikes—an increasing occurrence, it appears—indicates that the agitation resorted to by top labor leaders and some—"some," not all—of their local unions has successfully blinded the average worker to an economic fact of life which does not require a college degree to comprehend; it just takes a look around at what is happening.

That "fact of life" is:

Every pay increase, every new or expanded fringe benefit—means the worker has less purchasing power. He or she may have more dollars, but those dollars buy less and less every time the laborer gets more. Then the non-union sector—small businesses, the self-employed—must adjust their income upward in order to compete for skilled or unskilled labor, plus the increased cost of living. —And thus, we all are in the whirlpool together—not by choice necessarily, but more by the pressure of "keeping up."

"Inflation" is the word.

I am not "anti-union." I have always believed that an employee generally needs some kind of protection. Helping one another is basic to our nation's concept of individual liberty. That "help" includes protection in one's job.

I don't think most employers are in business to reap tremendous profits while workers labor in a "sweatshop." But abuses do occur. Unfortunately, the abuses get more headlines than the good things in employment. You hear about a plant going to piece work and the burden it places on the workers (according to the workers). But when do you hear about the paid vacations, extended as the employee remains with the company up to a certain point? Do you hear much about the profit-sharing plans many businesses, small and large, have set up for their employees? Do you hear much about Christmas gifts, or bonuses? Do you hear about health care benefits including prescriptions? Not very often. It seems the more received, the more wanted.

George Meany gets headlines and several column inches for photos when he makes a speech from time to time. Though some columnists point out the holes in Mr. Meany's agitation against management, not every one reads these columns. They read what is thrust before them in headlines, rather than dig a little deeper on the opinion pages of newspapers.

Mr. Meany is guilty of outright distortion of fact in much of his effort. For instance, when it was suggested months ago that unions lower their demands and business hold down its prices, Mr. Meany said the suggestion was not fair to labor. Why should labor make a first move, was his reply. Well, it's the increase in the cost of labor that raises prices, because labor is what we are paying for no matter what goods or services are involved. The raw materials are free. Coal doesn't cost anything; it's free, lying there in the ground. Iron ore doesn't cost anything; it's free, lying there in the ground. Wood doesn't cost anything; it's standing there in the form of trees; and trees are free.

It is impossible to separate "labor" and "materials" because "materials" in useful form require labor.

In short, natural resources are free. It's the developing, refining, extracting, shaping and so on that determine the "materials" cost.

With several years of "plenty," during which two or three generations have been born and grown up, it is difficult to impress many of the younger generation that what they have is quite possibly not really theirs. When the federal government spends more than it takes in and our national debt increases, the possessions which our people consider their own are really not theirs at all. If we had to settle accounts for every man, woman and child in the United States today, to pay off the national debt on a per capita basis, thousands of families would end up owning a fraction of what they call "their own" today. I know some people will say "we owe it to ourselves; his argument isn't legitimate." But those debt-dollars of the federal government are mine and yours just as surely as the loan at the bank or the mortgage on the house—because those debt-dollars were issued for our "benefit."

Just to play with figures a bit—a $500 billion debt divided by 200 million people comes out to $2,500 per person. If you had to settle up today for $2,500 for every member of your family, what would you have left?

In a like way, the demands fostered by a small segment of union leadership—but it's powerful—are adding to every Americans' liabilities, not to their assets. In an everyday application, higher wages and added cost-of-living pay increases put workers in higher income brackets and that means higher income taxes and higher Social Security taxes. And the dollars that are left over buy less every time a pay raise or added fringe benefit is given.

Though people are often heard complaining about what is happening, they do not apply it to themselves. Too many are enjoying the fast ride and not slowing down for the curve ahead, even when a danger sign is seen. Thus, we have the hazard inherent in a free society, that danger being the tendency to not want to stop a good time.

When we had the gas and energy "shortage" a few winters ago (I'm not going to argue as to whether the "shortage" was real or artificial), people cut down on energy use. They found out they could get along without a lot of things related to manufactured energy.

But look around today. The lights are back on, bright and plentiful as ever, the automobiles are more plentiful and the use of them is back to "normal," and luxuries are getting as much attention as necessities. We're afraid to develop new energy sources because of the fear of people losing jobs, forgetting that new developments create jobs.

It's not a very bright picture overall. And a few top leaders in the labor organization are not helping any by inciting the average worker to expect or demand more reward without putting out any more work units per time unit.

It bears repeating, again—and again—and again—every pay or fringe benefit increase "won" by the average worker automatically guarantees that the worker will be able to buy less.

Youth Honor Adults

18 senior citizens from the Coburn Corners Church were royally entertained Saturday night, September 16, by the congregation's youth group. Lynn Hart, youth minister, was chairman.

The meeting was two-fold. First they fed our bodies to a ham supper, plus a salad bar and pie. Everything was delicious. The youth and older people sat together and all were introduced.

Then we returned to the sanctuary for the spiritual part of the program. Patty Hart played as we were seated and sang a religious song. Three girls sang two beautiful numbers.

Then Roy Williams preached a brief, humorous and very serious sermon concerning things we all need to know.

School Board

The school board of the DeKalb eastern district met Monday in regular session.

A resignation was accepted from Dorothy Whitney. She had filed suit against the board after not being rehired due to the board's need to cut back on expenditures due to decreased student enrollment. The board re-hired her for the current year but she resigned because circumstances "didn't work out." The suits reportedly are still pending.

Contracts were signed for teachers Sharon Fox and Gail Bratton, activity bus driver John Reinhart and maintenance supervisor Virgil Fiedler.

Attendance figures were reported to show a loss of 38 students in enrollment compared to last year. Full time enrollment is now 1547 in the eastern district.

Board president Norman Kinsey suggested that the board consider naming the present football field "Cole Field" in memory of the late Kenneth Cole who served as superintendent in the district for several years. The matter will probably be decided at a future board meeting.

Other matters discussed included kindergarten bus runs and trampoline safety, these to be given further consideration at a future meeting.

Breaking the "sugar habit"

All research signs seem to indicate that sugar is an addictive and potentially destructive drug. And yet, the average person consumes about 125 pounds of sugar every year. According to accepted standards of diagnosing, our entire society is actually pre-diabetic.

You should know about the potential dangers of too much sugar in your family's diet. Discuss it with your family physician and your pharmacist. They can offer you helpful suggestions for breaking the sugar habit.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

A red car zipped past the "yield" sign at the fire hall at about 35 mph. Erwin Rinard was coming up Railroad Street and saw the car, too. When we conversed about the incident, he mentioned that the stop signs at School Street and Jefferson Street are not heeded quite frequently.

The stop sign on Railroad Street at the News Office is ignored on almost a daily basis. An older pickup zipped through it Monday, a car Tuesday and a newer pickup with cap Wednesday.

I'm not talking about slowing down and not stopping; I'm talking about going through the intersection at 15, 20, 30 and occasionally more mph.

What does it take?—some child on a bike splattered on the pavement?—a two-car smashup?—before drivers heed the stop and yield signs???

For those who feel confident they can see whether traffic is coming or not in going through the intersection, remember that the pilots of two airplanes, one a commercial airliner the other a small private aircraft, knew they were in the same airfield-approach area a week ago. But more than 150 people are dead now because the aircraft collided and no one seems to know why. The pilots and the control tower THOUGHT they had visual and radio control of the situation.

77 At Reunion

77 graduates, former students and friends of the formed Concord Township (St. Joe) High School gathered Sunday, September 24, for a reunion. A pot-luck dinner was served at noon.

Of the 60-year class, those present were Pauline Andress Miller, Verne Monroe and William Quance. Of those graduating 50 years ago, Edward Kimes, Dorothy Ginther Condrey were present. Several others who were at one time members of that class were also honored.

Greetings were read from MM "Bud" Miser and George Simanton.

Officers for the new year are Frank Shull of New Haven, president; Harriett Oberlin of Saint Joe, vice-president; Evalyn Hamman of Auburn, secretary; and Paul Fetters of Saint Joe treasurer.

The reunion will be held at the Conservation Club grounds again next year on the third Sunday in September. Class members are urged to start now to alert those who may be interested in attending. The group now has pictures of every one of the graduating classes. These pictures are displayed each year.

Letters.....

Dear Mr. Haberkorn,

You aren't the only one who is wise to Bayh! Thought you might enjoy the enclosed column I clipped from another independent weekly newspaper.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Darla McCammon

P.S. In case you're wondering —we'd rather pay more for your paper than have you on Uncle Sam's payroll too! The cost of THAT could be astronomical!

The article referred to appears in "The Sword of the Lord," an "independent Christian weekly," published in Murfreesboro, Tennessee. It says:

"REVENUE SHARING"

"We have always thought it strange that Washington would make such a big thing out of what has been called 'revenue sharing.' This system is the one whereby Uncle Sam allows some of the tax goodies he has taken from John Q. Public to go back to the states. (Guess no politician is smart enough to let it remain in the state in the first place, thereby saving the huge 'handling charge' Uncle takes out!)

"Over two-fifths of the states sent MORE to Washington in taxes for federal grant aid last year than they got back in grants. According to the private Tax Foundation Inc. in New York City, 21 states were on the short end of the stick.

"This columnist makes his home in Indiana and that state had the 'federal shaft' stuck in the deepest. For every $1 Indiana got from Washington in U.S. grant assistance, it cost Indiana taxpayers $1.43. Even the kids in kindergarten should be able to detect a deficiency in that form of financing!

"One of Indiana's senators, Birch Bayh, is up for re-election soon and he desperately wants another 6 years on the Washington gravy train (in fact, he wants to get in the White House—something we would consider as tragic as a Ted Kennedy or a George McGovern being there), so he is stumping the political circuit, making speeches you wouldn't believe.

"For example, in one speech Senator Bayh—who is one of Washington's strongest liberals, voting for every wild giveaway plan conceivable—told his audience that California's vote on Proposition 13 was what he and other Democrats had been saying for a long time: taxes are too high! We could hardly believe our ears—this from a man who is as responsible as any single person in Washington for their being so high (and they would be even higher if some of his giveaways hadn't been thwarted by others of sounder mind).

"But the statement that really 'took the cake' was his speech recently when he told his Indiana hearers that their state needed elected officials in Washington who would 'help get back a greater share' of the money it sends to our capital.

"NONSENSE! What Indiana needs—and every other state needs—is elected officials who will vote to cut back on the flood of tax dollars going from here to there. We don't want more BACK—there is always a 'handling' charge for what goes —we just want a whole lot less going to that 'promised land' (we don't know of any other place where more is 'promised,' even if little is produced there)!

"WHY IS IT TOO MUCH TO ASK FOR SANITY TO BE RESTORED TO GOVERNMENT?"

We appreciate our readers' interest, comments and information from another source. —Ed.

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing these rights.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

EHS Harriers

—Charles Ray, reporter

Coach Jim White's Eastside harriers raised their season slate to 7-2 last week as they posted victories over conference foes Adams Central and Woodlan while dropping a non-league meet to powerful Lakeland.

The Blazer cross country squad now appears to be on course toward the best won-lost record in Eastside's history as they head toward the completion of their season.

Butch McBride and Ken Ray again paced the locals in their ACAC competition by taking the top two spots. McBride was timed at 13:33 with Ray right behind at 13:34. Dave Blair was fourth with 13:51, Eugene Evans sixth with 14:28, Lance Billings seventh with 14:45.

Other runners finishing for Eastside were Dave Drake, Mike Camp, Sonny Salinas, Gilbert Ortiz and Jon Hollabaugh. The Blazers defeated Adams Central 20-41 while rolling past Woodlan 20-75.

Senior Ken Ray was the lone bright spot in Eastside's 17-46 loss to Lakeland. The Lakers have established themselves as one of the top cross country contenders in the state.

Ray finished fourth and ran the second fastest time ever by a Blazer on the Maxton Park course. He toured the two and one-half miles in 12:44. McBride, who holds the local record of 12:41, was unable to compete in this meet due to an injury. Lakeland took the first three places as a result, with James winning the meet in 12:34. Following Ray, five more Laker runners crossed the finish line before Dave Blair came in at 13:21, good for tenth.

Five more Lakeland runners finished before Eastside's third runner, Eugene Evans 15th in 13:36. Another quintet of Lakeland runners completed the race prior to Eastside's fourth runner, Lance Billings, 21st in 14:12. Gilbert Ortiz was fifth for the Blazers, 23rd in the meet with a time of 14:15.

Female Lockerrooms Opened??

You may have noticed the national news story about the U.S. District Judge in New York who ruled that reporters from the news media must have access to athletes' locker rooms following games, without discrimination as to sex.

A photo in one of the Fort Wayne dailies showed a female reporter, microphone in hand, all smiles as she stands near Yankee player Reggie Jackson. He and another player were reported to have undressed and dressed as if no women were around—though the newspaper photo shows Jackson in shorts.

What is quite noticeable in the photo is that the female reporter is not looking at Reggie's face.

The concern about discrimination the past several years in particular has some legitimate basis. The male world has been characterized as virtually 100% discriminatory when it comes to women, in filling various positions of responsibility. "Sexist" is the derogatory word used by those fighting for women's rights.

But what do you call it when a female judge renders a decision which allows female reporters in male athletes' locker rooms, whether the athletes, the coaches, the managers, the club owners or the public like it or not?

What happens to "invasion of privacy" rights when a case comes up involving women reporters, or ANY reporters, for that matter?

What about the rights of the people directly involved in such activities as sports? Are they "owned" by whomever says "I want to do this" or "I want to do that" in connection with the activity involved?

I'm not "anti-women" when it comes to reporting. If they can do the job, OK. I AM against ANY reporter having more say-so in these matters than the people directly involved as participants. I wish they would ban on-field cameras at athletic contests and in the locker rooms. I admire the participants for not shoving those cameras down somebody's throat on occasion. So-called "on-the-spot" reporting has become too "nosey," in my book.

If locker room doors are open now to anyone who wants to come in—and coaches, managers and participants have no authority to say "no," we come to this conclusion, if we are going to be consistent:

Reporters from The Saint Joe News, the Butler Bulletin, the Auburn Evening Star and the Garrett Clipper can, at their own discretion, enter the locker rooms of both boys AND girls following any athletic contest—or any other time, for that matter—to get an interview or comments from the athletes participating in high school athletics.

So, although the above court decision was rendered in New York, the fact that it was a FEDERAL DISTRICT COURT JUDGE who rendered the decision makes that decision potentially applicable all over the United States.

(It was noted in the national news story, however, that the district court's ruling applied only to "Sports Illustrated" and the New York Yankees. How can that be??? Isn't it discrimination when ALL reporters don't get similar privileges???)

So, if Joe Shelton, Dave Kurtz and I and any others on newspaper staffs in the county want to interview members of the girls' volleyball team in their locker room right after a game, or the girls' basketball team when its season starts in not too many weeks and we want some "in depth" coverage right after the games, we can go into the girls' locker rooms without any hindrance, because to hinder our entrance into those quarters would be discriminatory and "sexist."

Personally, I think U.S. District Judge Constance Baker Motley's decision ought to be challenged. Justice is supposed to respect all parties and be based on fairness to all parties. Her decision is definitely "sexist," in my book.

Gamma Lambda

Butler American Legion Post 202 was the site of the first meeting of the newly-formed Gamma Lambda chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, a teachers' honorary society, on September 16.

The members of Gamma Lambda, who are from DeKalb and Noble counties, had been a part of the Alpha Xi chapter which now takes in members from Steuben and LaGrange counties.

Beverly Martin was hostess and assisting her were Nancy Blaker, Donna Jewel, Nada Kelsey, Margaret Thomas and Judith Washler.

Committee appointments were assigned and while a luncheon was served, the committees met. A memorial for Ruth Showalter was presented by Barbara Brandon and Doris Hess. A program consisting of get-acquainted activities and a plan board of teacher value priorities was headed by Jackie Carl and Tina Flook.

During the meeting, committee chairmen introduced their committees and gave their reports and suggestions. Members were reminded that there will be a silent auction for the scholarship fund at the next meeting at Kendallville. It was suggested and passed that the names of prospective members be submitted in April, voted on in May and then initiated in September. Judith Washler reported on the date and place for the next meeting.

DAR Meets

The John Houlton Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution opened its new year with a Constitution Tea in commemoration of the signing of the Constitution September 17, 1789. Members in charge of the tea were Mrs. Wayne Beuret, Mrs. Marlin Yoder and Mrs. Alan Hardenbrock, chairman.

Members and guests met in the chapel of the Auburn Presbyterian Church. The group sang "America the Beautiful."

Kevin Beuret spoke to the group on "The Presidency in History as it relates to the Constitution." The American presidency is the oldest constitutional office in the world. The framers of the Constitution wanted a strong executive to rescue the turbulent government from the aftermath of the Revolution. They looked for this person from strong governorships, state constitutions, administrative department, writings of Locke, and workings of various state governments.

By the end of the Constitutional Convention the framers came up with eight implicit decisions for a strong executive. It should be separate from Congress. It should be one man. The source of election should be outside of Congress. This set up the electoral college. There should be a fixed term of office. He should be eligible to an indefinite number of terms. He should be granted his own power by the Constitution. He should not be encumbered by a council. And the President should be forbidden to be a member of either house.

The presidency was not meant to be a political office. Jefferson was the one who took that step.

Congressmen, Not Doctors, Hike Medical Care Costs

—by The Editor

There has been a tendency for some time now to criticize the medical and dental professions for not providing better health care. Senator Ted Kennedy is pushing his plan for a national health insurance program. A few weeks ago, he made what is to me an astonishing observation. He said that opponets of his plan say we can't afford the plan. The Senator replied that we can't afford NOT to start such a program.

It has puzzled me for several years now that spokesmen for various programs to "benefit" the public are themselves not in need of such a program. How can millionaire Ted Kennedy know what it is to pay medical and dental bills that are a financial hardship? How could the late Franklin Delano Roosevelt be a champion of "the common man" when he was uncommonly wealthy? I don't question their motivation. I do question their ability to associate need and cost, since, for them cost has been no problem in providing for a need. This is especially true for Presidents, Vice-Presidents, members of Congress, and others, who get medical and dental benefits at taxpayers' expense.

How could the late Lyndon B. Johnson really know what a "great society" ought to be when he became a millionaire during his years in public office?

During the time that these particular men have held positions of authority, the public's opinion of business has gone down. Along with that downward trend has come increasing criticism of doctors. They are accused of controlling the number of doctors in practice in order to keep their incomes at a high level due to demand for their services. They have been pictured as knife-happy fiends ready to cut you open at the slightest reason. They have been accused of gouging the public in their fees. Therefore, say the critics, we need a national health program to provide "better" health care at reasonable cost.

I have often wondered how so many politicians can get into office or re-elected to office on the basis of how "bad" things are and they will work for a change—despite the fact that everywhere around us, we see more of everything for everybody, due of course to the efforts of those critical politicians. It's a contradiction. If things are bad, they made it that way; if things are good, why harp on the bad???

National health programs of any type are contrary to the basic structure of American liberty. Private medicine is not only cheaper, it provides better care than any government program could ever achieve. A look at England's socialized medicine should convince anyone that we have it better. But it doesn't seem to convince the likes of Senator Kennedy.

If private medicine has done such a poor job in the United States, why has life expectancy increased with each passing year? Americans are feeling better longer, generally speaking. Since doctors aren't perfect, there will always be unfortunate situations from time to time, there will always be a "bad result" no matter how hard doctors try. How can we expect doctors to be perfect when we ourselves aren't perfect???

I think one of the most ridiculous suggestions in a long time is that a government-imposed ceiling on hospital costs be instituted. Such a suggestion misleads the public, because:

1. The cost of staying at a hospital is based mostly on the cost of hiring people to perform the various tasks. And most of the personnel are paid according to government standards, meaning minimum wage laws.

2. When the minimum wage is raised, hospital care costs go up, due to the fact that hospital personnel come under minimum wage regulations for the most part.

Therefore, those Congressmen, and the President, who propose legislation to "contain" hospital costs (in other words, federal regulation) and also support increases in the minimum wage are contradicting themselves and pulling a "fast one" on the general public.

You can't control hospital income but give pay raises to the employees and still have hospitals operate on a sound financial basis.

We need a government-controlled or sponsored national health program like we need a hole in the head.

—And keep in mind, those who are proposing to limit hospital costs by government control are the same ones who INCREASE HOSPITAL COSTS by raising the minimum wage. 75% of the cost of operating a hospital is in "personnel." That means people, pay and minimum wage laws.

Anyone who leads the public to believe that private medicine has failed in the United States is guilty of total distortion of fact.

Seventy Years Ago...

—from the issue of Wednesday, January 22, 1908:

"If you are in arrears for THE NEWS you will have to pay up or the paper will be discontinued. This action is not through choice of the publishers but the postoffice department has made a ruling to the effect that all papers not paid for in advance or within the year, will not be accepted as second class matter, but a larger amount of postage will have to be paid, which, of course, the publisher could not stand. This is a radical ruling, but we have nothing to do but comply with it. The new law was effective Jan. 1st, but a reasonable length of time has been allowed the publishers to get their books straightened up. We do not desire to stop anyone's paper, but we will be compelled to do so with some if they do not respond quickly.

"We will in a few days send you a statement of your account and then if not settled for we will take other means. We have until April 1 to get our list in shape and those who are not paid up will be 'cut off.' If you want to read THE NEWS please act accordingly."

"Beans, Beans, Beans

"G.A.R. Boys Give Annual Bean Supper Friday Evening in Opera House to a Large Crowd.

"The Bean supper given in the opera house Friday evening was a success in every way. Supper was served from 6:30 until 8:00 o'clock for 10c. After the feast was over the program was begun by music by the Coburntown band, which was enjoyed by all. Rev. J. A. Brown was introduced and he made a few remarks in behalf of old veterans. Chris Curie was called upon for a few remarks but he said as he was not in the service he was unable to tell of the hardships the soldiers went through and that no one knew the real hardships without first having the experience in this line. J. A. Provines had promised Mr. Curie that he would tell him why he was captured during the war and Mr. Curie thought that at this time it would be very appropriate for his remarks. He called upon Provines for the desired information. Provines stated that the only reason he could give that he was captured with about 5,000 others, was that he didn't start to run soon enough, and we guess, he was about right. Rev. Heininger, an old veteran, was called upon for a talk and he gave a very interesting talk, he having the experience and thus he knew what he was talking about. O. H. Widney made a few remarks, after which a patriotic drill was given by young people of the Christian church which was well received. The Coburntown band furnished music for the remainder of the program. The crowd was large and an enjoyable time was had."

In the same issue was a full page ad by The Big Four Store announcing a reduction sale.

A few of the items were:

50c men's caps for 39c.
8c calicos for 6¼c.
$3.50 men's coontail felts and snag proof overs for $2.78.

Remember, people were making a comfortable living, building houses, enjoying entertainment and so on those days.

In a supplement to the January issue, the Concord Township Trustee, John A. Provines, made his annual report of receipts and expenditures. Among the disbursements were those to O. K. Shull $215.20, George Tustison 206.80 George Beams 206.80, W. W. Fisher 195.60, John Reinoehl 218.00, Constance Maurer 211.00, Golden Murray 162.60, Ross Abel 209.60, Homer Arnold 365.00, and several others. Those amounts were for teaching and are for the entire school year, not monthly or weekly pay!

In the February 5, 1908, issue an item told of the concern in Congress over the fact that the estimated cost of $140 million to build the Panama Canal had been raised to $184 million. An army colonel said the cost might go as high as $300 million.

Although commended students score slightly lower than those who qualify for merit scholarships, they are recognized as having demonstrated exceptional academic promise.

Letters.....

With legislation proposed in the Senate under the title, "Independent Local Newspaper Act of 1978," Indiana Senator Richard Lugar is seeking the opinions of state newspapers about the proposal.

The following letter was received by The News last week:

"Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

"Senator Robert Morgan of North Carolina has asked me to cosponsor S. 3441, the 'Independent Local Newspaper Act of 1978.' The intent of this bill is to allow owners of independent newspapers the option of prepaying their estate taxes.

"A trust could be established which could receive up to 50 percent of the paper's income annually for the sole purpose of paying estate taxes which accrue on the transfer at the time of death of the owner. One of the major reasons that sales of newspapers have been so high has been because of estate liabilities. And I would be interested in hearing your comments and ideas on the bill.

"Enclosed you will find the floor statement of Senator Morgan when he introduced the bill.

"Thank you for your assistance."

Since Senator Morgan's bill attaches great significance to the payment of estate taxes but ignores the problems of cost of operation The News editor responded as follows:

"Dear Senator:

"I received your letter of September 18, 1978, relative to Senator Robert Morgan's 'Independent Newspaper Act of 1978.' You asked for comments and ideas about the act. You also enclosed a copy of the Congressional Record of Tuesday, August 22 1978, containing Senator Morgan's explanation of the act and his views on appropriate background.

"I will try to be brief but thorough in my comments, though I find it difficult to refrain from lengthy discussion which I feel necessary in order to clarify main thoughts.

"I agree with Senator Morgan that:

1. Newspapers are a community service;

2. 'Chain' ownership is not desirable;

3. Death of the newspaper owner presents a financial hardship on the estate in certain instances.

"I disagree with Senator Morgan that:

1. Estate taxes are the primary reason for the growth of newspaper 'chains';

2. Prepayment of estate taxes will 'assist' the independent newspaper.

"I find little in the proposed bill that will benefit me personally. As is the case in many legislative efforts of good intent, the right reason is stated but the wrong solution is proposed.

"If there are too many 'chains' now existing in the newspaper world, I believe the following are the real reasons:

1. Increased cost of operation due to the inability to find and keep competent personnel. If you find competent personnel, you can't afford them in competing with wages elsewhere. If you CAN afford the personnel, they probably aren't doing the job satisfactorily. (I must note in fairness that, as a 'one-man' operation, I don't have this problem.)

2. Increased cost of operation due to astronomical increases in postage rates.

3. Lack of motivation to be self-employed because of the risks involved. It's easier and more secure to have a weekly paycheck and receive numerous fringe benefits than to have a fluctuating weekly income and be paying out for hospitalization insurance, paying out for vacations, paying out for time lost due to illness or injury.

"I realize that I am speaking from a point of view of an almost extinct species—an independently owned, locally owned, SMALL smalltown newspaper. There are those who would say 'he's out of step with the times, he hasn't kept up.' But they overlook the fact that freedom of thought comes from individuality, independence. The smalltown newspaper, independently owned, is as essential today as it was in the past. It has been slowly disappearing due to economic pressures of everyday operations. 'Bigness' has brought a rise in our total standard of living through mass production. However, there is a limitation on the benefits to be derived. We have passed those limits and it has brought the demise of the independent newspaper.

"The increased cost of operation mentioned earlier includes the burden of a constantly rising minimum wage. This has affected business in general, not just newspapers. The price of newsprint has gone 'way up, but so has everything else. My own individual problem is not just cost but quantity. The paper supply house, from whom I have purchased virtually all of my paper stock for job printing and newspaper, no longer handles the newsprint because it must be purchased in carload lots. I am down to my last package of newsprint (2000 sheets). Thus, I face the additional cost of having someone else do the printing—or stop publishing.

"The above is the basis for my lack of enthusiasm for Senator Morgan's bill. The idea of preserving the independence of the press is 'on target,' but his belief that pre-paying estate taxes offers relief and assistance is to overlook more basic reasons for the decline in the number of independent newspapers of ANY size. Greater assistance for ALL independent business would come by stopping the constant rise in minimum wages, and creating incentives which would make independence more appealing.

"Newspapers would truly be assisted if the second class mailing privileges were returned to their original form and the 'pay your own way' theory were discontinued, in recognition of the importance of having a means of distributing public information and free thought. This very important service, distribution of information of all types, is an obligation shared by all citizens. Therefore, 'pay your own way' in order to make the postal system operate 'in the black' is totally contrary to the basic concept which prompted our forefathers to establish the system. It is entirely appropriate to use general tax funds to make up the difference between postal receipts and postal expenditures.

"Of course, at the very heart of all our economic problems is a fact which no one wants to face head-on and make significant adjustments. That fact: our citizens are receiving more in reward (salaries, wages, benefits) than is represented by the work they do. 'Big business' is not the culprit in our general financial problems; it is 'big labor' (I'm not 'anti-union'; I recognize the need for protection for the employee). And it is this powerful influence that has brought the demise of the independent newspaper.

"Personally, I think Senator Morgan's solution is a cure for symptoms rather than treatment for the disease.

"Thank you for giving me the opportunity to express my views. —And I am going to try to keep this independent newspaper alive!

T. E. (Ted) Haberkorn, Jr."

Dissent in a free society is like the cultivation of the crops in the field. A little agitation promotes growth; too much destroys the roots.

Wisdom is like good whiskey. The best of ingredients are essential; but the proof requires age.

The true essence of freedom is not in the extent to which human rights are exercised; rather, it is in the restraint exercised in pursuing those rights.

The dissenters of the 1960s-70s sometimes point to Jesus Christ to justify their actions, claiming Him to be the greatest revolutionary of all time, attempting by such comparison to give a holy aura to their own ambitions. They overlook one thing: Jesus did not force Himself nor His teachings upon anyone. He spoke, surely, positively, then left the decision to His hearers. Thus did He grant to all men the freedom God created. Today's reformers could well be admonished, as in the Scriptures: "Go thou, and do likewise."

Failures are the rungs on the ladder to success.

In unity there is strength; in diversity there is freedom.

Self-discipline is a matter of courage. Anyone can do as he pleases; but it takes courage to do as one ought.

Senior Butch McBride became the first runner this season to break the 13-minute mark on the Garrett two and one-half mile cross country course as he paced the DeKalb Eastside High School team to three more victories, bringing their record to 10-3.

The Blazers romped past Garrett 19-36 as McBride posted a time of 12:56. He was followed by Ken Ray at 13:09 and Dave Blair at 13:15. Garrett took the next two spots before Eugene Evens came in at 13:41 and Lance Billings at 13:52. Rich Timmerman, a freshman, ran his best race of the year as he finished 11th overall and sixth for Eastside with a time of 14:-36. Mike Camp, another freshman, was 13th at 14:57. Steve Billings placed 18th at 15:36.

Eastside then rolled past Fremont 15-46 with McBride, Blair, Ray, Evans and Lance Billings taking the top five places on the shortened course. Gilbert Ortiz was seventh Timmerman eighth and Camp, Sonny Salinas and Steve Billings following in the ninth, tenth and eleventh spots. The meet was run during the halftime of the East-side-Fremont football game.

McBride ran the Shoaff Park course in 13:18 with Ray coming in at 13:19. Blair was eleventh at 13:27. Evans was fourteenth at 13:55 and Billings nineteenth at 14:19. Ortiz and Timmerman placed twenty-fifth and -sixth, respectively.

Humane News

—by Joyce Kuckuck, Officer/Director

Fair days are fun days. However, for fair animals, livestock, small animals and poultry, this is not often true. They need to be properly and humanely cared for. Anything less is inflicting pain unjustly for the owner's personal gratification.

As with all living things, kindness should be the governing factor. Anyone and everyone who exhibits an animal or fowl at a fair or show should remember they are responsible for its comfort and well-being.

Points to consider and care to take regarding fair entries are:

—Does the animal or fowl have ample room to move about, sit, or lie down in comfort? Chicken, rabbits and similar small animals are frequently overcrowded and kept in cages too small. This is often for a week's time.

—Does the animal have proper and ample bedding or nesting materials and are the quarters clean?

—Does the animal have proper food and water containers that won't spill? Are they fed and watered daily?

—Have you considered that being at the fair may be a frightening experience for any animal? You are the person they are comfortable with and need your reassurance and presence as much as possible.

—They should be shielded from unkind treatment by others.

At a fair or anywhere, kindness, gentleness and consideration should govern all animal activities. When placing one's animal or fowl in cages, pens, stalls or whatever, check their conditions. Always think, "What if it were you?"

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

If Wanda Coburn has appeared to be walking in a trance, it is due to a tragedy in her family. A brother of hers was shot and killed by his wife this week at Defiance, Ohio. She then called the police, told them she had killed her husband, hung up—and shot and killed herself.

That's the kind of news no one likes to report. It dampened the pleasureable occurrence of Wanda's first anniversary as proprietor of the local restaurant just a couple of weeks ago.

Well, Crow's Rainbow Farm Center looks bright and shiny with a fresh coat of white paint on buildings and tanks.

Beth Norton brought on a few moments of silence the other afternoon in the restaurant. I had asked Shirley Coburn if she had heard how many dinners were served at the fire department's chicken barbecue Sunday. She said she hadn't. Beth came on with, "We (the firemen's auxiliary) had a meeting last light and none of the women knew anything."

That's where the silence came. Finally Gary Norton came back with, "You didn't have to have a meeting to find that out. I coulda told you."

My only comment was that I wouldn't touch that one with a ten-foot pole. And Shirley obviously was fighting to hold back a laugh when Beth left herself wide open for a male chauvinist reply.

—Fortunately Beth has a sense of humor.

This issue of the paper uses up the last bundle of newsprint I have. What comes next week —your guess is as good as mine. I'm working on it.

The only way to obtain sheet newsprint (according to my paper supply house) is by special order and in carload lots. Naturally, the special order costs more, and newsprint is sky-high as it is. My getting a carload would be comparable to our local service stations being forced to buy gas by the train-load. In other words it can't be done.

—Maybe I'll retire and get a job at the Harvester — no, — I have that turned around, don't I.

A printers' publication had the following on its pages:

"The objective of all dedicated employees should be to thoroughly analyze all situations, anticipate all problems prior to their occurrence, have answers for these problems, and move swiftly to solve these problems when called upon. . . .

"However. . . .

"when you are up to your ass in alligators, it is difficult to remind yourself that your initial objective was to drain the swamp."

Band Boosters Seek $40,000

Members of the DeKalb Eastside High School band are currently conducting a fund-raising project for new band uniforms. Wisconsin cheese and summer sausage are the items being sold. A 12-ounce crock of Wisconsin cheese sells for $4.00 with 10-ounce refills at $2.25. A 12-ounce summer sausage is priced at $3.00 each or two for $5.75. Cheese in plastic containers is also available at $3.00 for 12 ounces or two for $5.75.

Band members apparently have expressed their preference as to style of uniform to the Adult Band Boosters Club.

It is said 200 new uniforms are needed costing $200 each, for a total of some $40,000.

Eastsides' McBride, Ray Are All-conference

—Charles Ray, reporter

Butch McBride and Ken Ray both earned ACAC All-Conference berths last week at the annual Allen County Athletic Conference meet at 'Busco.

McBride placed 5th with the excellent time of 12:50 while Ray was 9th with his best performance of the year at 13:03. The top ten runners in the meet were selected to the All-Conference squad.

McBride and Ray have been part of some of the best cross country teams in Eastside's history during the past four years. More than 40 dual meet victories have been posted while these two runners were in action. McBride has been looked on as one of the best cross country runners in this part of the state for the past three years, but a foot injury slowed him a little at the beginning of this season. However, he has endured that to remain among the best harriers as well as join less than a handful of runners who have made the all-conference squad three straight years during their high school career.

Ray has had to battle athsma during his four years as an Eastside harrier, even to the point of landing in the hospital during part of his sophomore year.

All of that was put aside, however, by these two athletes last Thursday when they competed against some of the top area runners in earning All-Conference honors.

Only two schools played more than one runner in the top ten at the meet, with Norwell having six and Eastside two.

As a team, the Blazers placed fourth out of nine in the meet only 10 points away from the second spot. Carroll trailed Eastside in the fifth spot, but by 70 points. Norwell gained the top spot, followed by Heritage and Leo.

Coach Jim White's Eastside cross country team outran Angola 23-32 Tuesday to finish a very successful 12-4 season.

Butch McBride, Ken Ray and Dave Blair made the final meet an automatic victory for the Blazers as they took the top three spots. McBride came in at 12:31 while Ray crossed the finish line at 12:32 and Blair was timed at 12:33.

Eugene Evens was 7th at 13:-03, Lance Billings 10th at 13:-33. Rich Timmerman 13th at 14:15, Sonny Salinas 14th at 14:-20, Mike Camp 16th at 14:31 and Steve Billings 20th at 15:-20.

Eastside ended its ACAC dual meet competition at Shoaff Park last week with a 30-83 victory over Southern Wells and a 27-30 loss to Heritage. The split gave the Blazers a 5-3 season slate in the ACAC which left them in fourth place behind Norwell, Heritage and Leo.

McBride, Ray and Blair finised 2nd, 3rd and 4th, respectively, behind Indiana's premier distance runner, Dave Painter, of Heritage.

Heritage gained their slim margin of victory over Eastside by pushing across their next four runners before the Blazers' fourth man, Evans, was able to finish. Billings, Eastside's fifth runner placed 1th. Other places for Eastside were Salinas 16th, Timmerman 24th, Camp 29th and Hollabaugh 36th.

Senator Lugar Used Only 78% Of Budget Allotment

Indiana Senator Dick Lugar announced recently that his office will return $173,444 to the government in funds unspent during fiscal 1978 ending September 30.

Last year the Senator returned $157,342, for a total of $330,-786 saved during the two years he has been in office. The savings of $173,444 amount to 22% of the total budget allocated to the Lugar office in 1978. Each Senator is provided an annual budget for office operations based on the size of the state served.

In reviewing these statistics, Lugar commented, "Most Hoosiers believe that government spending is a major cause of inflation. Most Hoosiers also believe that greater production and efficiency are absolutely necessary in government and in private industry.

"My staff members assisted more people, answered more letters and provided more informed research for sound legislative decisions in 1978 than in the previous year, and still achieved once again a substantial savings of taxpayer dollars.

After 21 months of service, they are not only dedicated to careful use of taxpayer dollars but have developed ongoing systems for continuing savings in years to come."

The 'New Republicans'

I don't like to mention political party affiliations in commenting about national affairs —except to get certain matters into proper perspective. And that's the case at the moment. Some folks forget that I give critical remarks about members of both parties serving in Washington. So, try to read the following with an open mind, remembering that members of both parties are involved, on occasion.

I am amazed at the transformation "Proposition 13" has brought in the thoughts expressed by some often-heard names in Washington.

"Proposition 13" was the big happening in California recently when voters there managed to get a proposal on the ballot to drastically reduce property taxes. I believe the proposal was passed by a 2 to 1 margin and reports are that since the vote, the proposal is favored by an even bigger margin.

One of the amazing results in the state was that Governor Jerry Brown completely reversed himself, even claiming that such tax reduction was was he sought. Strangely, he had not proposed such a program and was actually continuing in his pattern of liberal spending programs at the state level.

California's eye-opening vote brought strange transformations elsewhere. The west coast is not the only location where leopards have changed their spots.

In Indiana (or rather, in Washington), Senator Birch Bayh suddenly began sounding like a member of the opposite party. He publicly stated that foreign aid for one of the far east nations should be cut off because it might be getting into the hands of the communists.

In years past, Senator Bayh would have reacted to such a proposal with something like, "NO—we shouldn't stop this aid. We shouldn't penalize the innocent people of that nation because of the faults of their leadership." That is not an exaggeration. Senator Bayh has been a big spender.

Going to another state Senator George McGovern of South Dakota recently declared that the United States should take positive military action in Cambodia. This is the same McGovern who howled long and loud when President Nixon was handling foreign affairs and "got tough" with Cambodia in the far east conflict.

In Maine, Senator Ed Muskie made the startling (for him) statement just last week that proposed income tax reductions should be accompanied by reduction in government spending or we'll have even larger annual deficits.

These recent incidents are amazing. Here we have been going the way of the liberals, because they control Congress, for years and years. We have followed their ideas (because we had to) expressed in social legislation and legislation establishing the federal government as the "all-wise" instrument through which we would achieve prosperity, racial harmony, social justice, and so on and on and on.

Now these voices of leadership have taken up their opposition's tune. And those who have been responsible for our seemingly continuous "crisis" are saying what their opponents having been saying for years. These elected representatives, who have held a two to one majority in both houses of Congress for years and years, are now showing their true colors as political opportunists. As long as their spend-spend philosophy pacified this and that burdened group in our society, little protest was heard—or I should say, little heed was paid—to the protests being expressed, and those protests were coming from the Republican Party.

Now that the public in the state of California have taken matters into their own hands through "Proposition 13," the liberal spenders of our tax monies are doing a complete about-face. For Hoosiers, it is particularly evident in the state's "senior Senator."

The liberal spending approach has had its support in part from certain members of Congress who call themselves "Republicans." I am speaking of the Brookes, the Javits's, the Percys and a few others. These members of Congress have been a part of the tax-and tax. spend-and-spend "kick" we've been on for too long. They have not represented the basic ideas held by the majority of their party.

As the November elections approach, it would be well to remember that the "taxpayers revolt" now feared by certain members of Congress is a reflection of the warnings voiced by the Republican Party time after time, but to little avail. With a few exceptions, those who have run for office on the Republican ticket have been sympathetic to the plight of the taxpayer, the plight of small business, the plight of business in general. They have recognized that if business is in trouble, people are in trouble because "business" means "jobs." And it is Republicans who have tried to stop the flow of power into the hands of a few organized labor leaders. Republicans have represented the will of the people in this matter because poll after poll show that the majority of Americans, including those who belong to unions, do not think union membership should be a requirement of employment.

Liberals have for a long time cashed in on the emotional appeal of setting off the "common man" (the employee) against the "power of big business." In so doing, these liberals have taken attention away from the fact that the profit motive of business is no different from the profit motive of the "common man" in his labors. If there are no business profits, there will be no jobs. It's that simple. A lot of people have been led into a frame of mind which says, "If I make money, it's good. If the other guy makes money he's gouging the public" or "he's a crook."

There is good reason to say that the low esteem in which the Republican Party is held by the majority of the voters (only some 28-or-so percent admit to that party's membership, according to national public polls) is due to the effective uncomplimentary propaganda put out by the opposition. Examination of the voting records of the present Congress and the Congresses of the past several years shows that expanding government intrusion into private affairs, creation and expansion of social-welfare programs and increased costs of government have been opposed by the majority of members of the Republican Party. But due to its being outnumbered 2 to 1 in the Congress, that party's voice has not had much effect. With the help of a few Republican liberals, the Democrat majority has had control of national affairs FOR 93% OF THE PAST 46 YEARS!

It is only because of the presence of new faces in Washington, such as Fourth District Representative Dan Quayle (who seeks re-election next month) and Senator Richard Lugar, that a more financially responsible outlook is apparently taking shape. They have been aided by a few members of the Democrat Party who do not and have not supported the liberal spending and taxing efforts of their party's majority.

Republicans have been so down-graded by the opposition for so many years that it is almost a crime (or so it seems as reflected by the public surveys) to say, "I'm a registered Republican." Yet, it is that very party which has been saying all along what some of the liberals are now saying—"We've got to cut back."

I'm not trying to embarrass those who "belong" to the Democrat Party. I'm merely pointing out that the promises of a better life through government intervention and control will not work. And it has been the Republican Party which has been saying so for many years without much success. And now that we are beginning to pay a big price for social welfare programs to the point of spending more for government than government takes in, those who have set the pattern for years are suddenly "changing their spots" and trying to benefit politically from the public's particular fear of inflation.

Do you want someone in office who does what THEY want, regardless of the consequences, but turn completely around when YOU show some "clout"???

California's "Proposition 13" did more than lower state property taxes. It also has served to emphasize just who has, and has had, your interests in mind though the years, first and foremost.

Chicken pox is usually a mild disease

Probably caused by a virus, it generally attacks children between two and six years old. After exposure its incubation period averages 16 days during which time a slight fever, headache or backache may occur. Then comes a series of rashes.

It is important to call a physician. For scratching can cause an erysipelas infection or an abscess. Mouth lesions may affect the larynx. An adult attack can be more serious, so grown-ups should avoid exposure.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

John Madinski is the "tail twister" in the local Lions Club. A tail twister's duties include putting various members "on the spot" for whatever may come to mind and levying a fine on that member. Years ago the fine limit was a dime. It may still be.

Anyhow—during fair week and the Lions Club lunch stand was in operation, member Harold Murphy (who has a talent for getting laughs about everyday situations himself) walked up to the Lions' stand with his Mrs. and ordered fish sandwiches and french fries (knowing full well that the Lions do not serve those items).

Well, at a meeting after the fair, Mr. Murphy got "put-on" right back. John came to the meeting well-prepared. When it came time for tail twister antics, John slapped a fresh bluegill (from Paul Fetters' pond) in a bun, put it in front of Harold and said, "There's the fish sandwich you asked for!"

Paul Moore also got ribbed. John noted that Paul's birthday was October 12. And, since the older you get, the more you are concerned about your health, Paul went to the doctor for a checkup because he recently fell asleep at the wheel and had a little accident. Apparently the doctor was puzzled about Paul's problem. But John wasn't. At the Lions meeting, he said he had some pills for Paul to take—one before eating, one before driving, one before walking, one before thinking, or as needed—and handed Paul a box of No-Doze.

—They do have some fun at those Lions meetings. Why, I remember one time . . . . .

About the supply of newsprint with which to publish this paper—I have been steered to a source of supply at least for the present. But the problem will come up again in the future due to costs and shipping conditions. So, for now, you will continue receiving the paper.

Organ Dedication

Jay Blauser, organist and choir director at St. Peter Evangelical Lutheran Church in Spencerville, has announced that a service of dedication will be held Sunday afternoon, November 12, at 2:00 p.m. at the church. The congregation has just completed the installation of a Wicks pipe organ and the November 12 service is for the dedication of the custom-built instrument which cost around $45,000.

Music for organ, brass, tympani, choir and flute will highlight the service. Guest organist will be Mrs. Richard Delegrange-Phillips. Mrs. James Besyner, Mr. John Bremer, Miss Patty Markle and Carroll High School music students will be guest instrumentalists.

The St. Peter Chancel Choir will sing under direction of Mr. Blauser.

Rev. Walter Stitt and Rev. Wilbur Miller will preside over the service.

A reception in the undercroft will follow the service.

The public is invited to attend this special service.

Worman, who seeks to unseat incumbent Woodrow Wilson as State Senator, said he felt the ERA would bring more federal control over the state. He criticized the recent extension of time during which state may ratify the ERA, noting that "if they move the goal posts and change the rules of the game, they ought to give the states the right to rescind." The Congress prohibits rescinding of the ERA by states who have approved the amendment. Three states had voted to rescind before the time extension was passed, but their rescinding action has not been allowed.

Rapping With Youth About.....
The Need To Say 'Thanks Dave'

On the premise that no one has or will express recognition of a boost given the DeKalb Eastside band by Dave Kurtz of the Auburn Evening Star, I will do the honors by saying, "Thanks, Dave."

I am certain there are those who will exclaim in amazement, "Boost? What boost? He criticized the band!"

And the answer is, yes, he did criticize the band. In his column a few weeks ago, Dave opined that the band ought to put as much energy in their performances as they were in the fund-raising project the band had at a recent football game, as I recall.

It was a bitter pill to swallow, that criticism. But it did some good. There were but two other bands in the same division as Eastside in the judging of bands in the grand finale parade of the county fair. But Eastside did tie for first and there is the very strong possibility that Mr. Kurtz was, at least in part, responsible for the band's better showing.

I understand band members had two chants going in rehearsals for the marching contest. One was, "Who we gonna beat? Beat 'Busco"—from the rivalry created with Richard Foster band director at Eastside and his son director at 'Busco.

The other call to arms was, "Who we gonna show? Show Dave Kurtz!" — or something along that line.

So—band members, and other students—you have a good lesson of life in the episode. The lesson—some people we get awfully mad at are actually doing us more good than those who pay us compliments for everything we do.

Band members—you might not have tied for first if mean ol' Dave Kurtz hadn't "told it like it is" a few weeks ago. It wasn't very pleasant to read his criticism, but remember—it was CONSTRUCTIVE criticism. The band proved it by its "enthusiasm" thereafter and its performance in the parade.

So — — in case no one else will say it — — thanks Dave.

Newville Twp. Homemakers

Twenty members of the Newville Township Home Ec Club held their "Eat Out Day" at the Hickory Hills Country Club at Hicksville. Doris Hart and Myrtle Mills were hostesses.

After a delicious dinner, the president, Zella Collins, called the meeting to order and all repeated the club collect. Leta Shaffer gave the devotions from her Sunday School papers on "Possessions and Christian Living."

Roll call was answered with an old proverb, such as "A fool and his money are soon parted."

Lois Guiff read the song of the month, "The Last Rose of Summer" as no one knew the music.

Birthday gals were Kathryn Krieg, Bernice Wilder and Letha Wright. The last named received a small birthday cake from the country club as she was the only one present.

A card was signed for Ira Hook.

The next meeting is November 8 at 11:30 a.m. at the Newville United Methodist Church with Rozella Mickelson and Leta Shaffer as hostesses for the noon potluck dinner.

Chicken pox is usually a mild disease

Probably caused by a virus, it generally attacks children between two and six years old. After exposure its incubation period averages 16 days during which time a slight fever, headache or backache may occur. Then comes a series of rashes.

It is important to call a physician. For scratching can cause an erysipelas infection or an abscess. Mouth lesions may affect the larynx. An adult attack can be more serious, so grown-ups should avoid exposure.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Howard Hall caught this item in a recent issue of the Auburn Evening Star, carried by United Press International: "Woman Arrested For Failing To Pay Child Support."

The item goes on to tell the story of a 39-year-old mother of sevene who was taken into custody for failing to pay child support to her unemployed ex-husband. A Houston, Texas, judge found her in contempt of court for failure to pay overdue payments for two sons living with her first husband. The back payments amount to $1,000. The woman says she makes only $10,000 annually in her small grocery store.

She was ordered to pay $12 a week support for each of the boys, age 15 and 16, when her divorce went through in February. She now lives with her common-law husband with whom she cares for eight other children, five of their own and three more belonging to her brother.

Harlem Town Globe Travelers To Face EHS Faculty Nov. 2

The nationally known Fabulous Harlem Town Globe Travelers Basketball Team will appear in Butler when they meet the Eastside Faculty team at the high school gymnasium November 2 at 7:30 p.m.

The Travelers will bring many years of road experience and nearly a million miles of travel and fun-making to town. Having played all over the United States, this exciting troupe will bring a record of 137 games won in 138 contests. This was accomplished playing area All-Star teams, which is a record in anybody's league. They also bring all kinds of comical antics to Butler. There will be fun and laughter for every member of the family as well as exciting basketball.

With the addition of six-foot seven-inch Kenny Hermon and six-foot eight-inch Melvin McNight from South Dakota State doing the rebounding, the Travelers are ready to defend their undefeated season of 138 games last year. Other members of the Travelers include John Patmon, an excellent shooter and great ballhandler, Gerald Edwards, and Malcom Montgomery. Player-coach Rexie Jones believes that this will be the best team ever in the twelve years of Show Basketball performances.

Fans will find it hard to believe when one of the Travelers throws in seven or eight twenty-footers in a row and their dribbling, passing and ballhandling will leave them talking for weeks.

The magic circle, which most touring professional teams use to display many of the clever tricks in handling the basketball, is done entirely differently by the Travelers - the magic circle is performed in a dark gym, using black lights which reflect the specially-painted ball, shoes, and hands of the team.

The Travelers are appearing under the sponsorship of the Eastside Athletic Department. Advance tickets at $2 each are on sale at the following locations: Knisely National Bank of Butler, Johnson Furniture, Butler House, Tule's Mobil, Butler Bulletin, Spake & Watson, and the high school office at Butler.

Tickets at the door will be $3.

Kathy Mack had won a chicken until her mother shot her target which disqualified both of them.

(Editor's note: in explanation, Shirley can squint with only one eye. And when you squints with the right eye at the wrong target, you loose you a chicken. The affliction also creates some problems when Shirley is working at the local restaurant, especially with male customers. When she is blinkin', they thinks she is winkin'.)

An invitation is extended to attend the November 5 turkey shoot at Inlow's pit at the east edge of Saint Joe. Shoot for a turkey or just shoot for fun. Spectators are welcome.

Membership in the club is $3 per year.

'SAVE' Project

Indiana & Michigan Electric Company has announced the development of a "SAVE" program as part of the National Energy Watch (NEW) conservation effort fostered nationally by the Edison Electric Institute representing the nation's investor-owned electric utilities.

William A. Black, I&M executive vice-president, said that NEW is the industry's first nationally organized energy-conservation program. "Our part of this national effort," he said, "has been given the name 'SAVE,' which is an acronym for 'Save America's Valuable Energy.' We hope to use it as a medium to inform customers of the many ways they can conserve on their electric use, which not only helps to keep down its cost but also reduces the use of vital resources."

The first step in the SAVE program has been the preparation of a home survey brochure, now available to residential customers in company offices. It contains a rating sheet, with which an individual homeowner can survey the energy-saving features in his home—both insulation and energy systems—and determine how it measures up in energy efficiency.

A point system is used to assist the homeowner in evaluating energy use.

Four additional booklets will become available in the future covering home energy management, home and water heater insulation, heat pumps, plus a customer handbook entitled, "You and I&M," providing information about the company.

"While conservation is not the solution to the energy problem, it is certainly the best lifeline available between the problem of today and the promise of tomorrow," Black concluded.

To Observe 50th Anniversary

MM Auber Butler will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at an open house to be given by their children at the Methodist Church Fellowship Hall in Spencerville from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday, October 29. They were married in Frankfort, Indiana, on December 23, 1928, and are the parents of two sons, Dale W. and Kern, both of Auburn. They have seven grandchildren. Auber Butler is a retired bridge contractor and founder of Butler & Butler Construction of Auburn. Ruth H. Butler taught school at Saint Joe and Waterloo before retiring. "The gift of your presence will long be remembered" is the thought expressed to their friends by the couple.

Deceptive Quayle Hunting

Dan Quayle needs no one to step in and speak for him. His present campaign statements have provided good, solid explanations for his stand on two or three points which his opponent seeks to capitalize on. But I feel compelled to make some observations about Mr. Quayle's supposed "insensitive" attitude in his votes on a couple of matters.

John Walda is reaching 'way out in left field in his campaign to unseat Dan Quayle as Fourth District Representative from Indiana, if you ask me.

It's just plain deception to say, "Quayle voted against hot lunches for your school children."

School lunch bills are not to abolish school lunches. The bills that HAVE been proposed relate to the amount of money spent for the program. And lets face it folks—when you say "Let's cut the size of government and the cost of government," you are going to ELIMINATE certain appropriations, REDUCE certain appropriations and ELIMINATE certain governmental functions and that means eliminate certain jobs and the scope of individual programs.

If Mr. Walda is concerned about the burden of taxation on the American people as he says he is, he must find some other approach in promoting his candidacy besides accusing his opponent of "voting against" school lunches.

He sounds like Senator Birch Bayh who a couple of years ago used the same type of accusation against then-President Gerald Ford who had proposed a reduction in the appropriation for the school lunch program. But Senator Bayh said nothing when Agriculture Secretary Bob Berglund proposed a reduction in the school milk program a few months ago, under President Jimmy Carter.

—But wait—Bayh isn't running for office now; it's John Walda. So let's get back on track.

Another accusation made by Mr. Walda against Mr. Quayle is that the latter "voted against" senior citizens because he voted against an increase in Social Security taxes.

That one is from 'way, 'way out in left field. Mr. Walda conveniently overlooks the fact that the increase in Social Security taxes starting in January WILL BE MORE THAN THE REDUCTION IN FEDERAL INCOME TAXES FOR THE AVERAGE AMERICAN. How can you be concerned about the tax burden on Americans and at the same time criticize the vote of someone who has recognized the tax burden for some time???

Mr. Quayle has opposed forced busing, opposed increasing the debt limit, opposed the sale of the Panama Canal, opposed the tremendous Congressional pay raise, proposed a limit to the term of office for members of Congress, and opposes the ban on nitrites in meat processing.

The truth of the matter is—Dan Quayle, in two years' time, has cast votes representing the will of his constituents more accurately than had been done by his predecessor for several years.

Dan Quayle has his feet on the ground and makes sure he knows what he's talking about, if you ask me. He's a Hoosier's kind of representative, for a fact.

Mr. Walda's effort at Quayle hunting is 'way out of season.

Marsha Busche Advances In Competition

Miss Marsha Busche has won the Century III Leaders Scholarship competition at Eastside High School, according to Principal Robert E. Williams.

The 17-year-old senior is now eligible to compete with other high school seniors throughout Indiana for two $1,500 scholarships, two $500 scholarships, and also for a $10,000 national scholarship that will be awarded in a conference of state winners in historic Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia.

Miss Busche triumphed in a local phase of the Century III Leaders program, a scholarship competition which emphasizes the future concerns of America. Students were judged on the basis of their leadership abilities, community involvement and must now write a brief projection outlining what she thinks is one of America's future challenges and how it should be met.

The two winners of the $1,500 scholarships in Indiana will receive an all-expense paid trip to the third annual Century III National Leadership Seminar in Williamsburg March 1-6, 1979, to participate in seminars on current issues. In previous years, speakers at these seminars have been such notable figures as news commentator Howard K. Smith, architect-futurist Buckminster Fuller, and anthropologist Rene Dubos.

The program is sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals and funded by Shell Oil Company.

Miss Busche, the daughter of MM Freeman Busche Jr., intends to study pre-law at either the University of Notre Dame or Purdue University. She is a member of the National Honor Society and is active in the student council and also ranks at the top of her class academically.

Runnerup in the competition was Miss Jody Phillips of Butler.

Every prescription is a miracle drug

Because, after a personal examination and study of your problem, your physician has selected the one specific medicine he believes will help you most. The odds are it will.

That is why it is wiser to depend on your physician's prescriptions instead of home remedies prepared for the average person. Also, when you treat yourself you can only treat the symptoms which distress. But a physician has the knowledge to find the cause of your sickness and cure it.

TO THE EDITOR—

To the Town of Saint Joe:

It gets a bit tiring of people talking behind your back instead of to your face. When I have people over for dinner or they come to visit my family and I, everyone talks about it. If you sit in your yard and talk to people, its a sin. People should mind their own business. Maybe if they did they could get along with others.

I would like to thank my friends who have helped my family and I in the last four months: MM Jay Loy, MM Burt Holman, Doc and Jackie Wertman, MM Rick Gfeller Tammy and Mrs. Wolfe, Wanda Coburn and family, the Bushes, the Yeisers and MM Jerry Leeper.

Thank you for your time,

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

What is round—and white on the outside—and black on the inside—and when it slides off a roof makes a gooey mess?

Answer—a bucket of roofing compound.

—Just ask Lloyd Noel.

The local restaurant's celebration of it's first anniversary with Wanda Coburn at the helm was a success as far as "something different." It added a little spice to the everyday routine in town. Wanda, Shirley Coburn and Sheila Thacker looked cute in their pony tails, in keeping with their advertised intent to dress ala the fabulous '50's.

And it didn't hurt any when four voluptuous Vulcraft vamps came in for lunch—especially the one wearing a skirt. O how good it was to see a pair of nylon-clad legs. I took note of the number of male heads that start spinning when a skirt comes in the door. The "Dirty Old Man Club" is legion.

—Oh—yeah—the food was good, too.

Lion's Tales

On Oct. 23, Lavon Hart was presented a golden hammer award for his effort in remodeling his basement. It seems when Lavon hung a door he realized he drilled the hole for the door knob on the same side as the hunges. With this innovation it received a "patent pending" as an original Polishi door. That brought to mind a story about Lavon Hartski (no relation according to Lavon) who went to a carpenter shop and ordered a box 20 ft. long by 1 inch square. The carpenter said he could build it, but for what purpose would I have for a box that size?

Lavon Hartski told him that his neighbor moved and forgot his garden hose. So he asked his Pollock neighbor to mail it to him.

Dick Crow was fined 10c for his, "No comment," when he was asked by the tail twister how he enjoyed his turkey dinner. Seems he favors chicken.

Orville Funk was also asked the same question. He just smiled and paid his dime.

Little Jay

When I was a little girl, I lived with my parents on a farm. I was often lonely as I had no brothers or sisters. This was especially true in the summer as we had six months vacation. One morning as I was sitting in my swing, a little dog came running toward the house. Some one had dropped him off thinking he would have a good home. I loved the little dog right from the very start. He seemed to fill a need in my otherwise lonely life. We named him Jay. In spite of our love for him, little Jay was destined to endure several tragic experiences during his lifetime. The first one came when he was quite young. He had been riding in the buggy with my parents. When they arrived home he attempted to jump from the buggy to the ground. In so doing, he caught his toenail in my mother's lace mitt and he was thrown to the ground. His back was injured badly. He cried with pain when he tried to walk. For several nights, mother held him upright in her arm. During the day, she propped him up on the sofa. He finally recovered.

One day little Jay got a sharp chicken bone fast in his throat. Mother had fried a chicken and as usual little Jay got the boney pieces. A neighbor knocked at the door while he was eating and in his usual saucy way, he began to growl and bark. On so doing a sharp piece of the chicken bone became lodged in his threat. All attempts to remove the bone failed. Infection set in and there was little hope for him to survive. I was going to school at the time. I thought of him all day and when school was dismissed ran most of the way home, a distance of one mile. By the end of one week I was rewarded with the good news that little Jay was better and well on the road to recovery, thanks to Mother Nature and the love of a little girl.

My father was a farmer. He owned two work horses. One was named Caylor, the other one was named Pet. Caylor was gray and of medium size. Pet was a larger horse and dark brown in color. Each year Pet gave birth to a baby colt. The baby colt went along to the field with his mother so he could nurse at intervals. As we had no dinner bell, it was my mission to go to the field where my wather was working to let him know when dinner was ready. Father would ride Caylor to the barn and I would follow behind on Pet. Her little colt kept close behind its mother. Little Jay followed the colt. One day as the little procession was headed for home the little colt happened to notice little Jay close at his heels. With lightning speed he kicked little Jay with full force. He landed in the grass at the side of the road. I slipped to the ground and picked up little Jay. He was unconscious. I thought he was dead and started to cry. I took him to the house for mother's help and sympathy. With wet cloths and lots of love, little Jay was soon ready for another romp or trip.

As time went on, my father's health kept pace with his advancing years. He was no longer able to do strenuous farm work. He disposed of his livestock and farm machinery and bought four acres of land in Springfield Township, Allen County, Indiana. It was located three-fourths mile east of the old Wise schoolhouse. The property had a good house and a small but well-built barn. However, it was large enough to provide a home for one cow and a horse named Charlie. It also provided a home for rats. At intervals my father would make a raid on the rats. He would station mother just outside the door, equipped with a picket, a leftover from an old fence. Little Jay would be so excited he would rush about like everything depended on him. On one particular day, mother missed the rat and struck little Jay. He was rendered unconscious. Thinking he was dead, I began to cry. Mother said to put a wet towel on his head which I did as quickly as possible. In less than an hour little Jay was on his feet again.

At intervals, my father would drive to the grist mill at Spencerville to get corn and oats ground for the cow and old Charlie. Little Jay always went along on these trips. He would growl and bark at old Charlie, as though everything depended on him. One day as they rounded a corner, little Jay lost his balance and was thrown to the ground. He was unconscious when father picked him up. Thinking he was dead father put him in the back compartment to take him home. Little Jay must have a decent burial. When they arrived little Jay was on his feet again.

Little Jay's final encounter with misfortune came when he was nine years old. By that time, he was quite feeble. He fell from the porch and died instantly. His little neck was broken. It was in the spring of the year. Lilacs were in bloom. We placed a bunch in the box with his body.

Little Jay was dead.

(The accompanying story is true. It was written in September of 1978 by Stella Deitrick Goldsmith of Spencerville who will be 94 at the end of this month.)

Plainsman Club's 'Annie Oakley' Scores Trick Shot 'First'

When members of the local Plainsman Muzzle-loader Club were guests of the Ligonier club for a shoot October 29, a local woman scored a "first" in an unusual shooting event. The setup is two birds, one on each side of an axe blade. The trick is to hit the blade edge with a ball, splitting the ball to break both birds.

Shirley Mack of Saint Joe accomplished the feat last Sunday and the Ligonier members said it was the first time a woman had made the shot. In another event, she shot the eye and the mouth out of a small pumpkin.

In total scoring of 33 shooters from both clubs, seven local shooters placed as follows: Rick Werner 9th, Shirley Mack 10th, Tom Mack 14th, Walt Perry 15th, Sandi Perry and Dick Mack 16th and Karen Werner 30th.

When Shirley made her trick shot at the Ligonier Pumpkin Shoot at the Tanizey Farm, she says her face got "red as a beet."

Pre-Election Musings

I read with amusement this week the accusations directed toward the county prosecutor's office, the auditor's office and the assessor's office that the three offices are the "most expensive" in comparison with a few other area counties. The implication is that the incumbent candidates are extravagant in the operation of their respective offices.

No, it isn't "funny" to them. My amusement is that the accusations have come just a week before the general election Tuesday, November 7. If those incumbents have been extravagant, why haven't we heard about it before??? We could have been saving money!

The trouble is, the accusations are based on statistics, and unless careful scrutiny is kept on comparisons, you can end up adding apples and oranges—and come up bananas!

I smiled in particular at the accusations against county prosecutor Charlie Winans. Fortunately the Auburn Evening Star exercised fair journalism in reporting the matter by giving significant space to the replies made by the three accused incumbents.

I had an additional smile as far as Charlie Winans is concerned because the matter involves the use of statistics or "figures." And I had a particular meeting of the school board come to mind back when we had a group fighting for a central site location for the new junior-senior high school. Present at the meeting was Nelson Grills, an Indianapolis attorney who represented our protest group. He presented some figures to the school board in behalf of our protest group (among them, as I recall, the fact that 40% of the eastern district's total enrollment came from the Riverdale area). As legal counsel for the school corporation, Charlie naturally had to reply to the presentation by Mr. Grills. And Charlie started out with, "Well, you know, there is an old saying that 'figures don't lie, but liars do figure.' "

I thought that was a "low blow" and was disappointed to hear it. But that's the way it was. And now that the matter is a thing of the past by several years, it may seem unfair to mention the incident because it might hurt Charlie's present re-election campaign. I only mention it to point out how incidents tend to log memories to other times and moments. And what was in the past a very serious and crucial matter becomes a matter of history. (Incidentally our protest group WAS right but we didn't win the fight!)

As for Charlie, he is only human, like the rest of us. And his nature is such that he CAN be pretty irritating at times. But overall, his efforts as prosecutor have been in the interests of the general public in protecting society from criminals. A few years ago, he was giving some speeches warning listeners about the dangers of communism. He's a good American in my book and there could not be anyone more concerned about his nation, his state, his county and his community than Charlie Winans.

I've noticed the campaign ads of Woodrow Wilson in the other newspapers and on radio. The word "integrity" is especially emphasized in some. And "experience" is pointed out in others.

I'm not sure how you "prioritize" something and I wonder about "ve-HE-mently" doing something else. But I do recall that Mr. Wilson withdrew his candidacy for the State Senate when he became miffed at the tactics of Senate committee chairmen earlier this year— including those in his own party. Mr. Wilson is a candidate because he was appointed to fill his own vacancy, after he obviously had reconsidered.

Having had a serious heart ailment during the past year, perhaps Mr. Wilson's upset can be explained as a result of the stress and strain that comes with concern for one's health or the health of one's family.

While there are a few times when I thought Mr. Wilson was doing a good job of representing the will of the people, there were more times when I felt he was on the wrong track. And the fact remains, he DID withdraw his candidacy and was then later appointed as a candidate.

I haven't known Dick Worman for any great length of time. However, he does not strike me as being roused to anger and retaliation. Rather, he seems to be a steady type of individual who would probably listen without malice even if you read him up one side and down the other.

Many candidates use the pitch "one who listens" in their campaigning. From my knowledge of him, Dick Worman IS one who listens—and that's the kind I want in the State Senate.

Besides, if Doc Bowen says, "I want him on my team," that's good enough for me.

Students Share Views On Grade Penalty, 'No-Exam' School Rules

(Editor's Note: "Inside Eastside" is the official publication of the student body at DeKalb Eastside High School. In the September 27, 1978, issue an article appeared under the headline, "Two percent rule applauded." Mark Haberkorn expressed views concerning a grade penalty system instituted by the administration to help combat absenteeism, a major problem the past few years.

Then in the October 25 issue, Sunda Obendorf expressed opinions which differed in certain respects, and added some thoughts about final exams.

The two articles are presented herewith.)

TWO PERCENT RULE APPLAUDED

by Mark Haberkorn

I may sound like a traitor to the rest of the students, but I think that the two percent rule is a good idea, particularly for those who are planning to work this year or are already doing so.

For those of you who don't quite understand this rule, here it is: Every day you don't have a legitimate reason for not being in class, two percent is knocked off your nine-weeks' grade. This may not seem like much, all by itself, but consider—if you skip class four times, it could drop your grade from a solid B (90) to a C or C- (82). In some cases, it could mean the difference between passing and failing.

The reason this is such a good idea is because it creates a job situation in which tardiness results in pay loss. If you have a boss who is really tough on being at work on time, he is going to start docking your paycheck every time you arrive five minutes late. If you work on an assembly line, five minutes could set the whole operation back an hour or more.

Even if you do not work on an assembly line, being on time is important. Anyone who has a job knows that, which brings me to my next point. If you skip class and forsake your education, you won't have a chance of getting a very good job ahead of someone who graduated from high school and college. Not much of an education results in not much of a job.

This two percent rule should be enough of an inspiration to get kids back in class to achieve the education they need, if they intend to land a decent job.

STUDENT KNOCKS TWO PERCENT RULE

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter in response to Mr. Mark Haberkorn's article on the two-percent rule and in regards to the no-exam rule based on attendance.

I feel that the two-percent rule is ridiculous. It is designed to keep kids in class. However, I feel it isn't going to make too much difference. I feel the majority of kids who skip class frequently don't care about their grades anyway. To them, two percent isn't much of a deterent. Mr. Haberkorn said a student without a legitimate reason for absence would lose two percent from their final grade. Well, I have a question for the administration. Why then, when I was on vacation, were only half of my days absent excused?

It seems peculiar to me that being in Hawaii was legitimate for three days but not the other two. Perhaps the administration should take another look at what is legitimate and what isn't. When I came back from vacation, I had make-up work in two of my five classes, and yet I'm supposed to lose four percent in each class. I view this as being grossly unfair. This brings me to my next gripe—the no-exam rule based on attendance.

I feel academics is a school's prime concern. Therefore, the luxury of not having to take exams should be given to the student who does good work, not the one who comes to school each day. If you stop and think about this rule, this is what could easily happen. A student comes to class each day; however, he does no work. He only does the bare minimum to get by. At the end of the semester, he has only missed class twice. Rah! Rah! He doesn't have to take his exams because he was in class. Is this fair to the student? I don't think so; he should have to prove he knows the subject better than unsatisfactorily. It's too easy for people to lie down and rest when they know they can slide by with little effort. The idea of school is to learn—not beat the system.

In other schools I understand that they have rules where exams may be waived if the student has a "B" average. I applaud these rules. They have kept the school's prime concern—education—in view.

I only hope the school board and the administration will reconsider these two rules next year and adopt new ones that make more sense. Thank you for allowing me to express my views in this paper. I only wish more students would take advantage of this privilege.

If you'd like to smooth out the ups and downs of your electric bill, we have a way.

It's called the Equal Payment Plan.

And it's simple. We average out your electric usage and bill you a fixed amount each month based on that average. You'll continue to receive a bill each month showing your actual usage, but you'll pay the fixed amount.

The twelfth month is "settle-up" or final payment month.

We'll automatically review your account every six months, so that you'll know whether your electricity costs are going up, or down, or staying about the same.

If an electric bill you can budget for sounds like a good idea (and it does appeal to a lot of our customers), simply contact us. We'll take it from there.

DAR Meets

Mrs. Jerry Zonker and Miss Linda Yoder were the hostesses for the October meeting of the John Houlton Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Chapter Regent Mrs. Ernest Harter opened the meeting with the regular ritual, followed by the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag. The President Generals' message was then read.

The National Defense report concerned the SALT II talks with Russia, their secretiveness, and the fact that the SALT I talks gave every military advantage to the Russians.

After the minutes were read, the treasurer's report and the committee reports were given.

A report on the State Conference held October 2-4 at the Atkinson Hotel in Indianapolis was discussed by the delegates Mrs. Clarence Bowers and Mrs. Ernest Harter. The John Houlton Chapter was a second-place winner in the State Press Book competition.

Each Dar chapter in the state brought a doll dressed in the style of the 1890's. Mrs. Everett Allen, after much research, prepared a beautifully dressed Bride Doll for the John Houlton Chapter. These dolls will be given to the children at the DAR shcools at Tamassee in North Carolina, and Kate Duncan Smith School in Alabama.

The meeting was closed by the Americans Creed.

Mrs. Hubert Kinsey presented the program on "Pioneers of Northern Indiana". Most of the early settlers were young adults, optimistic and adventurous. They usually came from the East, down the Ohio River to Ohio. As Ohio became more settled, they migrated westward into Indiana and Illinois. Michigan and the northern counties of Indiana were settled by people from the New England states who came by the way of New York State and along the Great Lakes into Ohio and on westward.

Land was selected for purchase by the type of forest growing there. Hardwood trees usually meant fertile soil, also material for housing. Land was not available for purchase until it had been surveyed and the Indians subdued. When the land was sold it was priced at $1.25 to $2 an acre, and usually sold in large sections, which were later resold. The land deed was written on parchment and signed by Martin Van Buren.

The family of pioneers traced by Mrs. Kinsey was the John S. Ulery family who settled near North Manchester in 1835. These were her own ancestors.

The next meeting will be November 11 at the home of Mrs. Clarence Bowers in Waterloo.

Organ Dedication

Jay Blauser, organist and choir director at St. Peter Evangelical Lutheran Church in Spencerville, has announced that a service of dedication will be held Sunday afternoon, November 12, at 2:00 p.m. at the church. The congregation has just completed the installation of a Wicks pipe organ and the November 12 service is for the dedication of the custom-built instrument which cost around $45,000.

Music for organ, brass, tympani, choir and flute will highlight the service. Guest organist will be Mrs. Richard Delegrange-Phillips. Mrs. James Besyner, Mr. John Bremer, Miss Patty Markle and Carroll High School music students will be guest instrumentalists.

The St. Peter Chancel Choir will sing under direction of Mr. Blauser.

Rev. Walter Stitt and Rev. Wilbur Miller will preside over the service.

A reception in the undercroft will follow the service.

The public is invited to attend this special service.

St. Joe News November 2, 1978

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR—

Ted—

After reading your article on Proposition 13, I ran across this fascinating article on what the Proposition has brought the "average guy" in California. Taxpayer revolt scares me.

Jim
(Rev. D. James Kuchera)

Pastor Kuchera served the local Lutheran parish as "Dennis J. Kuchera" before moving to his present pastorate at Columbus, Indiana.

The article referred to appeared in "Harper's." It was written by Arthur I. Blaustein who is identified as chairman of the National Advisory Council on Economic Opportunity, and a contributing editor to "Social Policy."

Mr. Blaustein says that Proposition 13 was promoted not only by Howard Jarvis but also by "landlords and moneyed taxpayers." He predicts that in a few years the property tax reduction will become a property tax increase in dollars and cents due to the provisions of the bill, including the fact that property will be assessed at current market value when purchased, newly constructed, or change in ownership has occurred. With the change in ownership occurring much more in the 1970's than in previous decades, Mr. Blaustein says "tax relief for most homeowners will be at best temporary."

Mr. Blaustein says that "because families move more often than such corporate leviathans as Standard Oil, Lockheed, Kaiser, and Ford, the heaviest property tax burden must shift from the corporations best able to bear it to individuals." Yet, later in the article, he points out that increased costs in corporate operations are passed on to the consumer.

(And wasn't it Lockheed who hollered "help" to the federal government a couple of years ago due to imminent bankruptcy?)

A key to his outlook is evident in the following excerpt: "The issue of big government versus small government is moot; big government is here to stay." Other comments indicate that he looks upon the pursuit of "property" as being somewhat sinful. This seems somewhat at odds with the general nature of the United States in its 200-plus years of existence wherein conscientious labor is rewarded by the reward of "property" in whatever form in might be (money, land, homes, automobiles, etc.).

Anyone wishing to read the entire article may do so at the News Office. —Ed.

Gamma Lambda

—Judy Washler, reporter

On Saturday, October 21, the Gamma Lambda Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, an honor society for teachers, met at the Trinity United Methodist Church in Kendallville for a noon luncheon. Members received their new program booklets and were also reminded about the mini-seminar on "The Values Clarification Process" to be given by Dr. Sidney B. Simon November 3 and 4.

The main business for the day was the silent auction. Members brought in many varied items such as homemade pies, cakes and cookies; pumpkins, gourds and Indian corn decorations; knitted and handmade crafts and hobby items; and various house plants. Money collected from this auction will be used by the chapter throughout the year for various educational programs, scholarships and grants.

Teachers attending the meeting from the DeKalb eastern school district were Donna Jewel, Beverly Martin and Judy Washler.

The November meeting will be held at Gottfried's Restaurant in Garrett.

Rapping With Youth About.....
The Use Of Political Deception

Since the voting age has been lowered to 18, you are on the threshhold of an expanding atmosphere of participation—if you are going to be responsible citizens. To be a responsible citizen in voting matters, it is important to keep in mind only those matters which relate to a candidate and his or her capability and general ideas on government in our society ("philosophy" is the word and it's not "uppity-puppity"—it's "everyday" and it's important).

This is the type of article which is considered by some people as being "unkind" because it involves someone with a serious illness who has been in the headlines due to that serious illness. I purposely waited until after the November 7 election to express the following views in order to avoid being accused of a pre-election "cheap shot."

I am always suspicious of the timing of certain events. The effect of the timing can influence such things as an election. The timing in this instance is suspicious, as are a couple of other details.

In late October, the Auburn Evening Star and other newspapers using the services of United Press International ran a story about Marvella Bayh, wife of Indiana Senator Birch Bayh. The story was that an article in the November issue of Good Housekeeping, written by Mrs. Bayh, "said that the cancer she thought she had beaten in 1971 after a mastectomy not only returned but became so widespread it is inoperable." The story goes on to say that she "heard the news in February that she had 'about one good year . . . perhaps five or six or more, with treatment.' Mrs. Bayh said she 'felt as though I had been hit with a hammer'."

The article noted that Mrs. Bayh had thoughts of faith and recalled a certain old hymn she remembered from Sunday School in her childhood.

The headline on the Star article was, "Marvella Bayh Happy Despite Imminent Death." The story justified the wording of the headline.

How the public can be misled came to light within a day or two by another national wire services article from the Associated Press. This article reported statements made by Mrs. Bayh to "claify" her previous statements. Here are the eye-opening comments she made:

She is "living a very happy life with the knowledge that I have cancer. . . .; and

". . . .I am not 'dying' of cancer."

Mrs. Bayh said she was concerned about a headline, "Just One Year To Live," on the magazine article she had written. Her doctor had actually told her that with treatment she could expect to live from one to five or six years or even longer.

Senator Bayh was in Fort Wayne after the first wire service report came out. He received considerable space in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette when he attended a prayer breakfast and asked those attending to pray for his wife.

The Senator had also received a lengthy apology from the Journal-Gazette a few days before. The newspaper said it had been misled by reports coming from Washington about the Senator's involvement in alleged receipt of monetary or material gifts. The Senator's staff prepared a lengthy reply to the charges, stating that the charges were false. (A copy is available at the News Office if you care to read it.)

Isn't it strange that the story Mrs. Bayh wrote for a national publication was misleading not only to the public but also to the the publication itself? If there had not been something in that article of a suggestive nature, the publication would not have titled her story, "Just One Year To Live" (although I must admit that there are many people in the field of public information who are led more by the desire for sensationalism than for truth).

Isn't it strange that the article came out just before an election? No, Senator Bayh was not running for election. But he was campaigning in Indiana for his party's candidates. Included in those candidates was John Walda of the Fourth Congressional District in Indiana who was having difficulty in finding a campaign issue with which to confront his opponent, Dan Quayle.

In my book, there was deception all the way around. There was deception in the article in the national magazine leading to a feeling of sympathy which voters often transfer to political candidates who may be completely unrelated except for party affiliation.

There was deception by Senator Bayh at a prayer breakfast when he asked for prayers for his wife from those attending who had the very definite impression that she had only a year to live.

There was deception in the effort to lead voters to subconsciously tie the life expectancy of a sick woman to the election campaign then in progress and thus help a local candidate who had virtually nothing on which to base a campaign. (If you believe my conclusion is "far out," keep in mind that an effort was made to tie veteran Senator William Proxmire and his philosophy to the candidacy of Mr. Walda. A rally held in Fort Wayne for Mr. Walda's benefit was reported in depth by the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette, with very little information related to Mr. Walda but a large amount to Mr. Proxmire.)

If these comments sound unkind, keep in mind that Mrs. Bayh pointed out the deception herself, though she did not use the word "deception," when she appeared on a TV "talk show" and said:

"I am not 'dying' of cancer."

Obviously, she is more honest with the public than is her husband who had every opportunity to correct an erroneous impression at a Fort Wayne appearance but chose instead to use his wife's illness as a political tool.

In sharp contrast, we have the campaign efforts of Doc Bowen for members of his party. He didn't use Mrs. Bowen's terminal illness in his campaigning. In fact, I didn't know she is terminally ill until I saw the illness mentioned in a Fort Wayne News-Sentinel story after Tuesday's election containing speculation on the Governor's future political efforts. The brief reference to the illness was buried back on page eight.

The situation makes very clear the inclination of Senator Bayh to use anyone and anything to gain personal political power and advantage.

Around the Town
WITH THE EDITOR

As the vote tallies came in at Republican headquarters in Auburn Tuesday night and the number of precincts to report dwindled, the victories received applause as they were announced. But the applause was not resounding as would normally be expected. The reason: the continuing margin of around 700 votes by which Kirk Carpenter led the present prosecutor. It is not an exaggeration to say that a few were literally stunned by the defeat of Mr. Winans. He appeared to be taking it more in stride than others present.

County chairman Bob Wilder called on the victorious candidates to say a few words. Mr. Winans was also asked to make some remarks. He said he was right back where he started several years ago when he was defeated in the race for prosecutor by a candidate who had never tried a criminal case in court. He directed attention away from himself by noting that the election of Larry Myers as sheriff would result in DeKalb County having one of the best sheriffs in the state of Indiana. He closed by saying he felt no ill will toward the people of DeKalb County because they have given him good support through the years he served as prosecutor.

There was subdued jubilation on the faces and in the minds of those Republicans who were at headquarters election night. Even the convincing win by Dick Worman over incumbent State Senator Woodrow Wilson, and the even more convincing victory of Quayle over Walda could not overcome the shock of defeat in the prosecutor race. But it was evident that, once again, a Hoosier trait was probably an ultimate deciding factor. That trait: no matter who it is or what party they belong to, when an incumbent nears the 20-year mark in service with the same office, it's time to make a change.

Election Tally

H. Charles Winans was unseated by Kirk Carpenter in the race for county prosecutor in DeKalb County Tuesday.

In the race for Fourth District Representative, incumbent Dan Quayle won over challenger John Walda by a 2-1 margin. The same margin prevailed throughout the Fourth District.

Hoosier support for Republican candidates was evident all over the state with the GOP now having a majority in both houses of the General Assembly.

Local vote tallies at Tuesday's election are as follows ("C" for Concord Township, "N" for Newville Township, "S" for Spencer Township and "Co" for county):

Haunted House?

Sheila Thacker approached the editor this week with, "Put it in the paper! Put it in the paper! There are ghosts in the house!"

The story is that Sheila was babysitting for Phil and Linda Cleveland last week when she and a friend or friends heard noises in the basement. It was "like someone chopping wood" and there was the additional frightening matter of the lights going off and then coming back on.

There was another case of a "haunted house" a few years ago when a couple bought a property in town, then took off without taking their furniture; they just wanted to get out!

The "haunting" involved hearing a child crying at night. There were reports at the time that the crying had been heard by other individuals in years past.

Does Saint Joe have two haunted houses???

Riverdale PTO Open House

All parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles, other relatives and friends of students at Riverdale Elementary School are urged by Principal Charles Ray to mark Tuesday, November 21, on their calendars as the date for the annual Riverdale Elementary School Open House. Time is 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. with a PTO meeting to be held from 7:00 to 7:30 p.m.

"Positive Mental Attitude" will be the theme of this year's open house which will be held during and as a part of Positive Mental Attitude Week at the local school. Emphasis will be placed on courtesy and respect and the importance of having a positive mental attitude. The school's Student Council is in charge of promoting the project.

Due in large part to the tremendous parental and public support shown each year, the open houses at the DeKalb eastern elementary schools have been reported by the National Education Association in its open house observance manual, according to Mr. Ray.

Mr. Ray said, "The DeKalb Eastern Community School District is fortunate in having excellent elementary school facilities and staffs, and this is a very good opportunity to view all the classrooms, see the work being done by the students and meet and talk to the teachers."

The open house provides an appropriate time each year for parents and other citizens to recommit themselves to making schools better as well as making "the" school "our" school, Mr. Ray emphasized.

Refreshments will be served in the cafetorium during the open house. A choral group will provide entertainment throughout the evening.

The Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Forrest Bevington. The president, Mrs. Bevington, opened the meeting by leading the collect and the pledge to the flag.

Mrs. Carl Perkins had the lesson, "Famous Personalities: Billy Graham," an interesting topic. Mrs. Harvey Carr had entertainment. Mrs. Roy Baker gave the critic's report.

The meeting adjourned after which the hostess served a very delicious dessert.

'The News' Still In Business

A supply of newsprint finally arrived at the News Office this week. The last of some 900 sheets obtained from Waldo Dick at the Cedar Creek Courier the past two weeks was used in publishing the November 2 issue. In fact, the supply ran out before a complete run was made. When the shipment of newsprint arrived Thursday, the run was completed. Thus, some readers will receive that issue very, very late.

Since the "offset" process of printing newspapers has almost totally replaced the "letterpress" process, and since virtually all newspaper presses are now roll-fed instead of sheet-fed, the problem of obtaining sheet newsprint became acute for this paper. It is still printed the "old-fashioned" way, by handfed-sheets and by letterpress.

Paper mills reportedly will not run sheet newsprint unless by special order and by carload lots. A "premium" is added to the cost for the special order. The shipment received by The News this week was cut from roll newsprint by Shorr Paper Products of Aurora, Illinois. Thus the paper you are now reading was not obtained through "normal" channels nor by "normal" processes.

The Aurora firm usually has sheet news in supply for use by industry for packing purposes. It is not exact in size, a 24x36 stack having a variation of up to five inches or more. Due to the need for exact dimensions for press runs, the firm therefore cut this paper on special order, necessitating an additional $5.00 per hundred pounds cost.

But—we do have some newsprint now and will keep plugging, or agitating, depending on the reader's point of view.

Thanks go to Waldo Dick for providing the name of the Aurora firm, to Tom Hohmann and his sweet-voiced secretary at Schorr Paper Products for their part in helping The News to continue its total preparation and printing right here at home.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Friends:

On behalf of all of us here at Americans Against Union Control of Government, please accept my thanks for your recent contribution of $15.00 to our program.

We are involved on many fronts in the continuing battle to maintain control of our government - federal, state and local. For example, quick legal action by this organization was successful just recently in preventing a nationwide postal strike.

Even since then, our educational efforts in California were successful in ensuring defeat of a bill in that state which would have made it mandatory for local government employees to pay an "agency shop" fee to a union in order to work.

There have been many other union attacks on the sovereignty of our government. The revision of the Hatch Act, which would remove protections from union political coercion from our federal workers, is unlikely to be approved by Congress this year because our educational efforts have alerted our elected officials to the dangers of this action.

In addition, we are constantly involved in research, in public forums, and in our political action efforts. I am glad that you have decided to become a part of this vital concern!

Sincerely,
David Y. Denholm
President

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 360, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

The town board has undertaken a good project in getting residences numbered. But there are a couple of things which I have suggested to Loretta Loy to avoid misunderstanding about the status of the map to be used. One is that a notation should be placed on the map pointing out that the map is for visual identification purposes only. It is not a map of exact property lines nor of lot numbers in legal descriptions. The second is to check the spelling on some names. A few are misspelled and should be corrected. Since Burt Hollman has done such a neat job in drawing the map, using a map sketched in the past by Steve Monroe, maybe he would letter in the names and make it a first class job all around. (I have a "thing" about having lower case and capital letters intermixed in words).

Steve got into some "hot water" this week with his grievance about lack of training for certain members of the fire department. On probation after an internal matter in the department, he has been "gung ho" on requiring that every member know how to operate all the fire fighting equipment When we've talked about the matter, I've warned him that you can expect only so much from the average volunteers. They have work hours, families and other activities making demands on their time and you can't expect more than what the individual is able to give in volunteer time. Town board member Loretta Loy has also warned Steve in the same manner.

So now there is a "bad situation" — and believe it or not, the local editor didn't cause the trouble!!!

While I believe that Steve has gone too far in this instance, I must also point out that he is the only member of the department who has provided information about training session schedules around the county, he was the one who said "put a thank you in the paper to Gary Norton and Gerald Krafft for donating materials for emergency sandbags," and one or two other items that were PUBLIC INFORMATION of value to readers.

So, while I disagree with his outlook on mandatory training requirements for firemen, I must also remember that he has been the best "volunteer fireman" you could ask for in trying to keep the public informed.

Did you see where McDonald's restaurants are feeling a cut in sales due to a rumor that they add worms to their ground beef? The company says there is no truth to the story.

Even if they did add worms to the meat, what's the big fuss? Worms are reported to be highly nutritious.

It's just the idea—eating worms—I suppose. It's comparable to the public's hesitancy using the sludge from sewage treatment plants, but they'll dump commercial fertilizer on their gardens without a second thought as to what is in it.

Reminds of the old one:

"What do you use on strawberries—sugar?"

"No — — manure."

Brace yourself; the moaning has already started.

The public revolt against governmental spending is having its effect on new appropriations. An announcement from the Indiana Employment Security Division says the agency "may be forced to lay off about 100 of its employees early next year. . . " The agency now employs 1,850 people.

In Fort Wayne, a news item states that there will be less money for CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act). That act was originally intended as a help for minority and less-educated citizens. It turned into a means of providing money for people whose jobs were far from "training" or "comprehensive." Some cities have used CETA money to pay muncipal employees and thus take the burden off the local tax rate. CETA money has also been used to pay cultural enthusiasts. Though the top pay allowed has been $7.200, many of those receiving CETA income have been far from destitute.

There will probably be more moaning heard in the future. if federal and state elected officials heed the voice of public concern about too much governmental spending, too much welfare.

Keep in mind the New Jersey city whose young mayor said "no" to pay-but-no-work welfare handouts. The number on welfare dropped from 34 to 1. The city's population is 5000. Then welfare officials tried to FORCE the city into hiring a $30,000 a-year welfare director and re-institute the old handout system. Fortunately, they were not successful.

So, again, brace yourself. A lot more moaning will be heard about "losing" this or that program if our elected officials stick to their guns. The real reason for the moaning, however, will be due to the end of the "gravy train" for many who have enjoyed welfare handouts or non-productive "jobs."

House Number Maps Available For Corrections

Copies of the proposed numbering system for the town of Saint Joe are now on display in local business establishments. The ordinance governing the system has not yet been officially enacted. However, the mays on the town showing the assigned numbers and respective residences is the system which will be adopted.

Through the cooperation of Burt Hollman and the local Vulcraft plant, Loretta Loy, a member of the town board, obtained a drawing of the town and the copies of the drawing now on public display. She has asked that any corrections or suggestions be given to her as soon os possible so that the map can be as accurate as possible when the map is made "official."

The local town board began planning the numbering system earlier this year. The use of the map is primarily directed toward emergency circumstances.

The map is not an official map of property boundaries. It is only useful for identification purposes. Property lines and numbers are not to be considered for use in legal matters.

In order that he map be as accurate as possible for identification purposes, town residents are urged to notify Mrs. Loy of corrections or suggestions.

Firemen Face Grievance Action

A problem has arisen in the functioning of the local volunteer fire department. It involves a "grievance" presented Monday night by Steve Monroe, a probationary member of the department. Mr. Monroe seeks to have the by-laws adhered to regarding attendance at training sessions.

The matter will be resolved by the department's grievance committee, according to fire chief Fred Rayle.

The training requirements as established in the by-laws have led to a somewhat embarassing situation. One of the firemen who is subject to the grievance is president of the town board. Another has been with the department for some 30 years or more. There are five others involved. However, Mr. Rayle pointed out that the by-laws were approved by the general membership a little over a year ago after being revised and brought up to date.

Lion Ladies Get 'Oops!' Award

TAIL TWISTER REPORT

This is one of the three special nights a year we set aside to say thank you to the ladies for helping at the Lions tent during fair week.

Special instructions on the assembly of a Lions Club ham burger, plus the definition of a hamburger according to Webster, is, "A cooked patty of ground beef, often in a sandwich." So, according to Webster, the ground patty is often in a sandwich, but not according to Jean Shockley. Seems Jean was making humburgers during the fair and the customer must have had quite a surprise when he bit into his hot and juicy hamburger and all he got was a plain bun wrapped in paper.

A special award was also given to Geraldine Hurni for her attempt at cutting a pie into sections, then putting them in individual paper plates. Geraldine was serving up the pies so fast she got ahead of the paper plates and ended up putting a piece of pie directly on the table instead of a plate that wasn't there.

For their special deeds they were given a "Ooops!" award.

A special program was presented by the Lions Club. Our guest was John Gunther, "the singing sheriff from Madison County," who is also a fellow Lions Club member. His presentation was SUPER! Not only was his singing enjoyable, even his impersonation of Donald Duck, it was a pleasure to listen to someone who has a love for his God, his family, and his country, which could be seen in his style of getting the point across to us at times of hilarious humor to the more serious moments.

At the end of his program, a standing ovation of 73 Lions and Lionesses was given to John Gunther.

William Miles was inducted as a member of St. Joe Lions Club. He was immediately fined 10c by the Tail Twister. since I couldn't the first time he attended all because of some foolish by-laws. May I mention that he was the only one fined.

Cheers.

Trooper Frank Kessler Gets 'Outstanding' Recognition

Frank Kessler, a former resident of Saint Joe and a member of the Indiana State Police Department for 11 years, has been named "Officer of the Year" by the Indiana Fraternal Veterans and Social Societies, Inc.

The award came as a result of his investigative work in the May 29, 1976, shooting of Leland Atterbury who was riding a motorcycle on US30 near Columbia City.

Lady Blazers, Lithe Lisa 'Pour It On' In Pair Of Season Openers

The Lady Blazers got off to a rousing start in the 1978-79 basketball season with two victories. Tuesday night they defeated Angola 42-33 and Wednesday they smothered Southern Wells 75-38.

Tuesday's game against the Hornets found Angola trying a stall during the first half; they led 16-12 at the half. In the second half, however, they went for more buckets and the Lady Blazers of Eastside took a 29-19 third quarter lead.

In the final period Angola put on a full-court press and pulled up to 36-31. But the locals met the challenge, and came off with the 42-33 win.

Amy Hampel topped scoring with 14 points. Lisa Johnson had 12, Sunda Obendorf 11, Jo Baughman 3 and Laurie Culler 2.

Lisa Johnson went on a scoring rampage Wednesday ending with a total of 39 points on 17 field goals and 5 free throws.

In second place were the Packers coached by Tony Kaiser and Elden Owsley with a 5-4 record. Taking third place were the Rams coached by Dave Cather, Brent Sholl and Larry McKown. They had a 3-6 record. The Dolphins finished with a 3-6 record also and were coached by Jon Johnson and Ron Shultz.

A big "thanks" should go to Burt Hollman for being commissioner of the League and to Mary Ann Eck for taking care of the treasury and concessions.

The season closed with an awards dinner November 18.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I don't like to throw a wet blanket on a news story—and you'll know I'm not just expressing "sour grapes"—because one of our sons is involved.

But that story about the students listed in a high school "Who's Who" may be strictly a promotional gimmick to make somebody some bucks.

When I called the high school to confirm the names of Eastside students, I was told by Principal Bob Williams, Assistant Principal Joe Smith and Student Advisor Jerry Zonker that there are some doubts as to the source of the publisher's name list. They reported that it did not come from the school. Mr. Williams said he is especially careful in such matters because students' names can get on mailing lists of publications or materials which are not desirable—porno mags, for instance.

So—while the students listed are good students, the "Who's Who" may be more a moneymaker for the publisher and less a merit standard.

—I ordered a volume even though I had a nagging doubt in the back of my mind before I talked to the school officials. That's how those "operators" operate—they cash in on parents' impression that it is "the real thing."

—There are other "intimidation" matters—like class rings or keys, graduation scrapbooks, invitations, name cards, and pictures. $3 you pay the photographer to select from your photo proofs????!—o boy. And 30 cents an invitation for graduation is no bargain, nor is $5 for name cards—in the quantities involved with a class of 100 graduates.

—But that's another story.

For now, let's just keep in mind that high school graduates and their families, and newly-weds, are prime targets for outside promoters and salesmen.

A month ago or so, I was rich—momentarily. A bank deposit of $219 left me with a balance of $219,355.41. But the error was corrected right away and now everything is back to normal.

—Shucks.

Dean and Julie Mishler pass on their thanks to those who have been so helpful during Dean's hospitalization—as do Tom and Shirley Mack who have sort of "taken over" in certain matters to see to it that the Mishler family is provided for. Dean's illness is serious and the help given by the community is greatly appreciated.

If you wonder about that notice in the "did you know" column noting that the gas rate is going up 6 cents a year for the average residential non-heating customer, keep in mind that the increases are sought every time there is a fluctuation in pipeline costs. On the other hand, electric rate increases come in bigger hunks because requested rate increases are spaced farther apart. —At least that's the way it looks to me.

Forgive me for the fog I seem to be in occasionally. How else could the "EHS Basketball" item last week come out "EHS Football"???

Suit Continued

A court hearing was held Thursday afternoon this week on the suit filed by the Town of Saint Joe against Rick Wannemacher for violation of certain town ordinances.

Mr. Wannemacher no longer resides in Saint Joe, having reportedly moved to Ohio. His property had been listed for sale in recent months and a buyer found. But when knowledge of the current suit was made known to the prospective buyer, the deal fell through.

The suit was filed by town trustees Floyd Coburn, Fred Rayle and Loretta Loy due to failure to comply with an ordinance requiring a fence around swimming pools within the town corporate limits. Also in contention is the removal of a sidewalk by Mr. Wannemacher without replacing it with a new walk as he was advised to do by a board member. He also installed curb at the residence without requesting permission from the town board or getting recommendations for the location of the curb. Another matter of contention is the blocking of an alley right of way which had caused ill feeling with a neighbor.

Thursday's hearing was continued until December 29, reportedly so that the town can prove it is a town and the local newspaper can prove it is a local newspaper. The legal notice concerning the swimming pool ordinance was published months ago in this paper.

Band Boosters

The Band Boosters are continuing in their efforts to raise funds for the purchase of new uniforms. A candy sale is in progress. And the group plans to give away a ham at the December 20 Eastside basketball game.

Tickets for the ham raffle are 50 cents. They will be available at the Saint Joe Restaurant and Bita General Store plus possibly other businesses. Tickets will also be available at varsity basketball games.

The ham was donated by the Bita General Store and Jim Miller.

Several EHS Students In 'Who's Who'

44 students in the surrounding area, named to "Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1977-78," include 19 from DeKalb Eastside High School, the largest number from any one school in the area.

The annual edition is published by Educational Communications, Inc., of Northbrook, Illinois, and represents the largest school recognition program in the nation. Students are nominated for the annual volume by high school principals and guidance counselors, national youth groups and churches or by the publishing company based on students' performance in scholarship award contests or extra-curricular activities.

Final selection of only 5% of the nation's total number of high school juniors and seniors is based on high achievement in academics and leadership in school activities, athletics or community service.

Selected students also compete for over $40,000 in scholarship awards and participate in the publication's annual opinion poll of teen attitudes.

Other area selections include:

Auburn—Jerry Blomeke and Tammy Nierman.

Garrett—Valerie Gibson, Herbert Hatcher, Jodi Kleeman, Jennifer Potter, Elizabeth Steckley, Terry Graham, Craig Hutton, Karen McFann, Michael Rist, Mary Zeider.

Hamilton—Sharon Buchs, Tom Friend, Kim Gnagy, Teresa Lockwood, Jackie Champion, Darlene Getts, Keith Howard.

LaOtto—Nina Sorensen, Linda Bonar.

'Ladies' Romp

The Lady Blazers raised their record to 3-0 Saturday night with a convincing 72-46 win over Carroll.

Down 6-0 at the start of the game, the locals gained a 16-13 first quarter lead. The halftime score was still a three-point margin at 32-29 for the Eastsiders.

But the second half was a different story as the locals got 20 points in each of the final two quarters while holding the opposition to only 17 points in the entire second half.

Lithe Lisa Johnson scored 17 points in the second half to end up with a total of 25. She had 9 rebounds.

Adorable Amy Hampel led rebounding with 11 and scored 12 points. Super Sunda Obendorf had 5 rebounds and 13 points. Precious Paula King came up with 8 rebounds and 12 points.

Coach Valerie Gates, who took over head coach duties when Bob Brown left the school faculty, obviously has the Lady Blazers continuing in their winning ways thus far. The Lady Blazers were sectional champions the past two years and have four of the starting five this year as carryovers from those sectional titles.

Newville Twp. Homemakers

The Newville Township home Ec Club met November 8 in the Newville UM Church for an all-day meeting and potluck dinner, with Rozella Mickelson and Leta Shaffer hostesses.

President Zella Collins called the meeting to order and read "You've Come A Long Way, Baby" Doris Hart gave devotions using material from "Lovingly" by Helen Steiner Rice. Lois Guiff accompanied by Dorine Singer led in singing the song of the month, "God Our Help In Ages Past."

19 members gave their opinions on the new fashions for roll call.

"Happy Birthday" was sung to Belva Smith and Katheryn Kreig.

Potluck dinner and revealing of 1978 secret pals will feature the December 11 meeting with Zella Collins at 11 a.m.

Rumors 'Flying'

The requested review of the training records of certain members of the Saint Joe-Concord Township Fire Department obviously was blown out of proportion last week. Rumors led the Butler fire department to believe that this community had been left without protection because half the department had been "suspended." The rumors were "flying" before the article about the matter appeared in last week's issue of this paper.

WIFF news reporter Pat Oberlin of Butler helped to squelch the rumors by checking with Saint Joe town board member Loretta Loy about the situation before putting a report on the air last week.

Indications are that what is normally an internal affair in the department became a bigger "thing" than it actually is and that firemen are going to respond to any emergency that might arise.

It should be noted that the Butler department was ready and willing to give assistance if this community actually was shorthanded in protection.

4-H'ers Feted

The Tri-Township Farm Bureau sponsored the 4-H Achievement Award evening November 13 at the Saint Joe Conservation Club building. Concord, Newville and Spencer club members attended, along with parents and adult leaders.

Pastor Phil Lutz of the Mt. Pleasant-Newville churches gave devotions on "our worth and winning."

Extension agent Paula Hook gave the county awards, the adult leaders gave their club awards, and Farm Bureau gave 60 silver dollars, one to each boy and girl who completed their 4-H work.

Larry Kees of the Auburn police force and Charles Miller and Ron Ladd of the Butler police force gave a canine show of how their dogs are trained and how they work in the law enforcement program of DeKalb County.

The program was much appreciated by the 75 people attending.

Refreshments were served to all.

Amendments Need Publicity

There is one thing which was made clear by the November 7 general election. It relates not to the candidates but to the Indiana Constitution and the manner in which adjustments are made in its provisions.

I don't know if I am a member of the majority or the minority—but I didn't know about the appearance of two proposed constitutional amendments on the November ballot until maybe a month or less before the election. And my knowledge came as a result of reading Dave Kurtz's column in the Auburn Evening Star. Maybe I had read about them before; if I had, I forgot about them with the passage of time.

This isn't the first time the appearance of constitutional amendments "snuck up" on Indiana voters. A few years ago we were hit with five. Discussions were held to a degree about the referenda, but not enough to say that the voting public was well-informed at voting time.

I think there is too much playing around with constitutions in recent years. I don't say that they never should be changed. What I do say is that the more you tinker with them, the more they become similar to the by-laws. And heaven knows we have new laws running out our ears every time state legislatures or the national Congress get together.

In its proper form, a constitution is a comparatively brief statement of purposes and principles. It is not a compilation of laws.

I think there should be a brief stipulation, by law, that any proposed Constitutional amendment in the state of Indiana must be sent to all news media in full context as soon as possible after the state legislature decides to put a proposed constitutional change on the election ballot.

There should also be an official notice sent to all media for broadcast or publication at no charge to the taxpayer. The notice should be made public not less than a month before the election.

I am told that one of the two amendments on the November ballot was not even contained in a resume of legislative action distributed to our elected Representatives and Senators.

It is a strange situation. We have instant communication in so many matters. We read about or hear about matters, some of which would be better ignored. But when it comes to the basic law of the state as reflected by the state Constitution, we put matters up for vote with the public, more often than not, ignorant of the background for proposed changes, the "pros and cons."

I have suggested that official notification be given news media by the state legislature to our local State Representative, Norman Gerig, of Auburn. If you are like me and want to know more about what you are saying "yes or no" to on constitutional referenda, give him a call or drop him a line. He's receptive to the idea and would probably welcome an expression of your opinion in the matter.

Take Out 'T' In 'PTA'??

A recommendation has been presented to the National PTA organization to drop the "T" in "PTA"—in other words, to make the organization strictly parental and not include teachers. The committee recommendation said an organization of just parents might be more helpful to schools.

A co-chairman of the Parents Union for Philadelphia public schools, Mrs. Happy Fernandez, says city schools are being strangled by teacher contracts. She doesn't believe teachers are as purely interested in education as they were in the "pre-union" era.

Mrs. Grace Baisinger, head of the National PTA, said the recommendation will be studied.

There always has been a question in my mind about the effectiveness of parent-teacher groups. Seldom do you hear about our local PTA or PTO groups having a discussion about matters pertaining to the local program of education.

I served as president of the Riverdale PTO for four consecutive years. At that time, "new school" was uppermost in the minds of local patrons and the programs were often related directly to new-school construction. We even had a group of parents (two or three cars, as I recall) make a trip to the Indianapolis area on the same day that the school board made the trip, to inspect two or three schools having "add-on" construction features to take care of future growth. We had many parents interested in the matter, but we received little encouragement from the school board. We were "tolerated" rather than welcomed.

So, while I think Mrs. Fernandez and her committee have a point in making parents the source of support for schools, I would suggest that parental interest can go only so far as the school board will allow.

I'm not sure that shutting teachers out of the organization will mean greater progress in improving education. When the lines of communication are cut, there is less chance of understanding and cooperation between parent and teacher.

Parent-teacher groups could devote more meetings to items of immediate concern in the respective schools. But there is—and always has been—the fear of "starting a fight" if you suggest a discussion on, for instance, "what are the teachers asking for and what is the school board offering" when contract negotiations are going on. Part of the problem is that both the teachers and the board function in secret when it comes to contract negotiations. Despite the so-called "sunshine laws" which supposedly protect the public's "right to know," contract negotiations are discussed in closed sessions.

In addition, there is the actual circumstance that parents have had absolutely no input into the changes in teaching methods. The "new ideas" of educators for the past 15 years have failed to educate in proportion to the amount of money paid by citizens for the operation of schools. Why should the average citizen be so left out??

A recent report issued by the Indiana Department of Public Instruction (and a report recently by an IU professor) stated that students today are learning more than their counterparts of 25 years ago or so. I don't believe it. I don't think educators are capable of making an objective study of the progress of education. I put more faith in the actual experience of business, industry and the professions. And their cry for several years now has been "they can't read, write or spell" in describing the overall capabilities of job applicants.

In addition, there is the fact that "remedial" or "catch-up" courses are offered now at colleges and universities due to the deficiencies in freshman enrollees.

This is getting somewhat off the subject of eliminating the "T" from "PTA." However, if there is going to be any greater usefulness in the organization, there must be greater participation sought by school administration and teachers from the parents of students—and I mean participation in the real "meat" of school operations such as curriculum, methods, salary schedules, extra-curricular activities and so on.

An immediate point is that related to a couple of articles printed in the local school paper and then quoted in these columns thereafter. The general thought of the two students was concern for getting the most out of their high school education. They may have thought they were on opposite sides, but they weren't. And one of them questioned the new policy of not requiring a final exam from students who have near-perfect attendance records. How in the world did that "new idea" get adopted? It totally ignores the importance of determining how much knowledge a student has retained at the end of a course of study.

Did you, a parent, know about the idea? Did you, a parent, have any school administrator, school board member or teacher ask you what you thought about the idea?

Rather than take the "T" out of "PTA," I think there should be more "P" put into it.

Having had first-hand experience in school matters, what with four sons having gone through their primary and secondary schooling right here, and having served the Riverdale and Eastside PTO's as president, I believe my views are as valid as those of anyone currently active in the groups. I share the view of other parents who are displeased because they have virtually no input into matters affecting their—and my—offspring.

President Declares-Contradicts

President Jimmy Carter addressed the nation recently on TV and should be given credit for facing the truth in our inflation woes—the American people must show restraint in business, labor and government.

The trouble is, the same warning has been heard for quite some time but those warnings have gone unheeded.

I found it difficult to refrain from having some cynical thoughts while the President spoke. I also found it difficult not to agree with him. Unfortunately, such a warning from the President, of more economic troubles ahead unless we back off right now, is one that he himself has ignored until things got so bad he was compelled to speak on TV about the matter.

President Carter gained some popularity points with his intercession into the Arab-Israeli peace talks. That constructive effort has done nothing, however, to strengthen the American dollar at home or abroad.

The President was guilty of an absolute contradiction in his Tuesday speech. At the beginning, he said that the government should get out of the regulating business and allow the free enterprise system to work out the problem. He mentioned the fact that, on that very day, around 1,000 "nit-picking" regulations instituted by OSHA had been taken off the books. This is supposed to mean that business now has a freer hand in its health and safety programs and will now be able to function under less duress. But removing 1,000 regulations didn't eliminate any government jobs and thus reduce the cost of government. If this nation is going to have a balanced budget, as President Carter declares it will have in the next couple of years, the plain fact is that government jobs must be reduced.

It may sound like a step to reduce the cost of government, but it isn't. Certainly, business in general will welcome the reduction in OSHA regulations. But I wonder if business will be able to breathe much easier. If the same number of OSHA inspectors are on the government payroll, they are going to find violations. They MUST, in order to justify their salaries.

The local pickle processing plant paid at least one fine in the past couple of years when an OSHA inspection pointed out alleged violations. Even though the plant had not willfully or knowingly violated any regulations, it paid the fine rather than appeal and face a probable worse accusation of violations at the hands of a vindictive inspector.

Do you think eliminating a thousand regulations is going to end the harassment of business? I don't, not until the number of inspectors is also reduced and the government shows more faith and trust in business in general.

(And from reading the wire services reports you'd think that toilet seats were the only item "de-regulated"!)

The President's contradiction came later in his speech in that government contracts would not be given to those businesses which do not follow his guidelines in holding down price increases. In other words, government control will be the means of coping with price increases, despite an earlier declaration that business must be relieved of governmental regulation so that it can function more efficiently.

I couldn't help remembering a statement made by candidate Jimmy Carter when he sought election to the Presidency. He said then he was going to reduce the White House staff, that Presidents Nixon and Ford had too many on the payroll. Today, President Carter has a staff larger than the one he said he would reduce.

I couldn't help remembering that, within the recent past, the committee watching over the use of political campaign funds had demanded a refund from the Carter campaign committee because of improper use of campaign funds. And this is the second or third time the committee has found a violation in President Carter's camp. (If President Nixon was supposed to know everything his staff was doing, shouldn't the same knowledge be expected from President Carter about his staff's activities???)

I still cannot understand how anyone, the President or anyone else, can propose to stop inflation by holding price increases and wage increases "down" to a 7% level. Inflation will not be stopped until there is a zero increase in prices and wages. As long as a few big unions can be manipulated by a few of their leaders in contract negotiations for more, more, more, and as long as the Congress establishes automatic wage increases to keep pace with increased prices, we are going to suffer perpetual inflation.

Quayle Priorities

Fourth District Congressional District Representative Dan Quayle has announced the legislative items which are of top priority in his coming efforts in Congress.

The items include:

LIMIT TERMS

Legislation calling for a constitutional amendment to limit congressmen and Senators to 12 years of service, limit the President to a one 6-year term, and limit the terms of federal judges to 15 years.

SUNSET ON PROGRAMS

A proposal known as "Sunset Legislation," passed by the Senate late in the last Congress, which provides for evaluation and review of federal programs on a 3-year timetable to determine whether they should be continued, changed or terminated.

VETO POWER

Early action to give Congress veto-power over regulations which are written and promulgated by unelected bureaucrats. Such a one-house veto would give either the House or Senate the right to vote down a proposed regulation before it takes effect.

TV-RADIO OF HOUSE

During the December 4-5 organization caucus, the congressman also plans to fight for a House broadcast rule to open House floor proceedings to complete, continuous and un-edited broadcast coverages with full access to all television and radio stations.

Quayle said the "message from the November 7 elections was that people want less and more effective government." Congress must exercise its oversight responsibility and cut excessive and wasteful government spending and regulatory activities.

Saint Joe Water 'Scare' Prompted By EPA Intrusion

—By The Editor

Ridiculous.

In a word, that's the description of the manner in which federal regulations relate to the quality of the local water supply.

Saint Joe Waterworks patrons received a notice this month of possible contamination of the water—possible, not probable.

The three consecutive months of "bad" reports (August, September and Otcober) were followed by satisfactory reports for November by the State Board of Health.

Since the same thing has occurred in the past and has been taken care of without too much fanfare and without any danger to local citizens, the notice sent to each water user is basically unnecessary. But it is now required by federal law.

Now enters the ridiculous.

The town board was sent a letter by certified mail on November 28, 1978, from Charles H. Sutfin, Director, Water Division, United States Environmental Protection Agency, Region V, 230 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois 60604. In it were stated certain technical requirements for a safe water supply. It was stated that "violations" had occurred in the past and continued violation "demands your immediate attention."

The ridiculous part comes more evident with the following paragraphs from the letter:

"You must report this violation to your customers as required by Federal law. A notice must be published in the local newspaper on 3 consecutive days, and a copy of the notice furnished to the radio and television stations in the area served by your system. In addition, a written notice must be mailed to your customers. A sample notice has been enclosed. You will notice it includes our advice to boil the water to insure its safety. You may also refer to the enclosed Handbook on Public Notification for further details.

"Failure to comply with the microbiological MCL (Section 141.14) can result in the initiation of civil action and imposition of a fine of up to $5,000 for each day during which such a violation occurs. Failure to give public notice (Section 141.-32) can also result in a fine of up to $5,000."

Town board member Loretta Loy said this week she had called Ronald Van Wyk of the Water Supply Branch of the EPA. She told him the problem had been corrected. He said the notices must be issued despite the correction already instituted.

If you want a good example of waste in government, here it is.

We have the State Board of Health monitoring water samples and notifying the town if and when any problems arise. Water purity is thus guarded by a state agency. Why do we need a federal agency in addition to the state agency???

The federal agency requires that Saint Joe's problem be publicized even after it has been corrected—not by general public information announcement but by paid legal advertising. Why do we need an extra bill on the public for something already taken care of???

Consider the costs involved:

—the cost of preparing the notice to water users;

—the cost of a legal notice published "in the local newspaper on 3 consecutive days" (which eliminates "the local newspaper" because it is a weekly publication and the EPA insists on "3 consecutive days");

—the cost of preparing and sending reports from the state agency to the federal agency;

—the cost of preparing and sending a certified letter from the EPA to the local town board;

—the cost of paying the salaries of all those from the administrators to the typing clerks just to let little ol' Saint Joe know that Big Uncle is keeping tabs.

The current problem of inflation is due in great part to the fact that a lot of money is being paid for time put in, not for goods or services produced. The increasing percentage of government employees is, therefore, a major factor in the fewer and fewer goods you are able to buy with your dollars.

In this incident concerning a little town like Saint Joe and the operation of its waterworks facility, there is a first-hand example of the waste we have in government which includes the non-productive costs seen in paying for planners and overseers who force nonsensical and dictatorial regulations on a powerless public.

The one word fits the situation perfectly — "ridiculous."

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Saint Joe residents received a notice with their latest billing that tests of water in the town's water system showed a high coliform count for the months of August, September and October. The coliform organism is used as an indicator of microbiological quality. The test does not mean the water is polluted. It serves merely as an indication that there might be a pollution problem.

The tests for November were satisfactory, according to the State Board of Health.

The "unsatisfactory" tests are nothing new to Saint Joe. There have been other instances in which there were indications of possible water contamination. There is no reason for water users to become alarmed. Tests are so sensitive that the mere touching of a test bottle in the wrong place can result in a "positive" test. Even just breathing on the test bottle can cause a positive result, according to Luther Treesh, our county health officer.

The "bad" tests do not indicate that the town board or the water superintendent were lax in their responsibilities. With the coincidence of three consecutive months of positive tests, there seems to be the possibility that the test bottles might have been contaminated before the town received them, though health officials seem inclined to believe that such a thing is not possible.

Anyhow, one of the warning signs served the useful purpose of establishing that our water supply is safe to use.

It seems to me that a similar incident occurred when I was on the town board. A representative from the State Board of Health told Water Superintendent Bill Mansfield to drastically increase chlorine content. Bill didn't do it, but he did increase the amount a bit. The suggestion from the state office representative was so high that the chlorine odor probably would have driven you out of the house.

That was several years ago. In the curent instance, the input of chlorine has been increased slightly again. With the increased number of homes now using town water, the well may be "pulling in" the water supply more than in the past. According to Mr. Treesh, that increased load can bring more possible contaminating elements.

Restaurant Owner 'Scared' Into Water-boiling

To show how disruptive government "busybodies" can be to the normal routine of the average citizen, the water purity "scare" of the past week prompted the local restaurant to boil its water before use.

Wanda Coburn, whose husband is president of the local town board, knew of the letter to the town from the Region V office of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). The letter referred to regulations governing the boiling of water in instances where water contamination is present.

Though there was no actual contamination, the suggestion of contamination was enough to frighten the restaurant owner into an unnecessary extra duty in serving customers. The word "frighten" is used literally. She was actually afraid that her customers were endangered by the local water supply.

The incident appears to add strength to editorial comments elsewhere in this issue which describe the EPA involvement as "ridiculous."

90th Birthday

Mrs. Lola Kast of Spencerville, now residing at Meadowhaven Nursing Home in Butler, celebrated her 90th birthday Sunday, November 26, at the Spencerville Community Club with family and friends. A potluck dinner was held and cake and ice cream served in the afternoon.

Mrs. Kast was born November 24, 1888, at Hicksville, Ohio. She married E. C. Moore September 18, 1907. She has eight surviving children: Lee Moore of Findlay, Ohio; Leila Blomeke of Garrett; Elizabeth Stemen of Auburn; Akin Moore and Ted Moore of Fort Wayne; Maxine Kelley of Butler; Paul Moore of Saint Joe; and Glenn Moore of Spencerville.

On February 23, 1954, she married Harry Kast. He died October 9, 1962.

Mrs. Kast lived for many years in Spencerville before going to live at the nursing home.

No Local Trucking Problem - Yet

The strike now being imposed on the steel trucking industry by the independent truckers' association is geting closer to home each day.

In the beginning, it was the eastern part of the nation that was affected by the strike. But the incidents of violence or threats of violence have spread into Ohio and Indiana in the past week or so.

The independent truckers want to bargain for themselves. At present, they are represented by the teamsters' union.

According to Keith Busse, plant manager at the local Vulcraft steel girder plant, the strike has not affected plant operations. However, if the violence continues to spread, the company would pull its drivers off the road.

PUBLIC NOTICE

TO: Customers of St. Joe Water Works
FROM: Town Board, St. Joe, Indiana
RE: Microbiological Standards Exceeded

The St. Joe water supply failed to comply with the drinking water standard for coliform bacteria, for the three-month period of August, September and October, 1978. The coliform organism is used as an indicator of microbiological quality of drinking water. While coliform organisms pose no threat to health, their presence does indicate that a source of contamination might exist somewhere in the water system. However, there is no cause for alarm.

An investigation by the Water Superintendent was initiated as soon as the positive samples were reported to him by the State Laboratory. The chlorine solution being used was found to be weaker than normal and the superintendent immediately increased quantity. The November tests were reported satisfactory by the State Board of Health.

Are these worth the electricity they use every day?

These five appliances cost the average I&M customer a total of about $1.07 a day to run.*

And, while you probably think they're worth it, they're also where you can save if you practice conservation.

If you lower the thermostat on your electric water heater to 140° and take short showers instead of full baths, you'll use less electricity.

And if you fix a leaky hot water faucet that drips once a second, you'll save 200 gallons of hot water a month.

The oven? You'll save electricity if you don't preheat. And you'll save even more if you use your counter top oven, instead of your big oven when you warm a few hot dog buns or cook one TV dinner.

Your refrigerator/freezer uses less electricity when you don't hold the doors open or put hot dishes inside to cool.

Partial loads and overloads in your clothes dryer use more electricity. Over drying does, too.

And turn your TV off when you're not watching it.

We're working hard to provide you with the most economical power possible.

We ask that you use it wisely. If you'd like some more ideas on how to conserve electricity, we have some helpful S.A.V.E. booklets that show you how you can conserve and become part of our Save America's Valuable Energy Program. They're yours for the asking.

Because at I&M, we want you to get the most out of your electric service.

Lions Club

Our meeting was started off with Pete Storer, who was presented with a baby diaper when he came in (late as always) and worn all evening as a baby bib with an inscription on it, "I'm not Lion when I tell you I'm a grandpa again." He was assessed a 10 cent fine by the Tail Twister for being proud of overpopulatiog the world. When it came time to pay, Pete didn't have a dime, so Jerry Storer handed him a dime (which was removed from the club treasury when Jerry said he was getting change, but ye olde Tail Twister will have a complete audit done). While all this was going on, inflation hit and Pete's fine went up to 20 cents. Guess who paid that.

Randy Reinhart was given a "hero" badge for his part in saving the railroad a derailment in the Butler orea.

John Paul Hill, the minister at Coburn Corners Church of Christ, was given a name tag. It seems John Paul was No. 1 to us until some Italian comes along and says he's No. 1. Well, that kind of puts our John Paul in the No. II position, which means he'll just have to try harder. And he did until a Pollock comes along and says he's John Paul II. Well, you know where that puts our John Paul, yep, No. III. For how long we don't know.

The Tail Twister really felt bad about giving two of our Lionesses an "Ooops" award. So he apologizes (ha, ha). Anyway, to equal things out and not show any prejudices towards the ladies, it was brought to the club's attention that Frank Sechler was trying to sell hot dogs for half price during the fair week. A customer comes up to Frank and orders two hot dogs, one with mustard and one without.

Frank asks, "Which one?"

Cheers.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Paul Fetters sends his thanks to Chancey Ringler, Mrs. Royce Gibford, the Saint Joe-Concord Township Fire Department and the Monsanto salesman with his fire extinguisher, all of whom provided assistance when Paul's bulldozer caught fire last week. He said it seemed like an hour but it actually was only 10 minutes until the firemen arrived.

That's pretty good time, considering the fact that Chancey had to run over a hill to get the message delivered to call the fire department. Paul really appreciates the assistance everyone gave him.

I have a knack of getting local gals separated from their husbands. —No, that isn't what I mean. What I mean is, I use their maiden names in news items by mistake. The latest was last week when Margie Crow became Margie Fetters.

—I guess that's carrying women's lib too far.

I received a Christmas card postmarked Fort Wayne this week. Inside someone had printed "There's no fool like an old fool" above the card's printed message "Season's greetings and best wishes for the New Year"—which was followed by another hand-printed message "to a bigot and a stupid loud mouth."

I suppose it was a reaction to a "letter to the editor" in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette last week in which I place much of the responsibility for the recent Guyanna mass suicides and murders on the "preachers of permissiveness" such as the Journal-Gazette who, in their zeal to uphold civil rights, prevent (for instance) parents from protecting their children from what the newspaper called "religious charlatans" in a recent editorial. I mentioned the fact that the J-G now says our American society must shoulder some of the blame for the Guyanna deaths for not protecting our young people from the "religious charlatans." But a year or so ago, the J-G was very critical of those parents who had their offspring "kidnapped" in order to have the kids "deprogrammed" from their mental enslavement by the "Moonie" cult.

"Bigot" is defined as one who is intolerant, especially in matters of religion. Whoever sent the Christmas "greeting" apparently believes that "freedom of religion" in this country means allowing the establishment of any type of group activity under the name "religion," even when the "religion" is obviously for some central power and authority of one individual.

I am quite certain that when the founding fathers established "freedom of religion," they had God—spelled with a capital "G"—in mind and not the cult-type of group which quite often has a live, human "god" at the helm.

Communism is a "religion," a God-less religion. And though Marx and Lenin are not living, they are the "gods" to whom communists generally declare their loyalty.

I wonder if there's any significance to the fact that on December 22, 23, 24 and 25, the "Farmers' Newsline" report is on "hogs and pigs."

Retired Teachers

—Hazel Bateman, reporter

A luncheon meeting of the DeKalb County Retired Teacher's Association was held at Platner's Steak House December 6.

Ralph Manroe presided and welcomed the group. Singing of Christmas carols was led by Doris Stuck, accompanied on the piano by Georgina Bowes.

Festive red candle lamps surrounded by holly and evergreen branches decorated the tables set with red place mats.

Members introduced themselves, giving accounts of their past teaching positions and present retirement activities. Following this, the group was entertained by a very interesting and informative travelogue presented by Paul Ankney who recently returned from a trip to Australia and the islands of the South Pacific.

After reading of the minutes of the last meeting by Hildreth Sweeney, the meeting was adjourned.

Tim Rubalcaba Is Exchange Student

Tim Rubalcaba, a sophomore at DeKalb Eastside High School and the son of MM Pete Rubalcaba who reside on State Road 1 halfway between Saint Joe and Butler, was recently chosen to participate in the Central States Rotary Youth Exchange program in August of 1979. The program makes it possible for American youth to live abroad for a year and for students from foreign countries to come to the United States for a year.

Though the host country has not yet been chosen, Tim will live with three families in the selected nation for four months each. Tim has indicated a desire to go to Australia.

The Butler Rotary Club began sponsoring a student two years ago. Preliminary interviews were conducted by the club with three Eastside students. Tim was chosen from the three and went on to a district interview at Wabash.

Tuula Mikkonen, a Finnish exchange student, is currently living in Butler while Fred Hampel and Anita Hudson are living in Sweden and Brasil.

To be eligible for the program, a student must be at least 16 years old but not more than 17 when they leave. They must also rank in the upper one-third of their class scholastically.

'Ladies' Split Pair 50-46, 74-61

In the past three years, it has been seldom that the Lady Blazers scored less than 10 points per quarter with the opposition getting double figures. But Tuesday's game against Heritage showed only one period of double-digit scoring for the locals as Heritage took a 50-46 double-overtime win. The score was close because Heritage also was held down in scoring per period.

The Lady Blazers led at the end of the first half. Then they exploded to a 10-point margin at 24-14 and it appeared they would run away with the game. But Heritage came right back and with a few seconds to go tied the score at 35-all when a freshman pepperpot, Rita Boyle, who played the entire game until fouling out, sank one of two free throws.

In the first overtime, Heritage gained a 42-35 lead as the locals were held scoreless.

Then, with typical Lady Blazer never-say-die determination and with only 63 seconds remaining in the overtime, the Eastsiders tied the score at 42-all as Amy Hampel sank two pressure-packed free throws and no time left showing on the clock.

The second overtime found Heritage gaining the momentum again and coming off with an upset win.

Adorable Amy led scoring with 20 points, including 8 free throws. Lithe Lisa Johnson scored 17.

Super Sunda Obendorf fouled out late in the game and her absence was a deciding factor. Amy fouled out in overtime.

OFF THE CUFF—There was a good-sized crowd at the game, indicating increasing interest in girls' basketball. This is a far cry from the holiday tourney of a couple of years ago when maybe a dozen were present at Norwell. — A half-court field goal contest at the half was too brief (not enough entrants) to make half-time a momentary diversion of entertainment. What is needed is the band across the way to add to students' efforts to promote school spirit. — Precious Paula King gives some height to the Blazers. But her inexperience is evident. All she needs is a few more games under her belt (or is it "bra"???) to give her more confidence and make her more effective in preventing the opposition's drive-in layups from the side. — Jo Baughman, affectionately referred to in these columns as "Runt," had what seemed to be a fast break layup in the second half, but the ref said she was fouled before the shot. It was especially frustrating since she ended up on the seat of her pants because of the foul. —It's rather difficult to find proper phrases to describe action in girls' basketball, as you can tell from the above comments. — A nice feature article appeared in the December 11 issue of the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette about Lisa Johnson.

Lisa topped scoring with 24 points, Amy had 22 and Sunda 18.

The game was won at the free throw line. Both teams had 28 fielders. But The Lady Blazers sank 18 free throws to only 5 for 'Busco.

Computerized - Dehumanized

I find it puzzling that, in school matters, where so much has been said about the importance of the student as an individual, where so much has been sought in teaching methods supposedly to give each student more individual attention, the "in" thing today is to get into a computer programming setup.

Once again the "good" side has been emphasized by school personnel to convince the public that such computerized efforts are worthwhile. The guidance counselor has more time to devote to new students. It is reported that there are 49 new students at DeKalb Eastside this year.

What about decreasing enrollments? What about basically stable courses? Are we supposed to believe that each student needs personal counseling every year, that every year the school "starts from scratch" in establishing the courses to be offered to those taking college prep, those taking whatever other title may be given to a particular line of study through the high school years?

We hear that it will be so much easier to handle grade cards now because the present system involves five to eight cards (actually they're slips of paper) for each student. And the present system was "sold" to the public a few years ago as a computerized system making it easier for teachers and the school office to handle. Now it's a bother.

One of the reasons given for going to the new computer setup is that students will have a very difficult time "doctoring" the computer print-out. When did altering grades become a major problem???

If there is what has been described elsewhere as an "avalanch" of about 5,000 report cards to be handled each grading period, it is because an old system of grade cards was discarded in favor of a supposedly more efficient and more convenient method, now in use but now too cumbersome. Under the old system, there was but one card per student. After grades were recorded on the cards by the teachers, the cards were taken home to be seen by the parents, signed by the parents and returned to school. Instead of having reams of paper involved in the present system, only one card was needed for each student.

The old system was the best system. It had provision for a letter grade to indicate the student's accomplishment, and it had a number grade to indicate the amount of effort put in by the student.

Though the present slips of paper have provision for comments by teachers in the various courses, seldom is any comment made on the slips. It would appear that, going by other justifications for changes in school procedures, teachers want to devote time to "more important" matters.

This isn't intended to be a finger-pointing harangue to embarrass school board members, school administrators or teachers but it probably sounds that way. I just want to point out some things that come to my mind as a parent and as a taxpayer. I think too much emphasis is being made nowadays on "convenience," from food to report cards, to the point that we forget the impersonal nature that comes to those things which we say should be and ought to be of a personal nature. I can understand the problem of being overloaded with work in any occupation. But when a particular occupation of service has its roots in people working with people, no improvement in quality can be expected in overall results just because less time is needed to perform certain duties through a new system.

Look around the world today. Those things which have the highest value (if any value can be attached to them in dollars and cents) are the things which took someone's time to produce. Go to an auction sale and see which items bring the most money. Aren't they what we call "antiques"? Even young people are interested in those antiques because, perhaps subconsciously, they appreciate the personal effort and the time—the TIME—someone took to produce a particular item. In a sense, that article contains part of the person who made it.

Report cards are in the same category, in my book. The personal attention required of a teacher in recording grades by hand, the personal attention indicated in providing not only letter grades but also a measure of pupil effort make the old-fashioned report card infinitely more valuable than a quicker, "more convenient" method.

And, in requiring the signature of a parent on a report card before the card was returned to school to be used again for the next grading period, a closer tie was made between teacher, pupil and parent. Maybe some people didn't think of it in that way, but it is true, nevertheless. Also, by using the same card througout the school year, an example of conserving our natural resources was accomplished. Far fewer trees must be cut down for a single-card-a-year system than for computerized systems which spew out paper every time a button is pushed.

With the leveling off of enrollments, with the emphasis on the worth of the individual, computerized grading and scheduling is a step backward, not forward. If greater demands are being made on the time of those involved in the process, wouldn't it be better to examine the reason for the increased demands on time rather than automatically inaugurate a system which requires more expense?

It has been reported elsewhere as follows: "While it used to take three hours to check for student athletic eligibility because it necessitates checking every athletes individual report cards in each subject and class, the process is pared down to 20 minutes by simply requesting a computer print-out list of the athletes and their grades." How often is it necessary to make such a check-up? Is our administrative office faced with the chore every two or three days? Is this example a fair reason to justify computerization? Why not notify all faculty members that they are to inform the office of any student who is ineligible for athletics because of grades?

Computerized? What's the rush???

Others say. . . .

Notes From The Principal

by Robert E. Williams, Principal, DeKalb Eastside Junior-Senior High School

SPORTSMANSHIP

Generally speaking, we think of sportsmanship as being qualities in behavior befitting a person to include such things as courtesy, fairness, atttitude, consideration for others, etc.

Without the word "good" in front of sportsmanship, there can be no justification for the interscholastic athletic program as we know it in our schools. The educational values derived from the participation in athletic programs are great. These activities serve as a classroom or laboratory which teach educational values such as discipline, dedication, desire, self-respect, courage, dignity, teamwork, integrity, sacrifice, competition, pride, responsibility, respect for others, good health habits, citizenship and leadership.

A good activity program, along with a sound academic foundation, helps develop a good well-rounded individual.

We are proud of the activity programs that we offer students at Eastside Jr.-Sr. High School. Granted, some of our students do not take advantage of these offerings and fail to participate, but this is their choice. We want all of our activities to continue, and we do not want to have any incidents in which our athletic teams, or representatives in other activities or any of our fans, are accused of poor sportsmanship.

Please remember that all of our active participants are young people and are not professionals. Please do not boo our team, or members of other teams. Show your support of our people by cheering in a manner that displays good sportsmanship. There is no place in our program for foul language, either directed at our own team or coaches, or at the opponents. In athletic contests there is always a winner and a loser. Whether we win or lose, we should be able to display good sportsmanship.

Help us build a fine activity program for our young people by displaying sportsmanship that will serve as a good example for all concerned.

Our basketball and wrestling season is in full swing now and we hope you will give our teams your full support and we trust that you will display good sportsmanship throughout the year and help us see that other people do the same.

PUBLIC NOTICE
TO: Customers of St. Joe Water Works
FROM: Town Board, St. Joe, Indiana
RE: Microbiological Standards Exceeded

The St. Joe water supply failed to comply with the drinking water standard for coliform bacteria, for the three-month period of August, September and October, 1978. The coliform organism is used as an indicator of microbiological quality of drinking water. While coliform organisms pose no threat to health, their presence does indicate that a source of contamination might exist somewhere in the water system. However, there is no cause for alarm.

An investigation by the Water Superintendent was initiated as soon as the positive samples were reported to him by the State Laboratory. The chlorine solution being used was found to be weaker than normal and the superintendent immediately increased quantity. The November tests were reported satisfactory by the State Board of Health.

Mothers' March

by Mellody Mason, chairman

There are going to be a few changes with the Mothers March on birth defects this January. In the past years the Marches have had two to four and sometimes up to six weeks to cover the area and return gifts of money to March captains. For the past few years we have run into some bad weather and some areas just never got covered. When you string something out too long, you may lose interest or just not do it at all. This year we would like to do our marching on either a Saturday, Sunday or both days. This will depend on how many volunteers we have to cover all the towns in DeKalb County.

If anyone of high school age on up would be interested in walking one or two days in January, they should call 925-4426. This is for anyone from Saint Joe, Spencerville, Butler, Auburn, Corunna and Waterloo. Garrett residents can call Mrs. Jan Burtch at 357-4023.

The date or dates will be announced later.

If there are enough volunteers for every town, we can cover them in two days. That will make it a little easier on everyone if we can do it this way.

Funds collected by the Mothers March have provided equipment for the East Auburn special education children, the preschool for handicapped children and DeKalb Memorial Hospital. The chapter has also sent O.B. nurses to Riley Hospital for special training.

Though the campaign is called "Mothers March," volunteer help is welcomed from the men and boys in the county.

Not "the" Christmas story - - - - but A Christmas Story

It was Christmas Eve in this typical American household, if typical today means that events which have occurred in these times are not exactly in the pattern which Mom and Dad have experienced and which they had established for their family in years past. A stack of dishes, signifying that at least one tradition, a big Christmas dinner, was obseved in this typical American home, is being washed by Mom and Dad is helping by drying them.

Mom stops momentarily, looks unseeingly straight ahead in deep thought, sighs in perplexity, and then resumes the chore of dishes. Her thoughts come forth with, "I don't know —there's something just not right about this Christmas. I know we were all together for dinner and presents. But the evening is only half over and look how quiet it is. It seems as if Christmas has fallen apart."

Dad nods in agreement as he dries the big platter on which the blessing of food was heaped high earlier in the evening. He replies, "I know — I have that feeling, too."

While Mom and Dad have been conversing, youngest son, Bill, enters the kitchen leafing through a magazine.

Mom stops momentarily and turns her head toward Dad and responds in surprise, "You DO? I thought it wasn't bothering you too much — you haven't said anything about it — even when the others left with the grandchildren to go snowmobiling. I expected you to hit the ceiling — — well, not really — but I DID expect some sort of protest from you."

Dad explains, "I WANTED to say something. But — well — you know how it is. We've sorta backed off on other things, too. So, I'm going on faith — faith that the things we have tried to teach our kids and the church activities we have been involved in and they have been involved in will in time open their eyes. Remember — you and I dropped out of church matters when we were married. Now we know how much our church ties did for us later on. . . . . They'll come back."

"Yes — — — I know."

"It's difficult to know when to draw the line nowadays. There are so many distractions and both of us have been extra careful about denying the kids their freedom."

Mom nods and says, "Maybe TOO careful."

Dad hesitates in drying a dish, then says, "Yes . . . . I think that bothers me as much as anything — the thought that maybe we have become too loose in some of these matters, maybe we are too lax in showing that we still recognize God's presence in our lives every day, not just at Christmas — or Easter — or some other so-called special day."

"I've felt guilty, too —" Mom turns slightly and sees her son. She says, "Oh . . . . Billy . . . I didn't notice you come in."

As the "baby" in the family who is fast growing up, too fast for Mom and Dad in their parental joy of having a little one in the house, Bill shows his awareness of maturity by protesting, "Mom, do you hafta call me 'Billy'? It's Bill . . . . I'm a big boy now . . . . remember???"

"I'm sorry . . . Bill . . I just can't get over thinking of you as our little boy. I don't mean to make you feel like a child."

Dad pauses, cocks his head slightly to one side, looking upward with one eye closed, as if to see something more clearly, and says, "What's that Bible verse . . . . 'unless ye become as a child' . . .???"

Bill looks at his father and replies in mock disgust, "Oh . . . Dad . . . . ."

With that, there followed a period of silence, parents doing dishes, son leafing through magazine. But Dad noticed that two or three times Bill looked up from his magazine as if to say something, then went back to leafing through the pages, obviously not really seeing anything he was looking at. Mom looks out the window above the kitchen sink and exclaims, "Oh look, there go some carolers down the street. And they've got some younger ones with them. . . . How nice. . . . And THAT'S something I miss — our OLD Christmas programs with the little ones singing and everyone joining in on the Christmas hymns." Mom looks again at the small group and then leans forward a bit to be able to look upward. She says, "And look, there's a particularly bright star in the sky over that way."

Dad, reacting to Bill's apparent indecision in saying something, asks, "Bill . . is something wrong?"

"No — — I mean — — well — — some of the kids are getting together at Chuck's house — — you know, play records, shoot the breeze — — and I thought maybe I'd go over, since nothing else is happening. But — — if you'd rather I didn't — — I mean — — after what you've said about things . . . .oh, forget it . . ."

Dad reassures Bill with, "Well — since, as you say, nothing else IS happening, I suppose it's O.K. to go — don't you think so, Mom?"

Mom hesitates just a bit before answering, "I guess so — sure, Billy — I mean, Bill — it's all right."

Bill is obviously suffering from pangs of conscience as he says, "You're sure it's all right — — I mean...."

"YES, it's ALL RIGHT — now git!" Dad replies, smiling.

After Bill left, Mom and Dad finished the dishes and went into the living room. Mom sat down and with a deep sigh says, "Well, . . .now THAT'S done for another day."

"See . . . everything hasn't been lost from Christmas Eve."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, year after year . . . there's always dishes!"

"Oh . . . .you . . ." Mom says, faking disgust.

Mom took advantage of the evening's lull, let her head fall back on the chair, and gazed at the ceiling, once again in deep thought.

Mom says, "You know, there's something else I miss. It's related to our church but it isn't exactly related to Christmas."

"What is it?"

"Oh . . . . the Sunday School class discussions we had. Sometimes they were pretty good . . . especially when just about everyone in the class took part in the discussion. It made you feel sort of . . . . I don't know . . . . closer, I guess."

There followed a period of silence as Mom's thoughts drifted back to those Sunday School discussions, and her recollection focused on — believe it or not — a discussion at Christmastime years before.

. . . . . .

"All right — now that we're in the Christmas season, let's see how much we remember about the Christmas story. Some of these questions are so easy, you'll probably smile. But you never know when someone may learn something that you thought EVERYBODY knew. Even if these are easy, let's have your response — anybody."

Thus did the Sunday School teacher begin her class session.

"Why were Mary and Joseph going to Bethlehem. — That's right, because a proclamation had been made that everyone should be taxed.

"How did Joseph know that the child Mary was to bear was special or different? — Thank you for the answer. Yes, an angel of the Lord told Joseph, as told in the book of Matthew. We also find in Luke a passage telling of an angel's revelation to Mary about the birth of Jesus.

"Whom do we consider to be the first ones to learn of the birth of Christ? — Yes, we look upon Christ as being our Shepherd, and it was the shepherds watching their flock by night who were told of the birth of Jesus, again by an angel.

"Who else in particular learned about the birth of Christ? — The wise men. And their gifts were — gold, frankincense and myrrh.

"Now for something a little bit different. When the shepherds were told about the birth of Christ, what were the exact words spoken by the angel of the Lord. I'll give you a start and you add a word at a time, just one word per person, and let's see how far we can go. If we're stuck on a word and you have already given a word, go ahead and help us out again. All right, here goes: Fear not — for — behold — I — bring — you — good — tidings — of — great — joy — which — shall — be — to — all — people — For — unto — you — is — born — this — day — in — the — city — of — David — a — Saviour — which — is — Christ — the — Lord.

"Fine. Thank you for your participation this morning. And we hope you'll come back again next Sunday."

. . . . . .

As Mom comes back to reality, Dad observes, "Yes, those WERE pretty good class discussions. It's too bad that sort of thing can't be going on all the time. But people have their ups and downs — they run in cycles. So we have a pretty good turnout for a while — and then it's NOT so good for a while. Unfortunately, it has been 'not so good' for quite a while now."

A period of silence followed and then Mom said, "Well . . I wonder if Billy — — I mean, Bill — — is having a good time."

At Chuck's house, the gang had records going, a few of the group were dancing, some talking about the basketball games, others about school happenings and so on. Bill was with the group but not "in" the group. That is, he was there, but standing somewhat aside, alone, apparently in deep thought. One of the girls comes over and says, "Hi!"

"Oh — — hi, Sue."

"I brought you a coke. Want it?"

"No — well — wait — — yeah thanks."

"Is something wrong? You're so quiet."

"No — well — not exactly. I don't know what it is. I just don't feel right — not sick — just — well, this just doesn't seem right." Bill gestured to show that "this" meant the party that was going on.

"You mean because it's Christmas Eve?"

"Yeah . . . . it's funny . . . . something's missing."

"Well, I'm not exactly sure I like it either, But what else you gonna do? It isn't like we were kids any more — waiting for Santa Claus."

About that time, someone in the group suggested going to another place. "Let's get Nick and his rock group together and have a real dance. He's got his stuff all set up in the garage and he told me this morning he didn't have anything going tonight."

"That's a great idea," "Yea, let's go," "Lead the way" and other comments of approval greeted the suggestion. So the group headed for Nick's — except for Bill. When Sue saw that Bill was going in another direction, she stopped and said, "Bill — aren'tcha going?"

"Nah . . . . I just don't feel like it."

Sue hesitated, then caught up with the others.

At home, Mom and Dad were still relaxing in the living room. Bill walked in and uttered a self-conscious "hi."

"Oh . . . hi, Bill-l-l-l-" was Mom's reply as she caught her tongue before the "-ly" got out.

Dad observed, "Well, that was a short party."

"Oh . . . the party was still going on. They were going over to Nick's for some live music."

"You didn't go?"

"Nah . . I don't know . . . . it didn't seem right. It was like — well — — sounds crazy — — it was like I was supposed to be at home."

Mom and Dad as one look at one another knowingly and a faint smile comes to their faces.

Bill didn't notice and continued, "Oh . . . .yeah . . . you know, when I came up to the house just now, there was one star in the sky that was brighter than the others. And it was almost as if it was right over our house."

A pondering "hm-m-m-m" came from Dad as Bill looked at his Mother and asked, "Hey, whatcha reading?"

"Oh — — the Christmas story. I've heard it dozens of times and have read it dozens of times But I still like to refresh my memory. — — It's probably silly to do it."

Bill ponders momentarily and then says, "No, Mom . . . it isn't silly at all."

Just then the door bell rang and Dad answered. "Well, hello, Sue. Come on in."

Sue hesitates as she enters the door and says, "Thank you. — Is Bill here?"

"He sure is. Come on into the living room and warm up."

Mom greets Sue with a smile, "Hello, Sue. What a pleasant surprise."

Bill is puzzled at Sue's appearance at his home and asks, "Is anything wrong? I thought you went to Nick's with the others."

"I started to. But what you said about things just not being right . . . well . . . . that's sorta the way I had felt, too. But I thought maybe I was getting funny ideas . . . until you said what you did. And then I guess I knew that a party with the others wasn't the place to be. I guess you might say you sorta opened my eyes."

Mom's face glows and she replies, "Sue — what a lovely thing to say."

"I hope you don't mind my butting in like this. But with my parents separated, our Christmases aren't what they used to be."

Dad reassures Sue, placing his arm around Sue's shoulders and saying, "We don't mind at all. In fact, you and Bill have made this one of the best Christmases we've had in a long time."

Bill looks somewhat puzzled as he says, "Gee . . . . I feel real good inside. — — And Mom — — if you want — — 'Billy' is O.K."

Making the matter a compromise, Mom replies, "How about it if we make it 'Billy' just around home?"

Bill smiles and nods approval.

Then Sue exclaims, "Oh! — I almost forgot! Bill, did you notice the one star that was brighter than all the others? It was almost as if it was right over your house when I came in."

This Christmas story ends as Mom, Dad and Bill exchange knowing, smiling glances.

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

PUBLIC NOTICE

TO: Customers of St. Joe Water Works
FROM: Town Board, St. Joe, Indiana
RE: Microbiological Standards Exceeded

The St. Joe water supply failed to comply with the drinking water standard for coliform bacteria, for the three-month period of August, September and October, 1978.

The coliform organism is used as an indicator of microbiological quality of drinking water. While coliform organisms pose no threat to health, their presence does indicate that a source of contamination might exist somewhere in the water system. However, there is no cause for alarm.

An investigation by the Water Superintendent was initiated as soon as the positive samples were reported to him by the State Laboratory. The chlorine solution being used was found to be weaker than normal and the superintendent immediately increased quantity. The November tests were reported satisfactory by the State Board of Health.

Ladies Lit'y Club

—Fern Carr, reporter

The Ladies Literary Club met at the Lucky Steer for the Christmas dinner and then went to the home of Mrs. Harold Hamman.

The meeting was led by the president, Mrs. Forrest Bevington. Roll call was answered by 8 members and 2 guests, Mrs. Lela Northrup and Mrs. Flossie Mavis.

Entertainment was by the committee. Mrs. Kline read a poem, "The Meaning of Christmas," and a story by Paul Harvey. Mrs Bevington read a story, "Christmas Is For Collectors, Too," and a poem, "Winter's Special Offering." All sang "Silent Night."

After a gift exchange, a very delicious dessert was served by the committee.

The next meeting will be on January 3, 1979, with Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser.

Trust Fund Set Up For Mishler Family

(Note: the following article was written before it was learned that a liver infection has made Mr. Mishler's condition critical and that all medication has been stopped except that to deaden pain.)

A trust fund has been set up for the family of Dean Mishler of Saint Joe due to Mr. Mishler's extended illness. He is suffering from acute leukemia and is confined at Parkview Memorial Hospital in Fort Wayne.

John Paul Hill, minister at the Coburn Corners Church of Christ, announced the formation of the trust fund which will be administered by the congregation's Benevolent Committee. The decision to establish the fund was made after members of the congregation contributed over $400 in a special offering two weeks ago. In addition, the Saint Joe Lions Club has contributed $200 to the family. And last week, Mrs. Maurice Kline, representing St. Mark Lutheran Church at Saint Joe, turned over food items plus over $200 in cash donations to a friend of the Mishler family.

Cannisters have been placed in local business places for several weeks. Early contributions helped to pay utility bills.

Mr. Mishler has been hospitalized for some six weeks or so and faces another similar period of hospital confinement. Though there is some medical and hospital insurance through Mr. Mishler's employer, the extended period of confinement is a financial burden to the family in meeting everyday living expenses. Charges for the hosptal room alone are reportedly anticipated as being around $12,000. Chemotherapy, medication, doctors' fees and other medical expenses will add significantly to the $12,000.

With Mrs. Mishler staying at the hospital most of the time, care for the family of three children has been provided by friends, especially the Tom Mack family. With four children of their own (three at home and one at Great Lakes Bible College), the Macks have been carrying a considerable load. Mr. Mack, a truck driver, is away from home much of the time but takes care of some of the house upkeep for the Mishlers when he is home. The big load is being carried by Mrs. Mack. Despite working full time at the local restaurant, Shirley still manages to take care of the Mishler kids along with her own. Betty Longardner helps out during the day by taking care of the Mishler's year-old baby.

Pastor Hill suggests that anyone wishing to donate to the trust fund may make checks payable to "Coburn Corners Church of Christ" and designate the contribution as for the Dean Mishler family. The congregation's address is R1 Saint Joe, Indiana 46785.

New Medical Unit Helps

Reports given at the annual meeting of the DeKalb Memorial Hospital corporation Tuesday show that the new medical arts building brought $40,000 income in rent, helping the hospital to show a profit of $90,000 for the year. In 1977 the hospital was $41,000 "ahead," and the comparative reports show the financial merit of the medical arts building.

12 office suites are now rented in the building with more such rentals anticipated in coming months.

With weekend staffing in the emergency room in 1978, the use of the emergency room increased from 4,335 in 1977 to 5,895 in 1978. The weekend staff of young Fort Wayne doctors studying in a family practice urogram, provides relief for the hospital's regular staff of doctors.

Administrator L. C. Baker expressed hope that the program may encourage some of the doctors to establish a practice in the community.

Hospital income rose almost a half million dollars, from $2.5 million in 1977 to just under $3 million in 1978. Expenses rose from $2.4 million to $2.9 million. Nurses wages were the largest expense item at just over $1 million, an increase of $100,000 over the previous year.

New equipment includes computerized billing system in the office, and an ultra-sound device and a gamma camera in diagnostic services.

Births at the hospital dropped to 436 in 1978. In 1977 there were 497 births recorded. A high of 523 was recorded in 1975.

Ira Hook

Funeral services were held Wednesday at the Brown Funeral Home in Hicksville for Ira K. Hook, 79, of R1 Saint Joe. He died December 24 at Hicksville Community Hospital where he had been a patient three weeks. He had been in failing health for a year.

Mr. Hook was born February 6, 1899, at Hicksville, the son of Isaac and Anna Beerbower Hook. On February 10, 1920, he and Elva Hilbert were united in marriage at Hicksville. Mr. Hook farmed at R1 Saint Joe and also was an insurance agent, retiring in 1968.

He was a member of the Hicksville Trinity United Methodist Church and a member of the advisory board of Newville Township.

Survivors include the widow; three daughters, Mrs. Farrell (Leitha) Evans of Belleview, Florida, Mrs. Don (Eloise) Cook of Fort Wayne and Mrs. Carroll (Dorothy) Shanks of Findlay, Ohio; two sons, Wayne L. Hook of Knoxville, Tennessee, and Vance Hook of Hicksville; one sister, Mrs. Ollie M. Miller of Stanwood, Michigan; 15 grand children and 12 great grandchildren.

Rev. William Powers officiated at the funeral and burial was in Scipio Cemetery.

'Scrappy Little Five' Dates Back To 1927-1928

The team's won-lost record was not readily available from back issues of The News. However, a write-up about the sectional tourney at Garrett told of "huge" crowds. And it was reported that the "scrappy little five from St. Joe" defeated favored South Whitley 33-13 in their first game. Spencerville then beat St. Joe 17-11 and was in turn downed by Butler 22-9. The championship game was won by Auburn, 27-26, over Butler.

Thanks go from The News to Mr. Draggoo for providing the old photo and to Sechler's, Brown's, Chaney's, Yeiser's and the Saint Joe Restaurant for underwriting the cost of the engraving for reproduction in these pages.

Best wishes for a

PUBLIC NOTICE

TO: Customers of St. Joe Water Works
FROM: Town Board, St. Joe, Indiana
RE: Microbiological Standards Exceeded

The St. Joe water supply failed to comply with the drinking water standard for coliform bacteria, for the three-month period of August, September and October, 1978. The coliform organism is used as an indicator of microbiological quality of drinking water. While coliform organisms pose no threat to health, their presence does indicate that a source of contamination might exist somewhere in the water system. However, there is no cause for alarm.

An investigation by the Water Superintendent was initiated as soon as the positive samples were reported to him by the State Laboratory. The chlorine solution being used was found to be weaker than normal and the superintendent immediately increased quantity. The November tests were reported satisfactory by the State Board of Health.

Newville Twp. Homemakers

Zella Collins hosted the Newville Township Home Demonstration Club December 13 with an all-day meeting and potluck dinner with Charlotte Kimmel co-hostess.

After a delicious dinner, president Zella Collins presided and Lois Guiff led singing of "Silent Night" with accompaniment by Dorine Singer. Kathryn Kreig gave devotions using a number of Helen Steiner Rice's poems. 21 members gave "the most unusual gift I ever received" for roll call response. Dorine Singer showed one of the gifts purchased for the 4-H club. Doris Hart and Ruth Phillips are to get the perfect attendance gift. Cards were signed for Mildred Welch, Ira Hook, Dessie Osmun and Ruth Phillips. "Happy Birthday" was sung for Garnette West.

All present sang a number of Christmas carols. Postmistress Doris Hart passed out the gifts and the 1978 cheer sisters were revealed. Names were drawn for the coming year.

The January 10 potluck meeting will begin at 11 a.m. with Freda Engle as hostess and Lois Guiff co-hostess. Roll call will be "a new thing I'm going to try to make."

Did you know—

—that Golda Meir, 80, world-reknown Israeli leader who died recently, knew she was dying of a form of blood cancer for several years but kept the fact a secret from all except her family and closest friends until the information was released at her death.

—that Don Culbertson of Saint Joe was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital this week.

—that Gary Mansfield of R1 Hamilton was arrested for public intoxication and resisting a police officer following a disturbance at the local tavern. County, state and Butler police were summoned Tuesday evening when several men became involved in a brawl. None of them filed charges, however. It appears that a personal matter involving a tavern employee prompted several men from Ohio to start tearing the Oasis apart.

—that the man who perfected lightweight aluminum car trim now has created a sodium silicate which is 50 percent water. Brushed on cigarettes, it prevents the cigarette from burning unless puffed. Charles Cohn is the "inventor" and he says the product would ease the problem of smoking in public places. It also reduces the tar emitted by the average cigarette about 60% and the nicotine by 43%. But the 77-year-old scientist has been rejected by the major cigarette companies because "they only want ideas from their own laboratories."

—that MM Butch Coburn celebrated their wedding anniversary this week.

—that Evelyn Ridge, manager of the Butler License Branch, reminds motorists that reservations for special license plate numbers can be made by calling 868-2525.

—that Wisconsin Senator William Proxmire, noted for his "Golden Fleece" awards" to government individuals and agencies for wasteful spending, has picked the Office of Education. Why? Well, that agency has allowed a grant of $219,592 to teach college students how to watch television. Bob Hockstein, a spokesman for the agency, defends the grant, saying it is to develop "analytical skills — to enable students to recognize stereotyping on the basis of race or sex, to see the subtle influence of advertising . . . ." (Editor's note: what about the agency's "subtle influence" to teach students what to think???)

—that Bob Musser of Saint Joe was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital this week.

—that the Indiana Farm Bureau eau is taking steps to establish a joint venture to establish trading with European farm cooperatives.

—that Kirk Carpenter has resigned as DeKalb County Democrat Central Committee chairman due to the demand on his time which comes as the newly-elected county prosecutor.

—that MM Don Keller will celebrate their 56th wedding anniversary on January 2, 1979, and Don's ?th-rd-nd birthday.

—that the DeKalb County Drainage Board meets every Tuesday morning at 9:30 a.m. in the county surveyor's office on the first floor of the court house in Auburn. There are no executive sessions.

—that Crow's Rainbow Farm Center has received shipment of another "Big Wheels" truck and a liquid fertilizer unit for field applications. —And those wheels ARE big.

—that the Fort Wayne Civic Theatre will present "The Three Sisters" by Anton Chekov starting January 5. The play will be presented at the Performing Arts Center.

—that the school board recently bought a utility tractor for $8,586. Also purchased were two new school buses at a cost of $18,916 each less trade-in.

—that the annual Christmas drawing at Brown Furniture & Hardware had the following winners: Esther Coburn, chair; Mary Crow, picture; Ida Gick, candy; Thelma Taylor, gift certificate; Lee Cook, child's gift certificate.

—that prosecutor-elect Kirk Carpenter and chief deputy prosecutor Jeff Turner attended a one-week training seminar in Indianapolis recently.

—that the 1978 Survey of County Government Finances including expenditures of Federal Revenue Sharing and Anti-Recession money is on file in the county auditor's office.

—that Rick Roberts of Saint Joe was slightly injured in a one-car accident last week on State Road 101.

—that MM Carl Cook of R1 Butler are parents of a son born December 17 at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that broken windows were investigated last week when a beer can was thrown through a window at DeKalb Eastside High School and rocks were thrown through two windows at the Butler elementary school. Rocks were thrown through a window of a vacant restaurant at Butler and a tire iron used to smash a window at the Horseshoe Bar at Butler after the bar closed. A 16-pound chunk of cement was thrown through a window at the home of DeKalb Central basketball coach Jim Leix, just missing the crib of the Leix's sleeping baby. The last-named incident was possibly a reaction to an incident at DeKalb Central's Friday night basketball game against Angola when a close game, won by Central, brought some conflicts between spectators.

—that Senator William Proxmire wants to cope with the failure of veteran education recipients to repay government loans by establishing a credit bureau to identify the delinquents. The delinquent accounts total some $15 billion—that's billion, not million. (Shame on Mr. Proxmire—asking those who fought for their country now to be responsible citizens. And it's his party that made easy credit possible. —Ed.)

—that over 10,000 fewer recipients received Aid To Families With Dependent Children in October 1978 than a year ago.

—that movie and TV stars receive unemployment compensation in Hollywood, California, when they are not working on a show or movie. (—And we wonder what's wrong with the country. —Ed.)

—that Darlene Wolf, daughter of MM Donald Wolf of R2 Butler, is among 53 Ball State students appearing in the 1978-79 edition of "Who's Who Among Students In American Universities and Colleges."

—that Ruthann Buttermore, a member of the sales staff at Auburn Motor Sales, has qualified for membership in the Ford Society of Professional Sales Counselors for 1978. Membership is for those who display outstanding sales achievement during the calendar year.

—that Irvin Rieke and Glenn Rieke have announced their retirement effective December 31. Rieke Corporation of Auburn was purchased recently by the Masco Corporation and the two officials agreed to stay on until the end of the year.

—that $48,000 of a $150,000 federal grant for education will be used to tie audiovisual information from the state into a national network of information concerning such materials. The other $102,000 be spent for a national conference in Indiana.

—that students at St. John's College get "basics," and have since 1937, by reading what has been written by the great thinkers of civilization, not what somebody else says the thinkers said. They read Euclid to understand math, Newton to understand physics and Aquinas to understand religion.

RSVP Meeting

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) Advisory Council met this month with 13 members present. Paul Freeburn, Civil Defense Director of DeKalb County, was a guest. He explained that DeKalb County is unique in having four different telephone exchanges. To handle such emergencies as the blizzard of 1978 last January, he has decided to ask for two volunteers, preferably retired people, to man two phones in each exchange. He said that sometimes an older person just needs someone to talk to but if a person had a problem that the volunteer could not handle, such as getting medication, then the volunteer would call the Civil Defense, Police Department, Fire Department or other appropriate organization to take care of the emergency.

Any retired person who wants to volunteer may do so by calling the Civil Defense office at 925-0917 or stopping in at the office on the second floor of the Auburn YMCA, 310 North Main, bawteen 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Rose Elkins, coordinator for Steuben County, reported on her activities. She has signed two nursing homes in Angola as Volunteer Stations. One of the nursing homes has 35 patients that no one comes to visit, and volunteers are desperately needed to adopt a resident, send cards, visit, or in some way make the nursing home resident's life more meaningful. Other homes need volunteers to read and possibly start a reading club.

President Robert VanLeuven asked volunteers to report their hours the last of every month. He said that RSVP has one possible sponsor for the RSVP newsletter but there is a need for access to printing.

Anne Hoeffel reported that the new interagency group is called the Community Services Council. It endeavors to coordinate all service-oriented organizations in the DeKalb area.

88 people turned out for the pilot Thanksgiving dinner held at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Garrett

Patti Sheppard of Gainful Occupations (GO) said there are Title 9 slots available to adults 55 years and older who have an income of less than $3,140 per year.

The January 2 meeting will be held at Gottfried's in Garrett at noon.

A cheerleaders' clinic was held November 4 at Michigan City Rogers High School. It was sponsored by the Smith-Walbridge Cheerleading Association.

Four cheerleaders from DeKalb Eastside High School attended the clinic and won the first place trophy given after competition was held among the various schools' cheerleaders.

The Eastside entrants are shown above, left to right, Jody Phillips, Cubby Houser, Brenda Beaty and Joy Zeigler.

The clinic provided instruction in cheers, chants, minitrampoline stunts, and gymnastics movements.

Nancy Hudson of the Eastside faculty is sponsor of the cheerleaders.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

With many people offering help of all kinds to the Dean Mishler family during Mr. Mishler's illness, Raymond Mishler, fourth grade student at Riverdale lementary School, took it upon himself to send the following note:

"Dear Friends,

My family and I would like to thank you for your help. We appreciate the cards, prayers and financial help.

"We can't possibly name every person who has helped us in one way or another.

"Merry Christmas to you all.

Raymond Mishler and family"

In response to several reader inquiries— yes, I wrote the Christmas story which appeared in the December 21 issue.

During Christmas vacation, Riverdale faculty member Donna Jewel got married.

—Well — there's another good woman lost.

John Martin Smith, Butler native and now an attorney in Auburn and an ardent history buff, recently was hospitalized due to kidney stones. As if that wasn't enough he then suffered a heart attack and was hospitalized in Fort Wayne.

Bloodmobile Coming Febuary 14

Delores Hicov, Riverdale chairman for the annual appearance of the Red Cross Bloodmobile in this community, has announced that the unit will receive blood donations locally on Wednesday, February 14. The Bloodmobile will once again be located in the Riverdale cafetorium and the hours will be 1 to 6 p.m.

Over 70 pints of blood were used during the past year for residents of the Riverdale area. So, a good turnout by residents in this area is needed. Bloodmobile efforts are not to meet the use of blood the previous year but to gain as much in total donors as possible to provide for the lower donor totals in other areas. Every community experiences "ups and downs" in donor response from time to time due to various reasons.

Last year, residents in the area contributed 123 pints of blood at Riverdale, the highest total ever achieved here. It is hoped that the same response will be forthcoming February 14, or perhaps even better. The challenge is there, to help provide for some unknown's individual's needs sometime in the future by donating a pint of blood now.

With February 14 observed as Valentine's Day, the red in the Valentine heart is appropriate for the appearance of the Red Cross Bloodmobile in the Riverdale community.

"Be somebody's Valentine for tomorrow—donate a pint of blood today."

BS Troop 170

Tim Mershon, Scoutmaster of Troop 170 of Butler, sends a copy of the troops newsletter. In it are items of interest to the boys participating in the troop's activities. Among the members from the Riverdale area are Dirk Tejan, Andy Bowyer and Jeff Parker.

Dirk and Andy were included in the group of Scouts and adults who went to Marengo Cave over Thanksgiving weekend. It was a six to seven hour drive. A commercial tour was followed by a slide presentation on caves in the United States.

The group then went through crawl ways two feet across and one foot high. These places had such names as "laceration alley," "the toothpick" and "the masher." One part of the cave was very muddy.

Back at camp, ghost stories were told at "lights out."

After a hot breakfast the next morning, the group returned home.

On December 9, Scoutmaster Mershon put the troop through its first emergency mobilization drill. It took less than an hour for everyone to assemble. The goal is to assemble in 40 minutes or less.

A trip to Washington, D.C. is planned for March Cost will be approximately $125 per person.

Monthly paper drives have brought in over $200 thus far.

The "Klondike Derby" will be held in the Ashley-Hudson area January 12, 13 and 14.

The World Scout Council has cancelled the XV World Scout Jamboree which was scheduled to be held in Iran. Domestic conflict in that country forced the cancellation. Normally one Scout troop from each of the 50 states is sent to the world meet.

Little Inspiration From '78 'Sports'

With 1978 now a year in the past, one wonders what 1979 will bring to the world. In the United States, one can reasonably wonder what hope can be found in a new year, what with all the turmoil that surrounds everyday living. Where problems were the concern of adults years ago (or so it seemed), we now have younger and younger people drawn into the mass of confusion. Though the "rebellious '60's" are a thing of the past with campus riots and so on, there isn't too much to point to as a brighter picture in the '70's, even with the student demonstrations absent from the picture.

Wisdom is knowledge, but knowledge isn't necessarily wisdom. There are a lot of "smart" people in our society but unfortunately they have not learned how to use their smarts beyond self-gain. True wisdom is knowledge used gainfully for others, not self.

If we look at the headlines of 1978, there is a lot of knowledge. But wisdom? —that is another story. Especially in sports, where young people are more active than ever before in a wide variety of sports activities, do young people have a Lou Gerig or a Willie Mays or a Stan Musial or a Joe Louis or an Ernie Banks to look to as an example of humility, loyalty, and selflessness? I'm afraid not. Instead they have an arrogant Cassius Clay who changes his name because of his "religion" and destroys the usefulness his tremendous talents could provide. They have a Pete Rose whose brilliant career, whose hustle, whose hard work to overcome the handicap of average ability is destroyed by his efforts to peddle his services to the highest bidder because the team he has played for for many years "doesn't want him," as he put it. No matter how much the team could afford to pay, no matter how much the fans might need to shell out to see him play—he should be the highest-paid player, in his opinion.

There is a saying that things usually get worse before they get better, even when a situation is already obviously "bad." So, it will probably be quite a while before people start saying, "Hey—wait a minute—this has gone far enough. Let's get our sense of values straightened out."

It will be a long time before we have another heartbreaking scene such as a terminally-ill Lou Gerig saying to the thousands of fans at a special day in Yankee Stadium to honor him, "I consider myself the luckiest man in the world."

—Or a humble Joe Louis, whose lightning-like reflexes and fists had just downed another foe, saying, "He's a good fighter" of his opponent no matter how badly his opponent may have looked.

—Or a Stan Musial for whom the Chicago Cubs and perhaps other teams in the league had a "day" in their home park on "The Man's" last trip around the circuit in his last season as a player, to recognize not only his accomplishments on the field but also his attitude and efforts in total.

—Or an Ernie Banks whose enthusiasm for and love of baseball was reflected in his "let's play three" challenges, whose flick of the wrists sending baseballs soaring over the fences did not go to his head and destroy his loyalty and positive mental attitude.

You never heard these athletes complain about how little they were paid, how bad their manager was, how much they would rather play elsewhere.

Maybe 1979 will be a year of reflection, not just in sports but in total, because the selfishness and arrogance prevalent in sports is also prevalent in our citizens' attitude toward their work.

That's not a cheery way to welcome the new year. But, despite an occasional bright spot, that's the way it is.

Did you know-

—that the 1978 Census of Agriculture got underway last week with the mailing of report forms to all farms and ranches in the 50 states.

—that MM Steve Liechty of R1 Spencerville are parents of a daughter born December 28 at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that many farmers in Indiana and those in other corn belt states are being asked to take part in a special pesticide survey by reporting their 1978 usage of insecticides, herbicides and other crop persticides.

—that Leota Curie of R1 Saint Joe and Lawrence Rardin of LaPorte plan a July 21 wedding.

—that the Region II Foster Care Development Project has changed its name to Foster Care Services, Inc., of Northeast Indiana due to the end of federal funding through the Indiana Criminal Justice Planning Agency. Due to reported success of the program, the six counties in Region II have decided to continue on an individual county basis, receiving funds from their respective counties.

—that MM Shirl Amburgey of Saint Joe are parents of a son born December 29 at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that the Fort Wayne Philharmonic Gallery Players will feature violin and trombone soloists Sunday, January 14, at 2:30 p.m. and Tuesday, January 16, at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center Gallery.

—that Arnold Flaig of Spencerville was seriously injured in a one-car accident December 22. A second car forced him off State Road 1 and he skidded into two trees.

—that Universal Tool & Stamping of Butler recently donated $1000 to the William A. Heimach Senior Citizens' Center in Auburn.

—that MM William Pollack of R2 Auburn are parents of a daughter born December 22 at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that a foster parent course on "Parenting Plus" is being offered Tuesday nights through January 30 at the Auburn Presbyterian Church.

—that the Fort Wayne Philharmonic Orchestra will feature works by Mozart and Bruckner at its January 12 concert in the Embassy Theatre at 8:30 p.m. in Fort Wayne.

—that MM Ken White of Saint Joe are parents of a daughter born December 20 at Parkview Memorial Hospital in Fort Wayne.

—that State Representative Joseph Harris of Kokomo has introduced a bill to require motorists to be able to prove that they are fully insured by carrying an insurance identification card or other proof of financial responsibility.

—that the Arthritis Foundation will be the beneficiary of a bowling tourney January 20 in DeKalb, Steuben and Noble counties. The 3 to 5:30 p.m. competition will be held at the Butler Bowl, Angola Bowl, Redwood Lanes and Auburn Recreation Center. Entry fee is $4.50. Trophies and cash will be awarded.

—that five booklets on skiing, "Alpine Ski Instruction," "Nordic Ski Instruction," "Profiles of U.S. Olympic Ski Team Members," "Articles On Skiing" and "Photography On Skiing" can be seen at the News Office. Last year some 14 million Americans, age 12 and up, participated in skiing.

—that Lelah Ayers of Saint Joe was admitted to DeKalb Memorial Hospital recently.

—that Navy Boiler Technician Fireman Apprentice Leonard Kinzer of R1 Auburn has completed the Basic Boiler Technician Course at Great Lakes.

—that the county commissioners have voted to continue funding the salary of Sandy Mafera as coordinator for the DeKalb County Council On Aging in 1979. CETA funding ended last year.

—that Maxine Bley of R1 Saint Joe has retired from her position as secretary-treasurer of Universal Tool & Stamping at Butler. She began with the firm January 29, 1951.

—that Woodlan won the reserve basketball tourney at Eastside by downing the host team 48-13 in the championship game.

—that Denny Stiver is recovering from a hand injury, including some broken bones.

—that a maple syrup field day is planned Tuesday, January 16, at the Brimfield Methodist Church. Reservations should be made with Larry Lichtsinn at 925-1026 by January 12.

—that former county prosecutor H. Charles Winans has been named county attorney by the county commissioners.

—that John Reinhart of Butler has been named president of the county board of commissioners.

—that Dennis Harger and Joy Hildebrandt of Butler plan a June 10 wedding at Community Bible Church.

—that a Heart Fund sled-a-thon is planned for January 13 and 14 at North Webster. Snowmobilers will participate in a charity ride with sponsors pledging so much a mile for individual participants. More than 2,000 snowmobilers from 16 clubs in Indiana will participate in the event which raised more than $5,000 last year. Other activities are on the program also.

—that MM Lanny Hess of R1 Butler are parents of a daughter born December 30 at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that Tammy Piety of Garrett High School has been named the county GAR Good Citizen winner. Cheri Schmucker of R1 Spencerville was Eastside's representative in the competition.

—that assistant secretary of agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman has withdrawn a proposal that would have restricted the sale of candy, pop, frozen desserts, chewing gums and other "junk" goodies in schools until after the last lunch period. The reason: issues raised from more than 2,100 comments received on the subject. Additional public meetings will be held and written comments accepted to form the basis for a new proposal. The public meetings are in Nashville, Tennessee, January 30; in Detroit, Michigan, February 6; and in Seattle, Washington, February 13. The withdrawal of the proposal is puzzling in that, after Congress authorized the regulation of the sale of foods of limited nutritional value, and after the comments received showed 82% favoring the proposal and only 18% opposing the regulation, Mrs. Foreman cancelled the proposal and set up further meetings.

—that MM James Decker of R2 Butler are parents of a son born December at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that Navy Seaman Aprentice Edward D. Zimmerman of Butler recently participated in exercise "Varsity Lance" off the coast of southern California.

—that November election results show women gaining more representation in state houses and senates. There are now 63 more newly-elected women in state governments, and 62 of them are Republicans. In the U.S. Senate there is only one woman, Nancy Landon Kassebaum of Kansas, also a Republican.

—that General Tel plans to invest $95.5 million for the expansion and overall improvement of its facilities during 1979.

—that the Indiana Army National Guard now offers $1500 in cash or up to $2,000 for schooling as an enlistment bonus to qualified enlistees.

—that "Super Pull VI" will be held in the coliseum at the Indiana state fairgrounds at Indianapolis when 160 of the nation's most powerful tractors compete —that MM William Jacquay, Jr., of Spencerville are parents of a son born December 31 at DeKalb Memorial Hospital.

—that State Representative Norman Gerig of Auburn favors a bill to make insurance mandatory for Indiana drivers. He also has co-sponsored a bill to require a second doctor's opinion on surgery for Medicaid patients. Mr. Gerig hopes to avoid any increase in the state gasoline tax. He would like to have the sales tax on gasoline used for highway purposes instead of for other purposes as is now the case. The local legislator expects a bill to rescind Indiana's previous approval of the Equal Rights Amendment to the national constitution. He would vote to rescind on the basis that, if you are allowed to vote "yes" after having voted "no," you should be able to vote "no" after having voted "yes." He says states should have the right to change their vote.

—that a new food stamp regulation now provides for distribution of free stamps instead of the former requirement to purchase stamps at a reduced price. Thus a family which has been paying $63 a month for $170 in food stamps now gets $107 worth of stamps free. Ruth Culler, DeKalb County food stamp coordinator, is doubtful about the merits of the change. She fears that the $63 needed to buy food stamps under the old system may go for other things and the family will end up with a nutritional deficiency.

Deaf Man Designs Tiny Hearing Aid

Offers free model

A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and is worn completely in your ear.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Hear, Box 300, Garrett, Indiana 46738. (Adv.)

L.E.T.T.E.R.S—

Friend Ted,

Hi! from cloudy Chapel Hill. It is 44 deg. here this afternoon (November 25). The leaves are mostly off the trees now. We haven't had any frost here yet, but it was the coldest since last March.

Have been here a month now, time sure flies.

I spent 3 months in Seward, Nebraska. It was sure a nice clean town, and Doris and Bill have a very nice place to live, the first home of their own, in another 20 years they say.

Enjoy being here. There is a lot of action with Lori 13 and David 9. See Jean and daughter Susan, a junior in high school, quite often. Their three sons are in college.

Hope your family is all O.K. and everything going smooth in Saint Joe.

I read Bill's Saint Joe News while I was there. Now I need a subscription of my own.

Thank you.

Miss you, and many persons and things back home, and church.

Mrs. Gertrude Billow
444 Northside Drive
Chapel Hill, NC 27514

United States Senate

Dear Ted:

Congratulations to you on the outstanding job you have done througout the years as Editor of the St. Joe News.

I join with your family, friends and all Hoosiers in thanking you for your perseverance, dedication and contributions to the community as an independent newspaper. I am confident with your determination, this high-level of excellence will continue no matter what obstacles may cross your path.

Best wishes to you for continued success with the St. Joe News.

Sincerely,
Dick Lugar

Dear Ted,

Continue to appreciate the St. Joe News. It continues to appall me that in a town the size of St. Joe the elected officials and protectors of the public like the fire dept. can become to secretive. Keep the fire of truth burning.

Best wishes,
Bill

The above note was added to a Christmas letter sent to family and friends. The letter caught our eye, because it expressed a thought in our mind for many years. It reads:

"HOSANNA! Happy New Year in the Lord. ADVENT, He comes and we rejoice that He comes to live with us. Of all the Christmas presents we might dream of receiving, the one gift that has to make us stop, think and give thanks for receiving is: God loves us so much that He came to live among us. We get all excited about giving during this season and that is a wonderful thing. But I wonder if we might not do a better job of giving the rest of the year if we stopped all our well meant activities at Christmas and simply welcomed the Lord like the shepherds did. Then we might be filled sufficiently to give more abundantly in the remainder of the year."

A very appropriate thought, we think. —Ed.

Dear Mr. Haberkorn—

Enclosed check for five dollars for another year to Aug. '79—I think?

I want to clear my debts before a new year begins. As is, sorry to have been neglectful.

Sometimes I think (being so far away and out of touch) I'll stop the News — then along comes an item or a name that I haven't thought of in ages — so it refreshes my memory and I think on it for several days. So you see there is good in everything. Also like your editorials—that is most always—it would be a sad world of we all thought alike—politically at least.

Wishing you a happy and prosperous New Year.

Sincerely,
Mrs. John B. House

FARM BUREAU

—Mazie Myers, reporter

December 3 was a bad, foggy day to head towards Indianapolis. But 13 brave DeKalb County residents headed that way to attend the 50th Farm Bureau Convention.

Sunday afternoon the young farmer discussion meet was held in the Hyatt-Regency Hotel. In the evening at the Convention Center, the address was given by Dr. Glenn W. Sample, president of Indiana Vocational Technical College. He talked on "They Knew Not Joseph." The Murk Family of Wheaton, Illinois, entertained with a musicale.

During December 4 registration, the Bavarians from Greenville, Indiana entertained. Then Lieutenant Governor Robert Orr addressed the group.

President Marion Stackhouse talked on "Farmers Must Be Heard." He reported that Indiana has 282,742 members in Farm Bureau, and that for the second year in a row, Indiana is the largest State Farm Bureau in the nation.

Three areas that members need to lend their support were in the development of proper tax and financing of the services of Indiana government, especially as it relates to school financing. Second area is the use of energy; the third, inflation.

Following a luncheon, John C. Datt Farm Bureau Director of the Washington, D.C., office, spoke on the "Voice of Agriculture In Washington."

Senator Richard Lugar gave a few remarks.

The group then divided into special interest sessions on local government, international trade, Indiana agricultural marketing, labor, natural resources and roadside marketing.

A banquet was held in the evening after which Arthur Hansen, president of Purdue University, gave a talk.

President Stackhouse presided over the many Farm Bureau awards presentations.

The December 5 session was held in the 500 Ballroom of the Convention Center. Resolutions were voted on and vice-president Virgil Kline was re-elected. Lois Gross was elected director-at-large.

Those attending from DeKalb County were MM Floyd Pfierman, MM Francis Nelson, MM Hugh Myers MM Richard Coll, Roger Siebing, Howard McDaniel, David Ferguson, Norman Gerig and John Couey.

Christmas Family Night was held December 14 at the Exhibit Hall with 61 present.

Rev. Russell Tague, United Methodist minister at Concord and Barkers Chapel, gave devotions on "Progress—Where Are We Headed?"

Mrs. Dorothy Reinhart, DeKalb County farm wife, was presented an award. She presented a poem entitled, "There Will Always Be Christmas."

Woman Leader Irene Nelson gave each of the officers an award. A song service was led by Dorine Singer on her accordion. Then everyone enjoyed bingo.

The directors met December 18. Arcille Skelly gave devotions, reading a poem, "When Christmas Came To Our House," and read the Christmas Beattitudes, closing with Isaiah 9:6. Everyone repeated the pledge to the flag.

District II Director Harold Myers conducted installation of new officers and re-dedication of holdover officers.

It was voted to help sponsor the Soil and Water Conservation speech contest, open to all high school sophomores, juniors and seniors. Local Affairs Chairman Bruce Provines gave a report of some of his activities coming this year.

Due to the national convention, the board will not meet until January 29. Lloyd Mertz will have devotions.

EHS Basketball

The Lady Blazers of DeKalb Eastside High School won their 9th game of the season downing Hamilton 55 40.

Both teams started slowly. But in the second quarter the locals jumped to a 10-point 22-12 lead after a tie at 6-all at the end of the first quarter.

In the second half the Ladies outscored Hamilton 33-28 for the win.

Amy Hampel led Blazer scoring with 18 points. Lisa Johnson had 13 and Sunda Obendorf 11.

DeKalb Central walloped DeKalb Eastside December 29 at the Eastside gym, 93-52.

To add to the Blazer woes, Ed Moughler, one of the Blazers' starting five, suffered a severe ankle sprain in the third quarter.

The Eastsiders just never were in the game, trailing by 20-8 at the first quarter, 39-21 at the half, and 65-32 at the end of three periods.

Rex Buell and Gary Rinard led Blazer scoring with 17 points each.

Saint Joe, Butler Lions To Ride As-- Donkeys For Athletic Dept.

The Saint Joe Lions Club and the Butler Lions Club have combined talents to benefit the DeKalb Eastside athletic department. Local club members will provide the entertainment in a Donkey Basketball Game to be played February 7 in the high school gym starting at 7:30 p.m.

Shaw Bros. provides the animals and equipment needed for the entertaining game. The old saying, "Stubborn as a mule," will be exemplified as the Lions club members match wits with the donkeys.

Laughs for the entire family are promised through the funfilled evening. Shots at the basket must be taken from the back of a donkey. And the animals are known to have a different idea from that of the players when it comes to which direction to go.

Tickets are available from Lions club members, the Adult Athletic Booster Club; Geddes Drug Store; The Butler House; The Butler Bulletin and The Kniselv National Bank of Butler and Saint Joe.

Advance sale prices are $2 for adults and $1.50 for students.

WIFF Legislative 'Call-in' Saturday

As a service to area citizens, WIFF radio at Auburn will present a special broadcast devoted to the current session of the Indiana State Legislature.

The program, to be aired at 10:00 a.m., will feature interviews with State Senator Richard Worman and State Representative Norman Gerig.

Listeners will have the opportunity to call in questions or comments during the broadcast.

WIFF'S initiative in arranging for the broadcast from its studios on County Road 29 provides a free and open atmosphere in which citizens can express their views and present questions to the two legislators.

The broadcast Saturday, January 20, at 10 a.m. will be presented only on the FM station at 105.5 on the FM dial.

Area residents are invited to tune in and participate.

Maurice Kline Named To Board

The town board met January 8 in a regular session, one week later than usual due to the observance of New Year's Day.

Maurice Kline was named to fill a vacancy on the board created when Fred Rahe moved outside the town corporate limits. The appointment was made by precinct committeeman Ralphine Robinson who had been appointed by county Democrat chairman Kirk Carpenter to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Joan Morr.

Mr. Kline served on the town board as president in the 1964-67 term.

Floyd "Butch" Coburn was re-named president of the board and Brad Thomas was retained as town attorney.

Board member Loretta Loy indicated that she would distribute maps showing identification numbers for town residences in the near future. The board recently passed an ordinance establishing the numbering system primarily for use in times of emergency. Maps will be provided for every home in town through the cooperation of the local Vulcraft plant.

Now It's Postal Nit-picking

Recently President Carter announced with pride that some 900 or so "nit-picking" regulations had been taken off the books by "OSHA," the government agency related to occupational and other safety hazards.

OSHA isn't the only agency with nit-picking rules. The postal system is another.

I know you may get weary of hearing me gripe from time to time about matters related to the publishing and mailing of this paper. But keep in mind—this paper was published for years and years and years before our modern "watchdog" system became overgrown, and no one was wronged, no one was cheated. The publishers put out the paper, the post office delivered it with the full knowledge of the local postmaster, and we all got along fine, comparatively speaking.

Now read this latest edict coming from Washington, adding to the cost of publishing this paper. Our local postmaster was sent the following notification, under orders from Washington. It applies to all second class publications:

"Sections 125.2, 132.25 and 133.3, Postal Service Manual, were recently amended to require publishers of second-class and controlled circulation publications to print the publication's identification number either on or inside the publication. In addition, the publication number must be visible on wrapped or enveloped copies. This change was published in the Federal Register as a final rule on July 12, 1978."

There is more in the notice, but the above is enough to comment on.

In the first place, you will note that the authority to require printing of the identification number is only that it was published in the Federal Register. There was no hearing; no input was sought from this paper about the conseqences of such a ruling. The postal department just had it published in the Federal Register—and that was it.

It has been stated in these columns on past occasions that every American is subject to regulations NEVER AGREED TO BY THEIR ELECTED REPRESENTATIVES. At some time in the past, it was established that a federal agency sets up its own rules, no matter how far-reaching those rules might be, and those rules became law simply by publication in the Federal Register.

If an agency will not voluntarily change its rules, the only way a change can be made is by an act of Congress.

In his recent successful campaign for re-election, Fourth District Representative Dan Quayle pointed out that bureaucrats run this nation, not the elected officials. He was referring exactly to such situations as this, wherein a federal agency, through some high-paid desk-jockey with little awareness of practicality but a mind full of theories—some agency can dictate the manner in which you and I conduct our everyday affairs. These people are not elected, they cannot be put out of their high-pay category. Put on another job maybe, yes. But no reduction in pay. They are protected by Civil Service. (Don't be fooled by the "reform" in Civil Service in the news just recently. There may be some shuffling about, but it will be only for "looks." Pay cuts can't be instituted; no one can be fired except for incompetency—and how are you going to prove that these days??)

But—I'm rambling—let's get back to the postal matter.

This paper has been sent through the mail since 1887. If there has been abuse of postal regulations in a manner that is cheating the postal department out of income, I haven't heard about it. If there are abuses of second class privileges which have brought on the recent edict, why doesn't the postal department go after the specific violators???

If this paper has been sent through the mails for 91 years, why is it now necessary to assign it an identification number and require the printing of the number in each issue??? Are we crooks? Is a quicker system of checking on us called for because of illicit activities?

The official notice of the new rule gives absolutely no explanation of why it is needed.

One more thing—and this runs into money. If those copies of this paper which are "single-wrapped," that is, wrapped separately for subscribers in the many cities and towns outside the county—if those copies must be in a wrapper which has the paper's identification number on it, that means an additional expense of printing those wrappers. That means another increase in the cost of doing business for every newspaper or other second class publication which has used the plain wrapper in the past.

There are a few choice words to describe this latest postal regulation, such as unjustified, costly, inconsiderate . . .

I would like to have an explanation, in detail, as to how this new regulation is going to increase the efficiency in the handling of mail, how it is going to reduce postal department expenses.

It ought to be obvious from the start that the new rule has ADDED to postal department costs because it took someone time to think it up and dictate it, someone else to prepare it in printed form, someone else to consider it and give approval, someone to get it to the government printing office, someone to prepare it for printing, someone to put it in with other regulations prior to actual printing, someone to print it in the Federal Register, someone to then prepare copies for all post offices in the United States, someone to stuff it in envelopes—and someone to deliver by mail.

This may sound like over-reacting to a little thing. After all, other publications are following the postal requirements. However, there is at the root of this matter the same disturbing factor found in other business and private matters—government agencies, not our elected representatives, are making the rules. And when the American public has no control over the individuals working in those agencies, our precious form of representative government, answerable to the people, is destroyed.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

Several people noted with a smile the appropriate title of President Carter's personal physician when the President had some painful days due to hemorrhoids. Among them was Bob Snowball, the leader of the combo with which I have been associated for some 20 years or so. We play Saturday nights for club dances, receptions and so on, having about 35 playing dates in the year. Bob handed me the AP news item which pointed out that the doctor treating the President was Rear Admiral William M. Lukash.

In case anyone thinks this is making fun of a painful situation for the President, I'll note that Bob knows the discomfort of hemorrhoids, having been a sufferer from the condition himself a few years ago.

I saw a Lady Blazer basketball game a few weeks ago, the first one I attended this season. They lost a close one. And I was concerned because Lisa Johnson and Amy Hampel did not take any of their specialty shots—Lisa with her 12-foot jumpers and Amy with her 15-or-more-foot loopers. The gals just were not playing their usual offensive pattern established the past two years due to lack of height. Obviously, new coach Val Gates was establishing a new offense or trying to. Lisa and Amy were still top scorers, however.

But at the Ladys' first game of the ACAC tourney, it appeared that the former offense was being re-established and it put some zip back into the gals' game.

I was aware of some frustrated parents who, as did I, yearned for the specialty shots they had become accustomed to with the 1977 and 1978 sectional champions. But they remained silent out of respect for the new coach.

Val is using the bench more, substituting partly to give the bench some experience to prepare for next year when Lisa, Amy, Sunda Obendorf and Jo Baughman will be gone. They are seniors.

One of the changes Val has made has been to set up Jo for shots. The past two years Jo was the defensive nucleus and seldom did much scoring. But with opponents not certain of her non-scoring status any more, another dimension has been added to the Lady Blazers and their efforts.

It's great to have a winner. And Eastside has one in the Lady Blazers. There are no predictions—no expectations of "taking it all"—just the recognition of the pluses, like Lisa, Amy and Sunda on offense (the first two lead the ACAC in scoring), the surprise option of setting up Jo for a shot, the benefit of Paula King's height, and the appearance of new faces from the bench to make the gals capable of adjusting to a tall opponent, a short opponent, or what have you. And there is always that never-say-die spirit of try, try, try.

ANNUAL MEETING

DeKalb County Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Company

Courthouse Assembly Room
SATURDAY, JANUARY 27 1:00 P.M.

Have you winterized your body?

Everything else seems to get taken care of first: house, car, clothes, etc. But, if you have not yet prepared your body to withstand the more difficult winter weather, nothing else really matters.

And, it's not a complicated chore. A physical examination to start off the new year is a good move. Be sure that you are in good shape. Often your physician will suggest a vitamin supplement to help you. We specialize in the knowledge of vitamin products and can answer your questions. Of course, we have a most complete stock.

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers appeared to be on the way to their second win of the season against Woodlan, taking a 40-33 lead during the third quarter. But the Warriors rallied in the third period and then outscored the Blazers 24-15 in the final period to take a 66-55 win.

Saturday night, due to some sensational play from Dave Charles, the Blazers appeared certain winners against Churubusco. But the locals were outscored in the final period to take a 63-59 loss.

Dave had three steals and on two of them made loner layups. The second one was a rouser. Coming down the floor with a defensive player to his right, Dave made a behind-the-back dribble to his left and went in for the two-pointer. His rebounding was an effective part of the Blazers' total game.

He ended the game with 17 points. Buell had 16 and Rinard 12 to lead Blazer scoring.

'Ladies' Win ACAC Tourney; Then Edge Leo 61-58 In Thriller

The Lady Blazers of Eastside won a thriller from Leo 61-58 on Jo Baughman's 18-footer with but seconds to go. The Ladies had won the ACAC tourney the weekend before.

At Leo it was 14-14 after one period of play with Leo then taking a 30-27 halftime lead.

The Lions then gained another two points in the lead in the third quarter, holding a 46-41 edge. But in the final quarter, the Lady Blazers took over and outscored Leo 20-12 for the win.

It was another case of cool, methodical ball playing by the gals in the final quarter when they trailed by 6 points with a little over two minutes left in the game.

Behind 58-57 as the clock ran down, playmaker Jo found her teammates well-guarded and could not pass off to one of them. This left her open for a shot—and she made it for a 59-58 lead. Leo had a pass-in play with 4 seconds to go but botched it. Amy Hampel was fouled in the last-second scramble and she sank two free throws for the 3-point win.

The game was won at the free throw line. Leo outscored the locals 25-19 from the field but the Ladys had a 23-8 edge in free throws.

LADY BLAZERS 61—Hampel 8 5 21; Johnson 5 6 16; Obendorf 2 5 9; Culler 3 3 9; Baughman 1 4 6; Totals 19 23 61.

In the ACAC tourney, Eastside downed Norwell 63-49 to gain entry into the championship game against Heritage. They won that game, 40 35.

Against Norwell, the Lady Blazers increased their lead quarter by quarter, holding leads at 15-12, 34-28 and 59-43.

Lisa Johnson returned to her high-scoring form geting a total of 30 points on 12 field goals and 8 free throws. Sunda Obendorf had 17 and Amy Hampel 16.

Against Heritage in the final game, the Ladys gained a 24-18 lead at half-time and held on for the win. Heritage had held a 12-8 first quarter lead.

Sunda Obendorf had 17 rebounds and 7 points to be the game's outstanding player for the locals. Lisa Johnson had 16 points to lead scoring. Amy Hampel had 8 points and 10 rebounds.

Lions Club

It was brought to the attention of our members January 8 about one of our Lions in his college days, which was before he went to work for Sechler's Pickles, that he took a job as a dormitory guard protecting young college ladies from young college men out on their annual panty raids. It was learned this member was guarding the dormitories not on the outside of the doors but on the inside!!??

A special dunce cap was made from the funny papers for him to wear during the meeting because it seems a young normal college person such as Roy Wheat should have been leading them instead of preventing them.

Another incident brought to the attention of our Lions Club by the Tailtwister was the fact that Bud Shockley received a new electric blanket. The first night he turned his up, he was very comfortable, while Jean was roasting. About 1:30 a.m. Bud was awakened to find out why the blanket was so hot on Jean's side. Come to find out Bud had the controls backwards; he had Jean's side turned way up, while she had him comfortable.

So the old Tailtwister comes to the rescue, again, by personally sewing two covers for the blanket controls to eliminate all future confusion about who's side controls what. The covers were imprinted with "Yours" on one and "Mine" on the other. Hopefully this will solve one of Bud's problems.

Last but not least is our young friend, Willard Hurni, who recently purchased some Devil's Potion after-shave lotion. After using some for the first time, he told Geraldine he would have to fight the women off now. That afternoon he went to pick up his wife at the beauty shop. The beautician, knowing what Willard had said, told Willard as he walked in, "Whew! What's that smell?" Willard, being embarrassed, returned the after-shave.

At this time I would like to invite everyone in the community to share in some fun, plus a great benefit to our Eastside Athletic Department. The Butler Lions Club has challenged the St. Joe Lions Club to a donkey basketball game. Tickets are available from Don Miller 337-5503, Andy Crow 337-5420, Pat Crow 337-5553, Randy Reinhart 868-2463, Jerry Storer 337-5192 and the Tail Twister 337-5056, or any member of both clubs. Tickets may also be purchased at the door.

Cheers.
Tailtwister John Madinski

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to thank my friends and neighbors for their cards and prayers during my stay in the hospital.

Opposition To Principal To Bring Hearing Feb. 19

The minutes of the January 15, 1979, meeting of the DeKalb eastern school board contain the following paragraph:

"Mr. Walter R. Grogg said: 'I move that Principal Robert E. Williams be given proper notice in writing of the date, time, and place for the consideration by the school corporation of the cancellation of his contract, which the board will consider at the regular meeting of the School Board on February 19, 1979 at 8:00 P.M.' The motion was properly seconded and carried."

The school board reportedly has discussed "problems" concerning Mr. Williams' carrying out the duties and responsibilities of his office. And there appears to be considerable dissatisfaction in the minds of many school patrons concerning Mr. Williams and his actions. However, The News has been unable to get even a hint of the nature of the difficulties from several sources. School officials are maintaining a cautious silence, apparently out of fear of possible lawsuits due to any answers which might come to questions about the matter.

One Spencer Township resident said that many "anti-Williams" comments had been heard with not one single patron known to support the principal. However, when asked what reasons were given for the opposition, the local resident did not know.

Answers to the puzzling situation apparently must wait until the February 19 meeting.

In another matter to come before the school board, Cheryl Kinsey, a student at Eastside, was denied a request for exemption from the school's requirement of four years of English for graduation. She said her future plans "could be better served by being permitted to substitute a business course."

While denying the request, the board did indicate that it will consider the matter in the future in relation to the entire curriculum.

The delay in making a "no school" announcement January 15 was explained by Superintendent Charles Hampel. He indicated that he would be more prompt in such decisions in the future. Cold weather and icy roads closed county schools Monday and the eastern district also remained closed the following day.

Ladies Lit'y Club

The Ladies Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Forrest Bevington. The president, Mrs. Bevington, called the meeting to order and led in the reading of the collect and pledge to the flag.

The very interesting lesson was titled "Bible Evening."

Entertainment was the playing of a religious record of Tennessee Ernie Ford and all singing. Roll call was answered by seven members. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Critic's report was by Mrs. Roy Baker.

After adjournment, the hostess served a light lunch.

The January 31 meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Harvey Carr.

EHS Basketball

The DeKalb Eastside Blazers were eliminated from the annual ACAC tourney in their first game, losing to Norwell 73-49.

The locals just never were in the game, scoring only 9, 8 and 11 points in the first three periods. A final quarter total of 21 points couldn't overcome Norwell's commanding lead.

Gary Rinard led scoring with 15 points. Dave Charles had 11 and Ed Moughler 10.

Norwell	15	19	14	25—73
Eastside	9	8	11	21—49

In a regular-season schedule game, the Blazers were defeated by Adams Central 73-60.

Ed Moughler's return to the lineup and his 13 points were not enough to bring the locals their second win. Dave Charles scored 21 points to lead scoring for the Blazers.

Adams Central	15	27	13	18—73
Eastside	14	13	20	13—60

EHS Wrestling

When the DeKalb Eastside wrestling team hit the halfway mark in the current season, they had a record of 2 wins and 4 losses, according to coach Mike Watson. The wins were recorded over Woodlan and Angola with a victory in the Central Noble Invitational. The losses were at the hands of Adams Central, Leo, Prairie Heights and Norwell.

Brian Powell had the only undefeated record with 6 wins.

Other wrestlers and their won-lost records include Brad Kaiser 5-1, Chris Wood 5-3, Jim Smith 5-2, Tim Hamman 4-4, Don Delong 3-4, Eugene Evans 2-3, Steve Billings 2-4, Verne Ridenour 2-5, Steve Lechleidner 2-6, Mike Damron 2-6, Doug Dowden 1-1, Chris Kelsey 1-2, Keith Sanders 0-2 (1 tie), Dennis Shultz 0-3, Brad Baker 0-1, Tom Tintsman 0-1, Sonny Salinas 0-1, Nick Gollmer 0-1 and Jack Frank 0-2.

Band Boosters Continue Drive To 'Dress A Kid' In New Uniforms

The Adult Band Booster Club of DeKalb Eastside High School is continuing its efforts to raise funds for purchase of new band uniforms.

The slogan "Dress A Kid" is in use in promoting various fund-raising efforts. At present pop corn is being sold for $1.25 a box. A candy sale was held recently by the group with soliciting help coming from band members.

School policy prohibits student organizations from having more than one fund-raiser per school year. The band itself had a sausage and cheese sale at the beginning of the school year. However, proceeds from that sale are not going toward band uniforms. They are being used for normal annual expenditures by the band, such as for music, transportation to contests, and so on.

Originally it was announced that $40,000 was needed for the purchase of new uniforms. The figure has been changed to $25,000, according to a Band Booster spokesman. The cost per uniform is somewhere between $180 and $200. It is reported that some $3,500 has been raised thus far.

Present uniforms have been in use for 12 years.

Pat Zahner is president of the Band Boosters, with Darlene Miller serving as secretary and Shirley Porter as treasurer.

WAYNE TAIL CURLER

'ROCKETS'

This baby pig starter has a tantalizing aroma and good taste. And there's no looseness problem. The new Krum form is very palatable to little pigs. They like the size and texture. Just look at these test results:

RESULTS OF WAYNE RESEARCH TRIALS*

10.3% FASTER GAINS
5.2% BETTER FEED CONVERSION
4 TO 1 PALATABILITY PREFERENCE — — —

*comparisons made with previous Wayne Pre-Starter Formula

New Tail Curler Rockets contain 18% crude protein with added lysine and fiber. A great combination for superior performance without a looseness problem. Added fat improves palatability and energy content. And Wayne's exclusive Boost 'N Iron product helps give pigs additional nutrition for better growth and health.

Why

Callahan Soybeans

ARE BLENDS

We call it "complementary competition." The two best athletes in a given sport perform at their best when they face each other, head-to-head. The same is true of the two champion varieties of each Callahan blend.

Blends out-yield single varieties consistently, bad growing seasons as well as good. With blends you minimize the gamble caused by fluctuating weather, too little or too much moisture, abnormally high or low temperatures, varying degrees of disease infestation, etc. With blends, you have two components, each of which has different characteristics. Each will reach stress periods at different times in its growth cycle. As a result, only half of the plants in a field are competing for water, sunlight and other vital nutrients at any given time. Blends combine bushy with straight plant types and permit more sunlight to penetrate the leafy canopy for the greatest growth of beans.

Our research has shown that the best way to achieve the highest possible yield is to choose a CALLAHAN blend that is full season for your area and to plant early.

Have you winterized your body?

Everything else seems to get taken care of first: house, car, clothes, etc. But, if you have not yet prepared your body to withstand the more difficult winter weather, nothing else really matters.

And, it's not a complicated chore. A physical examination to start off the new year is a good move. Be sure that you are in good shape. Often your physician will suggest a vitamin supplement to help you. We specialize in the knowledge of vitamin products and can answer your questions. Of course, we have a most complete stock.

"A GREAT MANY PEOPLE ENTRUST US with their prescriptions, health needs and other pharmacy products. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty. May we be your personal family pharmacy?"

JESSIE BAXTER RETIRES

After some 25 years in Red Cross work, Jessie Baxter of Auburn has retired as executive secretary of the DeKalb County chapter of the American Red Cross. Her retirement was made "official" at a recent meeting of the chapter board of directors. Gale Bale of Auburn is the new executive secretary.

Mrs. Baxter played a large part in getting the blood collection program started in DeKalb County. Other duties were numerous, keeping tabs on first aid instruction classes, swimming instruction classes, clothing and household goods supplies for emergency use on an individual or family basis, and so on. She relayed messages between servicemen and their families during the Korean and Vietnam "wars."

Mother's March Nets $111

The "Mothers' March" for the March of Dimes was held at Saint Joe last weekend with Cindy Culbertson serving as local chairman.

Cindy reports that the community responded to the tune of some $111.00 and expresses her appreciation to those who contributed.

Cindy's "helpers" in the solicitation included Sue Musser, Carol King, Ralphine Robinson, Kav Smith, Sheila Holman, Alice Madinski, Penny Sechler, Anita Bremer and Julie Lopez.

'Ladies' v Leo Tuesday; WIFF-FM To Broadcast

Pairings for the girls' sectional basketball tourney were announced Wednesday of this week. Locally, the sectional will be played at the Garrett gym.

A change has been made in the sectional assignments. Leo will be in the tourney at Garrett instead of at Fort Wayne. And the change brought a game which appears to be the highlight of the Garrett sectional. DeKalb Eastside has drawn Leo as their opponent in the first game of the tourney to be played Tuesday, January 30, at 7:00 p.m. There is only one game that night.

The tourney opener should be a "lulu," what with the Lady Blazers and Leo having a hard-fought rivalry the past three seasons.

Wednesday night, Hamilton faces Garrett at 6:30 p.m. with Angola to play DeKalb Central at 8:00 p.m.

The semi finals Friday, February 2, include Fremont facing the winner of the Eastside-Leo game at 6:30 p.m. At 8:00 p.m., the winners of games 2 and 3 will compete.

The championship game will be played Saturday, February 3, at 7:00 p.m.

The winner of the Garrett sectional will go to the Northrop regional at Fort Wayne the Saturday after the sectional to play at 11:00 a.m. Another regional game is set for 12:30 p.m. with the championship to be determined that evening.

WIFF-radio of Auburn has announced that it will broadcast all girls' tourney games through the semi-state, at least. If the Garrett sectional winner should reach the state finals, the local radio station will broadcast that tourney also.

The radio broadcasts will be carried on the FM dial at 105.

The Lady Blazers of DeKalb Eastside have won the sectional title the past two years. This year they face a formidable rival in their sectional tilt. Tourney time is the end of the high school basketball career of four Lady Blazers: Lisa Johnson, Amy Hampel, Sunda Obendorf and Jo Baughman.

Here We Go Again.....

The situation surrounding the probable dismissal of our high school principal presents some circumstances which are puzzling. I don't mean just the "why" that exists in many patrons' minds; I mean the "conflict of interest" that lies in the two ideas, of "right to know" for the public and "right to privacy" of the principal.

I am not the only one who has gotten no concrete information from school board members and the superintendent. I say that to erase any suspicions in the minds of those who have seen me conversing at basketball games with school board members and the superintendent. They speak only in very general terms, so general that no one can find out what is behind the action. This has irritated me and I said so a few days ago with, "As a parent, I feel I have a right to know why the principal is being called on the carpet'. How can I determine what I think about the matter if I don't know what the circumstances are? How can I make a reasonable decision in my own mind on the basis of an hour or two at a meeting in February, without having an opportunity to think over the facts and see what others think and know?"

Understand, these conversations have been friendly; no arguments were involved. It was just plain sharing of opinion.

I have not even tried to contact Mr. Robert E. Williams, the high school principal, because I know from past experience of his high standard of ethics in these matters and I have no doubt that, even though this matter pertains to him personally, he would not make any public statements to gain advantage. He and the board and the superintendent are united in that respect, as far as I can tell—no talking before the hearing. And it is possible that you and I won't know any details since, as I understand it, Mr. Williams can be granted a closed hearing according to state law. I have no argument in that respect; some things are better left in closed session.

I am puzzled by the timing of the hearing, or rather the timing of the vote to consider cancelling Mr. Williams' contract. It is no secret that there has been dissatisfaction with Mr. Williams or there would have been no tie vote last year on the renewal of his contract (two board members abstained from voting and an abstaining vote is considered a "yes." That's as it should be.)

But why open the matter in the middle of a school year? It seems that the eastern district no more than gets settled down from one situation (and our district in the past has usually gotten "bad" press—that is, the public gets the impression of inept school administration) and up pops another bad situation. Other county school districts seem to have been treated more fairly when their problems have arisen.

For example, a protest group in the Garrett school district had its activities reported consistently and without any apparent effort to degrade the protesters last year who said their school board was going to spend too much money for new construction. When a protest group in our district not too many years back sought to get the new junior-senior high school built halfway between Butler and the Riverdale area, the group received limited coverage. In fact, the county daily, then under different ownership, refused to publish factual information. I know; I provided the information in behalf of the protesters and was told "we won't run a series on it." We didn't want a "series"; all we wanted was that the public be informed of the circumstances in total, especially since the DeKalb central administration had indicated a willingness to merge with the eastern district for mutual benefit (we wouldn't have to build a high school on our own and they wouldn't have to build a junior high on their own).

A year or so ago, there was a fire on a DeKalb central school bus. The incident was reported; the superintendent was interviewed and there was no "embarrassing" approach to the matter by other media, even though a bus driver had been negligent in not remaining in the bus to control the students (one of them lighted another student's papier-mache project as a prank).

When teacher contract negotiations occurred in the past in our district we have had more "embarrassing" appearances than not through other media. You don't hear about many difficulties elsewhere. Is it that there aren't any such problems elsewhere? Not on your life. It's just that such "embarrassing" circumstances are hushed and it appears that someone elsewhere can say, "We don't have those problems."

In the current situation involving the principal, I am fearful that our students will once again be demoralized. When I opined that the timing was bad, a school board member said the board had considered that fact. So, the question that comes to mind is: what is so much worse now than just a few months ago that necessitates the principal facing a "trial" (as it was referred to elsewhere) and the superintendent appears to be the "prosecuting attorney" — appears to be, I said, not "is." What is so "bad" that we once again face an embarrassing situation and it has its effect on the student body?

That's where the conflict comes in. As a parent, I still feel I have a right to know. But I also recognize that the school board, the superintendent and the principal have their rights, too. Hovering in the background is the fear of being sued should any information be given. (This points out that school matters and other matters are carried out more in fear than in determination, a "pox" on our times.)

All this rambling hasn't answered any questions. But I hope it serves to remind parents, students, patrons, teachers and the administration that in some situations, there just doesn't seem to be a "right" way to do things. Someone is always hurt. And my personal concern is for the hurt inflicted on our young people (and the principal, probably) in a very trying situation.

Dear Sir:

I have reviewed a copy of your December 7, 1978, editorial "Saint Joe Water Scare Prompted by EPA Intrusion." I feel that certain points need clarification.

Public notification of drinking water regulation violations is required by Federal Law. This requirement is designed to educate the public as to the extent that public water supplies are not meeting minimum water quality criteria. These notices can outline what steps the water supply is taking to correct the problem, and if the contamination is continuing, the notice must include what consumers can do to protect themselves. This public notification provision was also designed to gain support for public water supply improvements necessary to provide safe drinking water, by informing customers of problems and what, if any, improvements are needed.

The draft notice enclosed with my letter included the advice to boil the water to guarantee its safety. The draft notice was based on information available when the letter was written. Our office did not have the check sample information, and would have changed the boil water "advisory" if we had had all of the data. It must also be noted that the notice we supplied was a "draft" notice, and the town of St. Joe was not required to use it verbatim. The requirement for publishing the notice could not be waived, but the content could be revised.

Congress shared your concern of duplication of State and Federal efforts in assuring safe drinking water. The Safe Drinking Water Act made provisions for States to assume primary enforcement responsibility. Only four States, including Indiana, have steadfastly refused to consider enforcing the Safe Drinking Water Act, or more stringent requirements. However, the Region's Water Supply Branch and the Indiana State Board of Health, Water Supply Section have a working relationship based upon avoidance of duplication of effort.

I have enclosed a copy of our Safe Drinking Water Act Implementation Plan for Indiana for your reference. I have also enclosed the "Handbook on Public Notification" which explains the notification policies and procedures. If you have questions on this material, please contact David Wagner of my staff at (312) 353-2151.

Sincerely yours,
Charles H. Sutfin
Director, Water Division

The "Safe Drinking Water Act" contains 25 pages of regulations and tables. The "Handbook On Public Notification" contains 35 pages. Page size is 8½x11. The regulations can be inspected at the News Office.

When we read through the public notification handbook, the following paragraph stood out like a sore thumb, inasmuch as it was stated in these columns December 7 that the local newspaper was "left out" because of federal requirements related to such notices:

"A newspaper that serves the area must be notified, and notice of the violation MUST BE PUBLISHED in that paper on three consecutive days. The three-day publication period must be COMPLETED within 14 days of the violation. If no daily paper exists, a weekly paper that serves the area must be advised and the notice of violation MUST BE PUBLISHED in three consecutive issues of that paper. You will need to pay for an official public notice if the publisher will not accept your notice as a news article."

Therefore, a part of our December 7 criticism was in error due to incorrect information given to us. Apparently the town board did not read the regulations and went on someone else's say-so.

This puts us in the embarrassing position of having misled the public on that point.

The above letter may seem at first to be a complete explanation of the EPA's position in the matter. However, there are more questions unanswered than answered. More on that in the next issue. —Ed.

Why

Callahan Soybeans ARE BLENDS

We call it "complementary competition." The two best athletes in a given sport perform at their best when they face each other, head-to-head. The same is true of the two champion varieties of each Callahan blend.

Blends out-yield single varieties consistently, bad growing seasons as well as good. With blends you minimize the gamble caused by fluctuating weather, too little or too much moisture, abnormally high or low temperatures, varying degrees of disease infestation, etc. With blends, you have two components, each of which has different characteristics. Each will reach stress periods at different times in its growth cycle. As a result, only half of the plants in a field are competing for water, sunlight and other vital nutrients at any given time. Blends combine bushy with straight plant types and permit more sunlight to penetrate the leafy canopy for the greatest growth of beans.

Our research has shown that the best way to achieve the highest possible yield is to choose a CALLAHAN blend that is full season for your area and to plant early.

Reducing the cost of health care

You have it in your power to hold down health care costs. Personal living habits have a profound effect on your health. If you ate properly, got adequate rest and exercised regularly, there would not be such a great need for health technology.

It is less expensive to modify your behavior and remain healthy than to return you to health after the damage has been done. It's not easy but in the long run you come out ahead. Start off the New Year by resolving to take better care of your body.

'Ladies' Split

The Lady Blazers found themselves in the same position against Norwell Friday night as Leo was against the Ladies recently: having an out-of-bounds play with 4 seconds to go and behind in the score. And the stories ended the same—they couldn't score in the 4 seconds.

Having a 26-16 lead at the half, the locals found themselves suffering from no-basketitis the second half. Norwell outscored the Ladies 22-13 in the third quarter. And in the final quarter the Blazers could net only 6 points as against 9 for Norwell.

Leading ACAC scorer Lisa Johnson was held to only 6 points on 2 field goals and 2 free throws. She did not appear to be getting set up for "her sh t" with the Blazer offense seemingly trying to work the ball in for close shots. She had 15 rebounds, however, with sophomore Laurie Culler getting 14 off the boards, Amy Hampel 11 and Sunda Obendorf 10.

Long shots paid off for the Norwell team, with someone named "Smith" getting 9 field goals, most of them 20-foot or more "bombs."

Norwell outscored the locals from the field 23-17. Free throw accuracy kept the Ladies in the game. They had 11 while Norwell had but 1.

The Ladies were rested over the weekend and brought smiles back to the faces of their fans Monday night as they smothered Adams Central 64-21.

Lisa Johnson and Amy Hampel had a field day on repeated steals in the first half, giving the two several fast-break layups.

Adams Central just never was in the game but they never quit trying. They did not score in double figures in any quarter of the game.

Monday night was a 'farewell" occasion with seniors Johnson, Hampel, Obendorf and Hampel playing in their

I don't know if something was stuck or what. But last Saturday night—or rather, early Sunday morning as I returned from Fort Wayne—I passed a state highway truck going in the opposite direction on State Road 1 north of Dupont Road and its blade wasn't all the way down. There had been a five or six-inch snowfall during the evening—maybe more. A heavy layer of snow was left on the road after the truck passed.

When I got back to Saint Joe, the main street had the snow cover. I went over to check the furnace at our church and run through the hymns ("at three o'clock in the morning!" somebody exclaimed), and when I returned to the house, a state highway truck had been through and cleared the street curb to curb.

Jody Phillips Is Pageant Finalist

An article in the Auburn Evening Star announced the selection of Jody Phillips of Butler as a finalist in the 1979 Miss Indiana National Teen-Ager Pageant to be held at Indiana Central University in Indianapolis June 30.

Jody is the daughter of MM Wendell Phillips and is a senior at DeKalb Eastside High School. She is being sponsored by Knisely National Bank of Butler and Saint Joe.

The Indiana pageant is the official state final to the national pageant to be held in Atlanta, Georgia, in August. The state title will be sought by contestants from all over the state. The program reportedly teaches teenagers to share and to participate in school and civic affairs. A mini-modeling charm course will be given during the weekend of the pageant.

The state winner will receive a cash scholarship, a scholarship to Barbizon School, round trip flight with all expenses paid to the national finals, a 16x20 color portrait, trophy, crown, banner and other gifts. $10 000 in cash scholarships will be awarded at the national pageant.

Contestants are judged on scholastic achievement, leadership, poise, personality and beauty. There is no swim suit or talent competition.

Instr'l winners

37 instrumental music students from the DeKalb eastern school system were among the over 1,000 contestants in the Northern Indiana School Band, Orchestra and Vocal Association contest held at Lakeland High School at LaGrange. Participants were from schools in DeKalb, LaGrange, Steuben and Whitley counties.

TO THE EDITOR—

Dear Mr. Haberkorn:

I was surprised and pleased to find an ad for the Spencerville United Methodist Church with its times of services in your paper two weeks ago. And then I was equally gratified to find ads of other area churches in last week's paper. I commend you for your public service in publishing such information. I believe that strong churches make for healthy and wholesome communities. Thank you for supporting our communities in the above way.

Yours in Christ,
Terry C. Rhine

The "ads" are published at no cost to any of the congregations. —Ed.

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

We would like to take this opportunity to express our deepest appreciation and love to each of you, individuals and organizations alike, who have sent prayers, cards, letters, food, clothing and financial aid our way. We couldn't even begin to name each individual that has helped us because we wouldn't have room. But, we will never forget a one of you.

We would also like to say a special thanks to Tom and Shirley Mack who have taken such good care of our three children and done so many other things so that I could stay at the hospital with Dean for the past 11 weeks.

Also a special thanks to those who have given Shirley a helping hand by babysitting Joel while she works, Betty Longardner and Connie Yates.

God bless each and every one of you always.

Sincerely,
Dean and Julie Mishler

Lions Club

Congratulations were in order for one of our members, Maurice Kline. So it was brought to our attention during the meeting that Maurice is now a member of the town board. So the Tail Twister remembered that he was told by Maurice that he's been a Lion member for many years and no one has yet got him on anything because of his clean living. That was a challenge to the Tail Twister.

At the meeting it was noted that Maurice has political ambitions. He is using the town board member position as a stepping stone to launch his career. His next step is to be mayor of St. Joe. You say St. Joe doesn't have a mayor? Well, just wait, Maurice has plans for that. He will further his career by running for governor, then his ultimate goal—yes, President.

The last few days Maurice has been looking for an affiliation such as the Republican party, Democratic, and American party. Well, none of these seemed to justify his beliefs or future ambitions. So to begin his career he is going to start out with the Stag party. So the next time you see Maurice, congratulate him and ask to see his town board. Good luck, Maurice. I know you'll do your best.

Cheers.
Tail Twister

Club members attending the instructional clinic for Scouts included Dick Gabet, Dick Mack, Carl Creech, Walt Perry, Mark Cook, Leo Richey, Sandy Perry, Shirley Mack, Tom Mack and Nick Heyman.

Two visitors went along, Chris and Jeff McKean.

Shirley Mack reports. "It snowed, hailed and rained all day. Everyone was soaked but had a big time. Both members and Scouts enjoyed the day."

'Ladies' Win Sec'l Pair

Coach Val Gates of the DeKalb Eastside Lady Blazers was quoted last week as saying the Blazers "wanted" Leo in the draw for sectional pairings. Just how much the Lady Blazers "wanted" their opponent was evident Tuesday night as they dominated the Leo team and took a 67-52 win over the Lions.

At times it seemed the literally unteachable combination of Tonya Burns and Julie Meinerding would overcome the Lady Blazers. But they exhibited their inherent "cool" and demoralized the Leo offense with interceptions which led to further turnovers by the Lions. The locals made a few mistakes themselves, but not enough to hurt their overall competitiveness.

Leo started the game as if to make a rout of it, scoring three field goals for a 6 0 lead. The Lady Blazers then made two straight pass interceptions for field goals and added another fielder to tie it at 6 6. They continued for another half dozen points before Leo scored again.

Leo caught up and went ahead briefly. The Ladies then took over and with a 25-point final quarter registered the significant victory. The Ladies had won a thriller 61-58 just two weeks ago from the same team nweeks ago from the same team.

The extent to which the Lady Blazers confused their opponents with their sticky defense was evident in the last two minutes of the game when the Eastside fans were standing and pointing to the Blazers offensive court. There were six Leo players defending against the five Ladies. No technical was called despite the discussion held with the officials with Coach Gates. After the game, one official admitted an error in not calling a technical foul against the Lions.

The Ladies were helped early in the game as Leo's two tall and effective gals, Julie and Tonya, picked up three fouls each. The only Lady to have the same problem was Laurie Culler with three. With help from the bench on both teams, none of the players fouled out, however.

In the last quarter, the Ladies played "keep away" effectively to kill time and run the clock down. Leo had to foul to try to get possession of the ball and the Ladies were effective at the foul line. The Leo coach was overheard to exclaim, "Those foul shots!" in frustration, remembering that the Eastside win two weeks ago came at the foul line. In the sectional game at Garrett, Leo had only four points on free throws.

To say that the Lady Blazers were "ready" for Leo is the understatement of the year, to all appearances.

The Lady Blazers entered the championship game of the Garrett sectional by defeating Fremont 62-30 Thursday night this week. They face Hamilton who edged Angola 51-50.

Eastside jumped to a 6-0 lead before Fremont got on the board. They continued to dominate the game, reaching a 17-6 first quarter lead and a 38-10 halftime lead.

With coach Val Gates using her bench freely in the second half, Fremont managed to net 14 points in the third period. But the Ladies scored 18 and had a 56-34 third period lead. In the final quarter, both teams managed to score but 6 points.

Continuing their excellent defensive efforts, the Lady Blazers spread their fouls so that Fremont ended with no points from the free throw line. The locals had 18 points on free throws.

Lisa Johnson once again led scoring, getting 21 points. Amy Hampel had 14 and Sunda Obendorf 10.

Hamilton overcame an Angola 44-36 third quarter lead to win on a free throw with only 8 seconds left in the game. Angola had a 20-10 field goal advantage. But at the free throw line Hamilton got the victory, scoring 23 points to but 10 by Angola.

—that State Representative Norman Gerig of Auburn has strongly endorsed the passage of a bill to petition Congress for a Constitutional Convention to draft an amendment requiring a balanced budget. Opponents of the proposed Constitutional Convention point out that the convention could go beyond just mandating a balanced budget, which is recognized as in itself a good thing, and could get into other proposals for amendments, even to the point of replacing the original Constitution with a new one. A propsed new constitution already exists, having been fostered by the Rockefeller Foundation. It reportedly substitutes primary recognition of God as the source of human liberty and substitutes government as the source of liberty.

—that Indiana tarpayers will pay more than $13 billion to the federal government as their share of the $531.6 billion budget for 1980, according to the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce. That comes out to $2,423 for every man, woman and child in the state.

—that the Eastside varsity wrestling team tied for sixth in the ACAC tourney recently.

—that the fund drive committee for the annual Tri-State Regional Science Fair includes Keith Ulm of R2 Butler.

—that excessive sugar in the average person's diet is a major concern of health authorities. But the public is not always aware of the amount of sugar consumed. For instance, "Hamburger Helper" is 23% sugar, according to "Consumer Reports." And "light dessert" Jell-O is 82.6% sugar. Quaker 100% Natural Cereal is 23.9% sugar. Wishbone Russian Dressing is 30.2% sugar. Callahan Soybeans

ARE BLENDS

We call it "complementary competition." The two best athletes in a given sport perform at their best when they face each other, head-to-head. The same is true of the two champion varieties of each Callahan blend.

Blends out-yield single varieties consistently, bad growing seasons as well as good. With blends you minimize the gamble caused by fluctuating weather, too little or too much moisture, abnormally high or low temperatures, varying degrees of disease infestation, etc. With blends, you have two components, each of which has different characteristics. Each will reach stress periods at different times in its growth cycle. As a result, only half of the plants in a field are competing for water, sunlight and other vital nutrients at any given time. Blends combine bushy with straight plant types and permit more sunlight to penetrate the leafy canopy for the greatest growth of beans.

Our research has shown that the best way to achieve the highest possible yield is to choose a CALLAHAN blend that is full season for your area and to plant early.

Reducing the cost of health care

You have it in your power to hold down health care costs. Personal living habits have a profound effect on your health. If you ate properly, got adequate rest and exercised regularly, there would not be such a great need for health technology.

It is less expensive to modify your behavior and remain healthy than to return you to health after the damage has been done. It's not easy but in the long run you come out ahead. Start off the New Year by resolving to take better care of your body.

'Ladies' Beat E.Noble, Wayne; Win Regional!

"They don't give up."

Those words, used to describe the efforts of the Lady Blazers of DeKalb Eastside High School in their accomplishments on the basketball court, held true once again in the regional basketball tourney at Northrop High School at Fort Wayne.

The Lady Blazers kept their "cool" once again in their regional tourney tilt against East Noble and came out with a hard-fought 55-52 victory. East Noble had defeated the locals 60-53 earlier in the season. The regional win, therefore, came as "sweet revenge."

Both teams were "hot" in the first half but East Noble was "hot" longer. This, plus some calls by the referees, questioned by Eastside fans and coach Val Gates, brought an 11-point lead at one time in the first half. The Ladies picked away and had the lead cut to 5 points at halftime.

Three fouls put Sunda Obendorf on the bench for a while. But she got back in and stayed in to help considerably with her rebounding strength. And the Ladies kept plugging away until they finally overcame the East Noble five to take a 1-point lead 53-52. Then Jo Baughman was fouled, slowly and deliberately took aim, and sank a pair of free throws to put the game out of reach for East Noble with 11 seconds to go. The Ladies avoided fouling but still bottled East Noble's offense enough to prevent a good shot as the clock ran out.

Against East Noble, the margin of victory was made in the final quarter when the locals outscored their opponents 16-6.

Once again free throws won it for the Ladies. Outscored 24-21 from the field, the Lady Blazers had a 13-4 advantage at the free throw line, including 7 by Sunda.

Then in the regional championship game against Wayne of Fort Wayne, the Ladies were behind 12-8 at the end of one period but kept plugging away and took still another 3-point victory.

Against Wayne in the championship game, tall smooth-actioned Beth Doehrman almost made the difference of a win or loss for Wayne. She had 20 points in the 51-48 Blazer victory over Wayne. When the Blazers took a lead at times in the game and Wayne would then catch up and go ahead. it was "Doehrman, Doehrman."

Laurie Culler was effective in both regional games, scoring 15 against East Noble and 12 in the championship game.

In the win over Wayne, the Ladies effectively used a press in the second half and in the final quarter outscored their opponents 14-10 to provide the margin of victory.

—And the smiles were numerous on the faces of those who came to "scream for the green."

Lady Blazer fan numbers caused one of the Fort Wayne TV station crew members to ask, "Where'd all those people come from?" There was a good-sized group of supporters at the first game. But at the championship game, Lady Blazer rooters virtually filled one side of the Northrop gym.

Lisa Johnson led scoring with 23 points against Wayne. Laurie with her dozen and Amy Hampel with another dozen completed the high scoring. But if Jo Baughman hadn't sunk two free throws and if Kandy Kaser hadn't scored a field goal, the story would have been different.

The Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette named Lisa and Amy to its "all-tourney" team.

The Lady Blazers now will face Bellmont in the semi-state at Northrop.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

The appearance of a notice of additional appropriations in this issue for the Town of Saint Joe does not mean that more taxes will be levied or more money spent in 1979 than advertised in the town's proposed budget published last August.

The technicality of advertising for "additional appropriations" was caused due to an unknown change in laws governing publication of the budget, according to town clerk-treasurer Emma Frank. Certain other taxing units have also found it necessary to advertise for "additional appropriations" due to the change.

The statutes provide that budgets be published in two newspapers of opposite political faith in the city or town. Where there is only one newspaper, as in Saint Joe, the budget shall be published in that paper and notices posted in three public places. The clerk said the law formerly required that she post notices in but two public places. When the budget was reviewed by the state and only two public places listed as having a notice of the budget, the town was required to advertise the "additional appropriation" in order to use funds already on hand and to be received during 1979.

So, if anyone thinks the notices mean more taxes, forget it. The notice is just a technicality.

Car Fatality

DeKalb County's first auto fatality of 1979 occurred Sunday shortly after noon on County Road 64 southeast of Saint Joe.

Killed in the one-car accident was Lester B. Littrell, 53, of Churubusco. Three other persons were injured in the accident: Clarabell Littrell, 53, the driver of the car; Vernon Elkins, Jr., 35, and Janet Y. Elkins, 32, of Fort Wayne. Mrs. Littrell suffered serious injuries. Mrs. Elkins was treated for minor injuries at DeKalb Memorial Hospital and released and Mr. Elkins had a cut above one eye.

The Littrell car skidded on ice and crashed headon into a steel and cement post.

School Board

At Monday's school board meeting, it was voted to name the new administration building the "Kenneth Cole Administration Building" in memory of the late superintendent who died of a heart attack last July.

Legal counsel H. Charles Winans said he will donate a name plaque for the building.

Rick Hudson will be relieved of baseball coaching duties at his request. Due to his desire to devote time to building the basketball program in the district, he feels he could not do justice to the baseball program. A baseball coach will be named at a later date.

An "energy audit" is under way at Eastside to see how fuel savings can be instituted.

The cumulative building fund tax levy was left at $1.00.

Two new buses were ordered by the board after re-advertising for bids. The price for each International Harvester chassis wiwth Bluebird body is $18,916.

Church Constr'n Progressing As It Seeks '100%'

Work is progressing on the new worship church-school complex of Coburn Corners Church of Christ on State Road 101 just south of the old church building.

According to the church newsletter this week, decisions on church furniture are in progress at the present time. Delivery will be 12 to 15 weeks after ordering.

A professional painter will be sought to assist volunteers in decorating the interior. Carpet will be selected soon. Most of the outside masonry work is finished. Dry wall has been applied and the heating system is being installed.

In other activities, the congregation has set March 4 as "Perfect Attendance Sunday" in the church school. All of the adult classes will begin a series of lessons on "The Fundamentals of Faith" that day.

The goal is to reach the total enrollment of each of the classes in attendance that Sunday. Each teacher is responsible for plans to help reach the goal for the respective classes.

EHS ATHLETICS

Wednesday, February 14—freshman basketball 6:30 Fremont there.

Town Board

A report from the town board of Monday's meeting includes the seeking of bids for park and cemetery care for the season May 1 through November 1.

The contract with Merritt, Inc., for trash removal will be up for renewal this year.

A request from the fire department for two back-packs used in entering burning buildings where toxic gases may be present was denied. Two such units reportedly cost around $1,500 for a pair. Concord Township bought two such units last year, the board was told. The denial of the request apparently was based on the high cost as well as the fact that four firemen would seldom be needed for entry into a building or residence. That many firemen would seemingly "short" the department in other duties in fighting a fire.

Board member Loretta Loy will attend an instructional meeting in March on setting up a town election board. New town board members and town clerk-treasurer are to be elected in November of 1979. Town elections are run independently and are set up by town officials. Candidates for office are selected by party caucus in August at the latest. Democrats and Republicans in the town select candidates at their respective caucuses. There must be at least 20 members of the party present at the respective party caucuses.

No information has been received recently to indicate any change in the town's status regarding a federal grant for the sewage treatment facility.

A contract with Denny Baker for snow plowing was renewed recently. Such work is paid for at the rate of $22 per hour.

Water commissioner Bill Mansfield informed the board that he plans to turn the duties over to Rich Gfeller who is now working with Mr. Mansfield to learn the routine.

The board voted to purchase a chlorine tester kit for on-the-spot checking of water samples.

Maps showing the numbering system recently adopted by the board will be distributed to every household in town in the near future. The residential numbers are to make it easier for emergency personnel to find the proper location on an emergency call.

Why

Callahan Soybeans ARE BLENDS

We call it "complementary competition." The two best athletes in a given sport perform at their best when they face each other, head-to-head. The same is true of the two champion varieties of each Callahan blend.

Blends out-yield single varieties consistently, bad growing seasons as well as good. With blends you minimize the gamble caused by fluctuating weather, too little or too much moisture, abnormally high or low temperatures, varying degrees of disease infestation, etc. With blends, you have two components, each of which has different characteristics. Each will reach stress periods at different times in its growth cycle. As a result, only half of the plants in a field are competing for water, sunlight and other vital nutrients at any given time. Blends combine bushy with straight plant types and permit more sunlight to penetrate the leafy canopy for the greatest growth of beans.

Our research has shown that the best way to achieve the highest possible yield is to choose a CALLAHAN blend that is full season for your area and to plant early.

Tavern Break-in

Unestimated but considerable damage was caused at the Oasis Tavern at Saint Joe early Monday morning. Intruders broke a window in the unused east section of the building, then broke another window in the west portion where tavern customers are served. After gaining entry to the building, they smashed a jukebox, took a small radio and decorative wall "mug," extensively damaged a TV set and smashed an undetermined number of bottles of liquor on the floor throughout the taven. Broken glass was described as "three inches deep" behind the bar by "Doc" Wertman who owns the establishment with his wife, Jackie.

It appears that four cases of beer were taken but the amount of liquor has not been accurately determined due to the unknown number of bottles broken inside the tavern.

'Ladies' Sectional

The Lady Blazers of DeKalb Eastside High School made it three sectional championships in a row Saturday when they defeated Hamilton 58-40 at Garrett.

Though the Ladies came off with an 18-point victory, the early part of the game created some doubts in the minds of Blazer fans. Several fouls called against the Blazers early in the game represented a far-from-normal pattern. And Hamilton had ACAC scoring champion Lisa Johnson of the Lady Blazers pretty well bottled up.

A "tight" defensive second quarter by the Ladies limited Hamilton to only 4 points as the Blazers scored 17.

Then in the second half Lisa found the range and ended the game with a total of 14 points.

The "lifesaver" for the Lady Blazers was Amy Hampel who took advantage of Hamilton's concentrated defensive efforts on Lisa and came up with high scoring honors with 24 points. She scored all of Eastside's 8 first-quarter points.

Jo Baughman never has been a high scorer for the Lady Blazers. And she had but 6 points on 3 field goals against Hamilton. But those three baskets came at times when it seemed Hamilton was going to catch up. Jo's scoring stifled that possibility.

Sunda Obendorf had only 4 points, but she led the team in rebounds. Laurie Culler came up with 10 points and showed a lot of hustle, as did all the Eastsiders.

Though no points came from the subs coming off the Eastside bench to spell a starter now and then, they were part of the team victory.

Riverdale High In Read-A-Thon

Riverdale Elementary students who participated in the recent "Read-A-Thon" to raise funds for the Northern Indiana Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society made an outstanding showing, according to figures released giving county totals.

Participating students at the Riverdale School read 523 books and collected $633.63 from those who pledged certain amounts according to the number of books read. Only the J.E. Ober Elementary participants topped the Riverdale students in books read with 561. This brought in $722.16 for the MS fund.

The DeKalb eastern district topped the Garrett Keyser-Butler schools in books read by 1079 to 593. The amount raised was $1,421.93 locally to $828.53 at Garrett.

Butler Elementary School students read two fewer books than Riverdale students but raised more money, $770.30.

At Garrett the 593 books read brought in $828.53.

13,000 students in over 300 schools participated in the pleasure-reading marathon as "mystery sleuths" helping in the search for a cure for MS.

Achieving the designation as "super sleuth" at Riverdale were Rita Chew who raised $32.95; Michelle Baker $53.02; Jill Witt $50.00; Susan Landrum $29.25 and Christy Miller $17.90.

Butler Elementary "super sleuths" were Beth Smith with $112.50; Tammy Kenning $77.00; Holli Arrants $64.00.

Vespers Rehearsals

Interested singers are invited to join St. Peter's Choir in preparing for the Eastertide Choral Vespers to be performed Sunday, April 22, at 7:30 p.m. in St. Peter's Church in Spencerville.

Rehearsals will begin Sunday afternoon, March 4, and run from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. at the church.

The Choir will be singing Handel's "Messiah" (Easter Section); Faure's "The Palms"; Handel's "Holy Art Thou"; and Robertson's "Lord's Prayer."

Jay Blauser will direct the preparation and presentation of the vespers.

Donkey Winners

The Lions clubs of Saint Joe and Butler played in a donkey basketball game Wednesday of last week and provided laughs for the crowd attending. Saint Joe's club won 22-20 but the Butler bunch had a rally going which almost won the game for them right at the end.

Noticed as having particular problems with their donkeys were Andy Crow, Ron Beard and Jerry Markle, with the last named giving an exhibition on how to keep going when the donkey suddenly stops.

The game was played to help raise funds for the school's athletic department.

Band Uniform Donors Sought

The Band Boosters' Foundation, Incorporated, of DeKalb Eastside Jr. Sr. High School is proceeding with plans to purchase 75 band uniforms and 43 auxiliary uniforms, the latter for the flag and rifle corps. Approximate cost of each uniform is $190.

The organization has $3 500 raised thus far toward the goal of $25,000. Local businesses, organizations and clubs are currently being solicited for donations. The uniforms must be ordered by March 1 in order to have delivery in time for the marching season, according to club officers.

Those who donate the cost of a uniform will have their name permanently placed in the uniform.

Letters have been sent over the signatures of Mrs. Eugene Zahner, Booster president Mr. Richard Foster, band director, and Mr. Robert E. Williams, junior-senior high school principal.

The Boosters note that donations are tax deductible.

Important information about dental floss

Along with toothbrushes, dentists, recommend the use of dental floss, either waxed or unwaxed. While many dentists recommend unwaxed, people with tightly spaced teeth may find waxed dental floss easier to use.

The important point is to use the floss daily as your dentist prescribes, in order to remove plaque, the major cause of tooth decay and periodontal (gum) disease. Our pharmacy carries dental floss in our dental aids section.

"A GREAT MANY PEOPLE ENTRUST US with their prescriptions, health needs and other pharmacy products. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty. May we be your personal family pharmacy?"

Judge Charles Quinn has expressed his disagreement with the decision, pointing out that the establishment of the Superior Court and other small claims courts was for the purpose of providing low-cost judicial review of civil cases. Vulcraft, EHS Students 'Mob' Bloodmobile; Give 188 Pints

With the Vulcraft plant responding with 85 to 90 volunteer donors and approximately 40 teenage donors coming from DeKalb Eastside High School, the 1979 Riverdale Bloodmobile came up with a record-breaking 188 pints of blood Wednesday in the Riverdale cafetorium. This represents a substantial increase over the 1978 total of 146 pints which was a record up to that time, and the 123 pints in 1977, also a record up to that time.

Through the efforts particularly of Jan Roach, staff nurse at the Vulcraft plant, production and office personnel responded with the highest number of employees ever to contribute a pint of blood. School Superintendent Charles Hampel cooperated with chairman Delores Hicov by providing a bus to transport many of the students from the high school to the Bloodmobile and back.

Along with these significant "group" donors, there were also the responsive individual donors, many of whom are virtual "regulars" when the call goes out for blood donors.

The response was so heavy that additional supplies had to be obtained from Fort Wayne. Mrs. Hicov said "they thought we were kidding" when the additional supplies were requested.

Unfortunately, the heavy response resulted in a longer-than-usual period of time for some donors to go through the donor procedure. And a few had to leave before donating blood due to prior commitments. On the bright side to offset this, Mrs. Hicov said that she had several people volunteer to help the next time, they having noted the need for more help and being caught up in the spirit of the enthusiastic turnout.

The total number of donors prompted the reaction, "188—Wow! We're the greatest!" for the volunteer workers and donors.

Apparently many people wanted to be "Valentines," to reflect the slogan appearing in these pages—"Be somebody's Valentine tomorrow—donate a pint of blood today."

Whatever the motivation, the turnout was overwhelming and indicates the capable chairmanship of Mrs. Hicov and the cooperation of the volunteer workers.

216 people were scheduled for the Riverdale Bloodmobile and from these came the eventual 188 donors.

Around the Town

WITH THE EDITOR

I don't always catch typographical errors but some of those I do notice before running the paper off keep me out of a lot of trouble.

That thought went through my mind when I proof-read Ivan and Betty Brown's ad on their recent furniture sale. In the first setup, "15% off" was "15¢ off". That would have been some sale, eh?

It reminded me that back in August or thereabouts when a problem arose about the dog control program due to misunderstandings, I almost blew the lid off the whole works, but I caught the errors. In reprinting Betty Baker's letter to the editor about her responsibilities as dog warden, a sentence which read: "You sure did make me look bad and I'm not" came out, "You sure did make me look had and I'm not."

And in the same copy, a letter from Loretta Loy about the same matter came out "Loretta Lay."

—I don't know — I musta been distracted or something.

Incidentally, the Browns' furniture sale was a true sale. The discounts were on the regular merchandise they had in stock —no hiked prices were tagged on "special purchase" sale items as is done elsewhere in so-called "sales."

—And don't tell me their prices on furniture are higher from the start; I know better. A bedroom suite advertised a few weeks ago in a special color supplement for a Fort Wayne store was some $200 higher at the "sale" price than the Browns have on the same suite at regular price.

I'm not saying that prices are always lower on everything in their store. As small independent merchants, Ivan and Betty know that can't be possible. What I am saying is that there are no "tricks" to presenting their specified items at sale prices. "15% off" means literally that you are saving 15%.

There's another thought for those who look elsewhere first (this in behalf of other local businesses as well): how many Fort Wayne merchants support financially the local Girl Scouts when they sell cookies, the band members when they sell something to raise funds, the Band Boosters when they raise money for uniforms, the Athletic Booster Club when they raise funds, the junior class when it sells magazines, the senior class when it sells "ads" in the school annual, the church league when it seeks funds — and on and on and on. Local business deserves patronage by local residents to as great a degree as is economically possible. This recognizes the part local business plays in supporting local activities.

"Politics" won that game for Garrett against Eastside. Look at the names in the lineup: "Winans — Graham — Kelham — Herzer. . . ."!

Earle Lewis Kelsey, 50, of R1 Saint Joe died Saturday afternoon at Parkview Memorial Hospital in Fort Wayne. He had been a patient there two weeks and had been in failing health prior to that time.

Mr. Kelsey was born July 26, 1928, in Chicago, the son of Earle E. and Margaret Reed Kelsey. He was a travel agent and owner of the Fort Wayne Travel Service. A Korean war veteran, he was a member of the Saint Joe Lions Club, American Society of Travel Agents and Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association.

The Kelseys have resided at Saint Joe for the past 12 years.

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Baidinger & Walter Funeral Home in Spencerville with Nelson Cairl officiating. Burial was in Alton Park Cemetery.

'Balanced Family' Is Series' Theme

The Spencerville United Methodist Church has set up a series of meetings under the theme, "Balanced Family."

Future monthly meetings will present topics to be chosen by questionnaire at each meeting for discussion at the following meeting.

Baby-sitting will be provided for those parents needing such service. Light refreshments will be served. Donations will be accepted.

All ages are invited to attend and participate—and "communicate."

Temporary Injunction Declared

A hearing was held Wednesday on an injunction sought by DeKalb Eastside Principal Robert E. Williams to prevent the DeKalb eastern school board from holding a hearing Monday, February 19, on cancellation of his contract. A temporary injunction was ultimately issued by Circuit Court Judge Harold Stump when the hearing "collapsed" after Judge Stump pointed out a flaw in the procedure.

The school board is prevented from holding its proposed hearing next Monday. Mr. Williams' contract runs through the spring of 1980. The board wants to cancel the contract for as yet undisclosed reasons except for, apparently, "insubordination and failure to perform duties" in general terms.

The injunction resulted because Mr. Williams was not given "proper notification." Judge Stump noted that the 30-day minimum time requirement for setting the proposed hearing date following notification of the principal fell on February 20, not February 19. This is due to the fact that February 19 is a legal holiday, "Presidents' Day" by an act of Congress, and cannot be utilized as the 30th day.

It was apparent that legal counsel for both the school board and Mr. Williams had not noted the legal holiday. The confusion was due to Congress' changing Washington's birthday observance to a Monday and renaming the holiday "Presidents' Day."

Judge Stump said he had checked the calendar and counted the days "a dozen times" to make certain his computation was correct. Petition for an injunction was filed just the day before. He noted that he was asking many questions to establish agreement between the parties in the suit as to certain normal procedures under school laws.

With the temporary injunction decreed, the school board must now re-set a hearing date in conformity with the law, re-notify Mr. Williams of the date of such hearing, and Mr. Williams must re-file a petition for a permanent injunction.

Though a delay has come in the matter, legal counsel for the contesting parties agreed with Judge Stump's statement that each step in the procedure must be done according to law or there could be even longer and costly delays in the future if an error occurs and is discovered after other procedures are undertaken.

Three 'Ladies' Named 'All-Area'

Three of DeKalb Eastside's Lady Blazers have been named to the ACAC all-conference first team by the coaches in the conference.

Lisa Johnson was named for the third time. She is the leading scorer in the conference and has tallied some 1400 points in her high school career.

Amy Hampel was named for the second time. She is the Lady Blazers' second high scorer and has blossomed this year into a top all-around athlete.

Sunda Obendorf was named for the first time. She is the Ladies' third high scorer. A strong rebounder, her absence from the lineup on brief occasions shows that, despite being only 5'6" tall, her work under the boards usually overcomes an opponents' height advantage.

Perhaps unnoticed in the statistics due to their high scoring capabilities, Lisa and Amy are also strong rebounders. Amy is 5'6" and has a left-hand jump shot from outside that is deadly. Lisa, at only 5'4", comes up with a surprising number of rebounds, her agility giving her an advantage over usually slower-moving taller opponents. Lisa's specialty is a drible-in jumper from around 10 feet.

World Day of Prayer Service March 2 - 7:30 p.m.

The "World Day of Prayer" service in the Riverdale community will be held Friday, March 2, at 7:30 p.m. The service will be held at St. Mark Evangelical Lutheran Church in Saint Joe.

Women from churches of the community have joined in planning the local service. Represented are the United Methodist and St. Peter Evangelical Lutheran churches of Spencerville, Newville United Methodist Church, Concord United Methodist Church and Saint Joe Church of Christ, as well as the host congregation.

"Spirited Growth" is the World Day of Prayer theme and was written by students in the Pan-African Leadership Course For Women at Mindolo Ecumenical Foundation in Kitwe, Zambia. Each year women in a different nation are asked to write the World Day of Prayer service based on themes chosen by the International Committee For World Day of Prayer.

The annual service dates back to 1887. This year women in 140 countries and 33 islands will unite in prayer on the historic day.

The women of Africa send this message: "Our warm greetings to all the Christians around the world who are coming together from different places for the World Day of Prayer, 1979. We hope the voices of the Pan-Africa Leadership Course at Mindolo can be heard in solidarity with the voices of women in the world as we pray together on World Day of Prayer, 1979."

Letter Raises Questions

The letter from the regional office of the Environmental Protection Agency, published in these columns recently, contains some thought-provoking statements. The most significant statement is the one in which Indiana is pointed out to be one of "only four States" which has "steadfastly refused to consider enforcing the Safe Drinking Water Act, or more stringent requirements."

It's a matter of opinion, of course, but I don't think that Indiana's reluctance is anything to be ashamed of. And I think the innuendo (we should be ashamed of ourselves in Indiana) is definitely improper coming from a public official.

This situation is the same as has been experienced time and time again, involving government agencies and their rules and regulations. It began with the cranberry scare several years ago (remember??), later came a mushroom scare. Other scares which have been either ludicrous or incorrect include: tricycles are unsafe vehicles for children—consumption of high cholesterol foods means heart trouble (it was announced later by non-government investigation that something else in the body chemistry triggers the damage caused by cholesterol, it isn't cholesterol of itself that is the problem)—marijuana is no more dangerous than alcohol—laetrile causes cancer—bacon causes cancer—and so on..

While it is true that we are a more risky breed in recent years and some adjustments are necessary for our protection, the lack of moderation by government agencies in certain matters is out of place. It is silly—and expensive—to require hard hats in many instances in business and industry. How reasonable is it to require a plumber to wear a hard hat when repairing a kitchen drain? How reasonable is it to require a hard hat to go around the corner from an office area at the pickle plant to get a drink of water? How reasonable is it to fine someone because a wall outlet for use of electricity is "improper"?

Government has had to back off on occasion. For instance, last year, when it became evident that auto emission standards could not be met by an International Harvester vehicle, pressure from the industry and Senator Birch Bayh brought a change in the emission standards. Now, I don't like to see anyone lose their job. But when it came to jobs or air purity, the answer was "jobs come first." If it had been a small business facing a shutdown, how far do you think a protest would have gotten?

In the current matter related to Saint Joe, the purpose of the law is understood—to insure safe drinking water. But where has there been any epidemic or individual illness due to bad water? It's a situation comparable to government meat inspection laws. The laws were made so stringent not too many years ago that about 80% of Indiana's 300-or-so independent lockers quit butchering. Did you hear of any "bad" meat causing illness or death prior to that time? I didn't. But the nit-picking rules went into effect anyway.

If Indiana has not done what the EPA wants with regard to the Safe Water Act, I would suspect that it may be because enforcement of ALL the regulations is impossible. Government agencies have a record of establishing rules that would require hundreds of fieldmen to keep track. That would mean more federal workers. It is a touchy subject, especially the past few years, that of adding more "watchdogs" to the federal payroll.

If, as the Chicago office says, the advisory to boil water was based on information available at the time, it is an indication of the cumbersome system now set up to keep tabs on the purity of drinking water. It is an indication that the sampling system established at the state level is more adequate. It is closer to home, therefore quicker to respond. And it does not require the distribution of warning notices and the publication of notices in newspapers which adds to the cost of living. Just how unworkable the public notice provisions are can be found in the following regulation: "The three-day publication period must be COMPLETED within 14 days of the violation."

That — is — impossible.

Those who become involved in government programs are soon convinced of the importance of their duties. It's a kind of "brainwashing" that happens to the best of people—and you don't have to go to Chicago to find it happening.

How many of these governmental "experts" can we afford? Is it possible to achieve "perfection" in any facet of our daily existence???

EHS Basketball

3-2 at the end of the first quarter in a high school boys' basketball game???

That's the way it was February 2 at the DeKalb Eastside gym as the Blazers relied on stalling tactics against Garrett in an effort to record their third win of the season. The change in tactics didn't work out as hoped and the locals were defeated 37-30.

The Blazers had the 3-2 lead at the end of one period but were held scoreless in the second period, with Garrett taking an 8-3 halftime lead.

The game opened up in the second half with Garrett outscoring the Blazers 29-27 for the win.

Pictures Tell Much Of The Success Story Of The 1979 188-Pint Riverdale Bloodmobile

The outstanding turnout of blood donors at the Riverdale Bloodmobile on February 14 is recorded in part in the accompanying three photos taken at around 1:45 p.m. that day. The Bloodmobile opened at 1:00 p. m. and immediately had a bus load of high school students to process along with a steady turnout of Vulcraft workers and the remaining "civilian" donors.

The top photo shows volunteer workers at right taking medical histories of individual donors, along with other necessary information.

When all the paper work and testing has been finished, donors proceed to one of four stations, shown in the bottom photo, to give blood. Each station has three tables. After a pint of blood has been extracted, donors are assisted to the refreshment area, not shown in any of the three photos but still an important part of the entire process. Sandwiches, cookies and beverages are given donors who are asked to remain for a short length of time to make certain they are able to "navigate" without any problems.

Mrs. Hicov sends the following message:

"Thank you, everyone, so very much. Cooperation, community spirit and attitude among the donors and workers made our Valentine's Day Bloodmobile the most successful ever in DeKalb County. It was great!!!

"We wish to say thank you to all the nurses, volunteer workers, janitors, school boys, set-up and tear-down crews, Mr. Hampel, Mr. Ray, Loretta Musser, The Saint Joe News, WIFF radio, teen donors, Vulcraft company, and community donors. Many thanks also to those who donated cookies, D&M Grocery, Sechler's Pickles, the very generous donations from the Saint Joe Lions Club, and County Line Cheese. We can all be very proud of a fine job done from a fine community.

"My apologies to those who waited longer than usual. We will have the problem areas worked out for next year. There will be more workers and possibly a larger facility for our 1980 Bloodmobile so that more units can be used, making it possible for more people to be processed in a shorter time.

"And many thanks to those of you who appeared to donate blood but were deferred because of medical reasons.

"See you all next year!"

Of Open Doors, Colors, Uniforms

The so-called "open door" or "sunshine" laws, under which the general public is intended to be more informed about the official activities of public officials and bodies of public officials, aren't doing the job but it's costing the taxpayers more money.

I'm not finding fault with the school administration or a county commission or any other group or individual. But what good is it to have the superintendent's office call the news media to inform them that an executive session is going to be held on such-and-such a date? Executive sessions are closed to the public and the news media. No voting can be done at executive sessions. Only discussion is allowed. But if no one can attend, what benefit is it to tell a newspaper or a radio station or a TV station about such sessions???

Matters discussed in executive session are considered to be confidential. No school official or board member can rightfully tell what went on.

I understand the intent of the "open door" effort. But if secret sessions are to remain secret, what good does it do to waste time and money calling the media and/or sending notice by mail of a closed session when the content of the session cannot be revealed???

On the other hand, some things get done without the public—or the involved students in some cases—having any say-so.

Right now, there are some disgruntled adults and students who are asking the question: when did our school colors get changed?

DeKalb Eastside's colors are still the same, officially. But the current drive to raise funds for new band uniforms brings out some strange circumstances. DeKalb Eastside school colors are green and white. But the band uniforms have green and gold predominant. It is the same with the new baseball uniforms of a couple of years ago—green and gold. And with the girls' varsity warmup pants and tops—green and gold—and with school jackets—green and gold.

I am not too enthused about saying these things. It becomes "another hassle at Eastside." However, if "open door" is the way in which school administration is to function, how is it that school colors can get changed by somebody somehow, and a lot of people haven't known about it?

One comment passed along to me, to justify the use of gold as a school color, is that the students are trying to create a "new image" for Eastside. If they are allowed to continue thinking that new school colors (and a new "nickname," too) will result in a higher opinion of our school than is felt by many people, they are being misled, in no uncertain terms. You don't change character by changing physical appearances.

However, the rest of the matter lies in the secrecy surrounding what appears to be a matter which should be made public as compared to matters which are better kept private due to personal circumstances.

If a board member asks a question, "What do you have against gold?" when a patron expresses concern about colors for new band uniforms, that board member is dodging the point that school colors are usually utilized in anything used in connection with school activities. If the band uniforms were all black with gold braid for trim, there would be no question. However, when new band uniforms utilize green but not white, then an explanation is needed.

I don't wish to cause any trouble—and I imagine there are some who, when reading this will say, "Why did he have to bring this up?". But I didn't bring it up nor did the patrons and students who are asking, "Why gold?" The matter was brought up by those who have allowed a change to be made. The trouble, if that's what you want to call, wouldn't have arisen if school colors were being used.

Another sore point is this: the present uniforms have been in use for 12 years. How long are those "different" hats going to be used before the kids say they are "old hat—let's get something different"???

Do we have enough money floating around that we can uniform the band according to every fad or whim???

A school board member is reported as having observed that "the kids want to change the school nickname as well as the colors--they were talking about it already last year," or words to that effect. If so, somebody (or bodies) is breaking faith with the public. If students are discussing these changes, the matter ought to be on the record so that everyone in the district knows what is going on.

I fully appreciate the students' desire to improve their image. But changing names and colors won't do it. I appreciate their desire to promote school spirit. But changing names and colors won't do it. Do they think the Lady Blazers of Eastside did so well because they have green and gold warm up outfits? If they do, then why hasn't the baseball team won sectional championships, too? The baseball team has green and gold uniforms.

By coincidence, the DeKalb Central district is buying new band uniforms. The school board advertised for bids and recently accepted a bid for some $30,000. School boards are now allowed to help pay for band uniforms on a matching-fund basis. The central district's source of "private" funds has over $14,000 which will be matched by the school board by transferring funds from certain accounts. Obviously, someone knew what was needed and prepared for it.

In our district, the Band Boosters have some $3,500 in the treasury and want to order uniforms within the next month in order to have them for next fall or before.

How is the other $21,500 or so going to be raised? No one has said, not the band director, not the Band Boosters, not the school board, not the school administration. Yet, here we have a uniform style already picked out, and the uniform colors (as reported in the "Butler Bulletin" of February 21). But no one seems to know who did it and when.

I totally disagree with the solicitation of merchants at Auburn to help purchase Eastside uniforms when they have their own school to support (I understand that a few uniforms or money have been pledged from Auburn). No wonder we get a bad image, no wonder it appears we are hard up, when we solicit outside our school district before our own district has been completely covered and a report made as to the financial status of the effort to buy new uniforms.

What brought all this on? Remember? It was the uselessness of so-called "sunshine" laws which are supposed to make the public more informed as to what public officials are doing or allowing to be done while they are in office.

Rapping With Youth About.....

Recently, I kidded Mary Beatty at the local branch bank: "Whoever printed your sign made a mistake. Washington's birthday isn't February 19." The sign indicated that the bank would close that day for a legal holiday associated with George Wahington's birthday.

On Wednesday of the following week, a hearing was held in the DeKalb Circuit Court concerning Principal Robert E. Williams' petition for an injunction to prevent our school board from holding a hearing relative to cancellation of his contract. Approximately 30 minutes was devoted to preliminary routine to establish the purpose of the hearing, plus a discussion of some technical points. One of those points, referred to specifically by Circuit Court Judge Harold Stump after having only a matter of hours to "bone up" on school law, was that state law requires notice to be given by the school board to the principal of a hearing to be held on the cancellation of his contract. That notice is to be given by letter not less than 30 nor more than 40 days before the hearing date.

What does the Circuit Court hearing have to do with "playing with holidays"? Well, Monday, February 19, is NOT the birthday of George Washington but it IS a legal holiday. George Washington's birthday is February 22 and it was observed as such in years past in this country—until Congress started playing around with national holidays a few years ago and changed Washington's birthday into "Presidents' Day" and put it on a Monday. This makes a "long weekend" for personal pleasure for thousands of people. It was accomplished by the efforts of those in Congress who are in office due to support received by certain labor unions and those unions want as many paid holidays as they can get.

If you, as a student, are deficient in your knowledge of and appreciation for significant dates in the history of your country, basic blame lies on those who have pressured certain members of Congress to "play around" with national holidays in order to make long weekends. Thousands of people were not working February 19, but they were paid anyhow. And it is very doubtful that very many stopped to think, "Hey, I've got the day off because of the importance of George Washington to my well-being. He was rich, well-to-do—but he didn't turn away from the challenge to fight for the cause of freedom. He didn't go home to more comfortable surroundings but instead endured the bitter cold of winter with his troops and went on to lead them to victory even though they were outnumbered by the enemy."

The birthday of Abraham Lincoln on February 12 went by almost unnoticed. Each year less and less note is taken about these two great men who lived decades apart but contributed so much to America.

"Playing with holidays" began several years ago when November 11, known as "Armistice Day" in commemoration of the end of World War I, became "Veterans' Day." Then the date was changed to fall in October a few years ago, making a "long weekend."

Memorial Day is no longer the traditional May 30, having been switched to a Monday for a "long weekend."

Columbus Day is no longer October 12 but a Monday for still another "long weekend."

In the court hearing recently, the fact that it took a sharp judge to keep things in order does not necessarily mean the attorneys were negligent. Rather, it means that Congress has contributed to the possibility of confusion. In this case, it is an actual happening, not a possibility. And it is costly. The time required for legal counsel for both parties in the matter costs money — taxpayers' money. The time required by the court to hear the matter costs money — taxpayers' money. The time to re-do what had been done in order to be technically correct costs money — again, taxpayers' money.

And all because of "playing around" with our national holidays.

It may not seem so important to you now, in your youth. But somewhere along the line, the situation may strike you as being odd. Here we are, trying to cope with inflation for several years—and Congress creates "long weekends" so that a lot of people can get a day's pay for doing nothing. You may even consider this:

Paying for work not done results in one thing—inflation.

— And —

National holidays ought to be returned to their traditional dates, regardless of the day in the week on which they may fall. This would help to prevent costly incidents such as occurred recently in the circuit court. But of even greater importance is the fact that, properly observed, the remembrance of the significance of these dates would help to remind us each year of the sacrifices made by those living in years gone by. sacrifices made in the struggle for freedom.

We ARE still struggling.

Congress Led The 'Gimme, gimmie'

"The exorbitant pay raises recently voted by members of the Illinois legislature and local officials in the Chicago area are a slap in the face of those who are working to end the inflationary spiral now gripping the nation. Moreover, it is a slap in the face of each and every citizen who must try to cope with higher and higher prices as the value of their earnings shrinks."

Who said that? None other than Indiana's Senator Birch Bayh in a news release dated December 11, 1978 (B.L. 50-78).

That's quite a mouthful, considering the fact that it comes from a Senator who voted himself a whopping pay raise a few years ago. That raise set the pattern for the remainder of the nation to seek more pay.

Had the Congress rejected the pay raise for itself, the President and others at that time, there would have been a challenge established for all Americans, there would have been an example set to help control the "gimme-gimme" of recent years.

To show how far-reaching the influence of Congress has been in the self-voted pay-raise matter, the town budget for this year includes $1500 for pay of town board members. For several years it was $450. The local board thus raised its own pay from $150 per year to $500 per year per member — in other words, more than tripled.

In years past, there was an ethical or moral code (if no legal code) observed by town board members that any pay raise (and they were few and far between) was put in the proposed budget only in the last year of the board's four-year term. Thus, a newly-elected board would receive the pay raise, not the board establishing the pay raise.

In smalltown politics, you don't serve for the money; you serve for the benefit and betterment of the community. Anyone who runs for a small-town office ought to consider such service as an indication of the willingness to give, not an opportunity to get.

The statement that "everyone else is doing it, the cost of living is going up" just does not apply to the pay of small-town board members. Traditionally, acceptance of town board responsibilities has carried with it an implied acceptance of low pay, reflecting a desire and willingness to serve the public.

Unfortunately, Congress, including Senator Bayh, has led the nation into a selfish and unethical attitude. And it reaches right down to little ol' Saint Joe.

Did you know —that the 7th grade boys' basketball team ended its season with a 14-4 won-lost record. The final game was a 35-30 loss to Lancaster in the ACAC tourney championship game. Aaron Willard led scoring with 15 points. Craig Lake had 8.

—that Chris Kopf is the new baseball coach at DeKalb Eastside High School. In his first year at Eastside, he is a former all-state baseball player from Michigan and has had semi-pro experience. He is currently freshman basketball coach. Rick Hudson had been signed as baseball coach but asked to be relieved of those duties so that he could devote more time to developing a basketball program.
